Fire Station Bids To Be Opened At Special Meeting

Bids for electrical, plumbing and mechanical contracts for the Hoffman Estates Fire Protection District third fire station will be opened at a special meeting on Jan. 7.

A general contractor for the project will be selected at the district regular board of trustees meeting on Jan. 17.

The funds for the station, which will be located near Higgins Road on land donated by the Robbins Construction Co., was approved by voters on Feb. 27, 1971. The station is expected to cost about $500,000 to construct and equip.

Construction of the station has been delayed several times due to revisions of plans by Robbins to develop the property adjacent to the fire station site.

At the time of the referendum, district officials cited the increasing population of the western section of the village and a recommendation by the Insurance Services Office.

THE ISO EVALUATES fire protection services offered in communities and sets ratings used by companies who offer fire insurance to homeowner and business.

Preliminary site work, including sewer and water lines has already been completed. District officials estimate the station will take nine months to a year to complete.

In other actions they approved a payment schedule for firemen who have completed both the basic and advanced Emergency Medical Technician (EMT) Training. Firefighters who completed the 80-hour basic EMT course will receive $11 for each eight-hour session. Those who complete the advanced EMT-Paramedic will receive a $400 lump sum payment. Thirteen firefighters have completed the advanced EMT training.

6 Arrested In Narcotics Raid

Six persons were arrested on a variety of narcotics charges, including sale and possession of heroin, after Hoffman Estates police and agents from the Metropolitan Enforcement Group raided an apartment in the Hermitage Trace apartment complex, 137 Valley Ln., Hoffman Estates.

Hoffman Estates police said they raided the apartment at about 7:30 p.m. with a warrant for James Rodgers, 21, of the Valley Lane address. Five other persons were in the apartment at the time of the raid, police said.

Also arrested in the incident were Michelle Mateling, 20, of 137 Valley Ln.; James Austin, 23, of 137 Valley Ln.; Raymond LeBlanc, 23, of Gahanna, Ohio; Fred H. Jones, 24, of 2408 Algonquin Park, Rolling Meadows; and Marjorie Green, 20, of 1262 W. Pratt, Chicago.

All six were charged with possession of controlled substances and possession of hypodermic needles.

Quantities of other narcotics in addition to heroin were found in the apartment at the time of the arrest, police said.

Both MEG agents and Hoffman Estates detectives have been investigating the apartment for some time. Police termed the arrests "very significant."

Miss Green was released on a $27,500 bond. Rodgers is being held at the Cook County Jail in lieu of $27,500 bond, and Austin was released on a $3,000 bond. All three are to appear in Cook County Circuit Court, Niles, on Tuesday.

Bond information on the others was not available yesterday.

Zoners Hit Big Condo Project Here

Opposition to a revised scheme of 1,000 condominium units including five 16-story high rises was voiced Wednesday by the Schaumburg Zoning Board of Appeals.

While the board took no formal action and continued the hearing requested by Dunbar Homes Inc., opinions expressed clearly took issue with the high density of the proposed development at Schaumburg and Plum Grove roads.

The over-all density of the 90-acre project would be 20.6 units per acre. At the last session, the board indicated they wanted more open space in the development, lower density, and high-rises moved away from Schaumburg and Plum Grove roads.

In response to these objections, Dunbar increased open space by eliminating some of the two story buildings and adding several stories to the nine mid-rise buildings.

THE FIRM MOVED two of the five 16-story buildings to the west of Plum Grove Road. Originally, all five had been on a 16-acre parcel east of Plum Grove, creating a density of 48 units per acre in that one section.

Setbacks on the high-rises were also increased, and generally the highest density development flanked the commercial section planned for the intersection of Schaumburg and Plum Grove roads.

Land planners also moved a proposed retention lake so that the eastern edge of the project, part of the proposed Spring Valley Nature Center, could be left untouched.

"You've done a terrific job with the open space. Yet there's been no attempt to decrease density. We were talking 14 to 15 at the last meeting," Russell Parker, board chairman said.

Allan Chapman of Dunbar pointed out that recent developments such as Walden, Village-in-the Park, and Versailles have been approved with densities around 20 units to the acre.

ADDITIONALLY, the guidelines for a planned unit development, the zoning classification Dunbar has requested, do not indicate a density maximum, Chapman said. Only open space and ground cover are mentioned in the guidelines.

Dr. Martin J. Coniglio, board member, explained that those projects did not contain 16-story buildings so the situations were different. He also said, "If you make one mistake you don't repeat it."

The guidelines do not mention density purposely, he added, to keep developers from proposing densities in each project that reach the maximum allowed. Because caissons must be installed east of Plum Grove Road to make the land buildable, their high cost makes only high-rise feasible, Chapman said in justification of the proposal. Additionally, the firm feels high-density living would be an urbanized environment appealing to many people who will want to live in Schaumburg, he said.

Land planner Bruce Krivisky of Barton-Aschman Associates pointed out that the eastern area of the village is becoming an urbanized corridor.

Woodfield Mall, executive office buildings planned nearby, the civic center, and other multiple family areas are part of this urbanized "central neighborhood," he said. The Dunbar project fits in with this urbanization, he added.

Although the board objected to the high-density concept, Dunbar will appear again Jan. 10 with more detailed plans for the project. Parker suggested Dunbar "take a chance" with its present concept, and bring in completed plans so the board could vote.

Westbury Density Plan Delays Board Action

Concern about plans for a high ratio of three-bedroom units in early construction phases resulted in no action Tuesday on a planned unit development in Schaumburg.

Village trustees questioned Neil Hunter on Lancer Corp. for having 33 per cent 3-bedroom townhouse units in the first two phases of the proposed Westbury development. In the past, the village has applied its 15 per cent maximum to each phase of multiple development, as well as to the final total project.

Lancer plans to construct 120 townhouses in the first two phases of development of the 47.9 acres northeast of the Roselle Road-Weathersfield Way intersection. Of the 120, units, 42 are to have three bedrooms and the rest would have

OK $300 Million Budget

The Metropolitan Sanitary District (MSD) Board of Trustees yesterday approved a 1973 budget of more than $300 million, an increase of slightly more than 36.5 per cent over last year's budget.

The budget approved yesterday totals $300,478,200, an increase of almost $79 million over the budget approved last year of $221,485,362.

The tax rate for the new budget was estimated yesterday at 35.5 cents per $100 assessed valuation.

Last year, when the 1972 budget was approved, the rate was estimated at 33.5 cents per $100 assessed valuation, but yesterday it was announced the actual rate to be applied to the 1972 tax bills will be 36.3 cents per $100 assessed valuation.

EVEN AS THE BUDGET was receiving formal approval yesterday, however, MSD Trustee Valentine Janicki said it will be amended Thursday.

After a brief meeting yesterday, the MSD board adjourned to executive session to meet with union representatives for a local of operating engineers. Following the closed session, the trustees were expected to consider other amendments to the budgets which would be finalized Dec. 21.

The budget, as of yesterday afternoon, was $5,462,252 lower than the budget proposed Nov. 9 by MSD General Supt. Ben Sosewitz.

The final form of the budget was increased $500,000 from the tentative budget presented by the MSD finance committee Nov. 29. The addition was the district's bond and interest fund to pay for retiring a portion of the $20 million in general obligations and bonds the district issued recently.

The 1973 rate may increase as general obligation bonds are issued during the year.

NEW MSD TRUSTEE Joanne Alter yesterday asked if the Chicago Underflow Plan (a solution to combined sanitary and storm sewer pollution and flooding) could be given higher priority in the budget.

Sosewitz told her he did not think so. He said the engineering for the underflow plan will take most of the year to complete. He said it would be a "long shot" to expect to award any substantial contracts for the underflow plan in 1973.

For example, he said, additional land will be needed for the O'Hare Water Reclamation Plan to be connected to the underflow tunnel system. That land must be acquired before work can begin on tunnels in the Northwest suburban area.

Sosewitz also said MSD officials will meet with William Ruckelshaus, director of the federal Environmental Protection Agency, in January to seek federal support for the underflow plan.

Atcher Defends Village Role

by WANDALYN RICE

Schaumburg Mayor Robert O. Atcher recalled for the High School District 211 Board of Education last night that he arrived in the office of a city planner in London, England, a year ago and was greeted with the question, "How's Woodfield?"

Atcher used the example to point out that the village of Schaumburg is "internationally known for our planning and momentum in commercial development."

In a nearly hour-long presentation to the board, Atcher attacked a recent report by the Citizens Action Program (CAP) and Illinois Education Association (IEA).

The two groups recently charged that underassessment of property in Schaumburg Township is costing taxing bodies $4.7 million in property taxes.

ATCHER DETAILED the history of development in Schaumburg, and attacked a CAP-IEA recommendation that vacant land be assessed for taxes based on a market value of $1 per square foot.

That formula, Atcher said, "is confiscatory in my opinion. It would make it impossible for me to ever convince a developer to buy another piece of property in Schaumburg."

The Schaumburg mayor only briefly alluded near the end of his presentation to a suggestion he made earlier this month that the village of Schaumburg break away from District 211 and Elementary District 54 to form its own unit school district.

He did, however, indirectly attack Dist. 54 Business Manager Marvin Lapicola, who had said he believed that tax breaks had been offered to companies to persuade them to locate in Schaumburg. Atcher said "some of the suggestions that have been made that some people have been offered low assessments to come here have become rather an irritation to me. Municipalities in this state have nothing to do with tax assessments."

TUESDAY ATCHER had cited Lapicola's statements as one reason Schaumburg should consider forming the unit district.

Dist. 211 board members who had been urged by their teachers' association, an affiliate of IEA, to sue the county assessor to get tax assessments raised had little discussion of Atcher's statement. Board president Robert Creek, executive vice president of Union Oil Corp., one of the companies cited in the CAP-IEA study, thanked Atcher for his presentation and said "I think you have given us some perspective."

Mamach Still Undecided On Quitting Zoning Post

Although his resignation from the Schaumburg Zoning Board of Appeals was requested more than a week ago, Harry Mamach said yesterday that he has not yet reached a decision as to whether or not he intends to submit it.

Mamach resigned as managing director of Schaumburg United Party on Nov. 30, the night the party had its convention to nominate candidates for the village election next April.

Schaumburg Mayor Robert O. Atcher has stated that he wants Mamach to resign from the zoning board also. Atcher had told Mamach, through a letter, that he was accepting his resignation from both the SUP position and the zoning board.

Mamach insisted that he had not submitted his resignation from the zoning board.

Mamach said he probably would not make a decision as to whether or not he will resign until after the first of the year.

HE ADDED that he has not been in contact with Atcher or any other village or party official concerning the resignation request.

Atcher declined to comment on the matter.

Mamach said he has been unable to attend the last two meetings of the village zoning board because of an increased work schedule.

Atcher does have the authority to request the village board to remove Mamach from the zoning post, but he has said earlier he would regret taking such an action.

In his letter of resignation, Mamach stated that his position as managing director had been reduced to nothing by SUP officials working around the party structure. He also charged that the SUP executive board had bypassed him in appointing precinct captains.

Bids Received For Well House, New Equipment

Bids were received this week for a well house and equipment part of a deep well in the Village of Schaumburg.

The well, to be in Village in the Park, will pump 1,600 gallons of water per minute.

Three separate contracts were open for bidding. The first was for the building itself and mechanical, electrical, heating and chemical-treating equipment. The second was for a well pump. The third was for a natural gas standby generator, to be used in cases of power failure or shortage.

Bidders on the first contract and their quoted prices were: John Burns Construction Co., $125,620, completion in 270 days; Illinois Hydraulic Construction Co., $124,500, completion in 300 days; George D. Hardin, Inc., $128,888, completion in 240 days; R.L. O'Neil Builders, Inc., $114,620, completion in 220 days; Roy T. Meyer Plumbing Co., $129,340, completion in 145 days; Skully, Hunter and Skully, Inc., $131,079.07, completion in 120 days.

BIDS FOR the second contract were received from Wehling Well Works, Inc., $45,500, completion in 100 days; Lane Western Co., Inc., $47,240, completion in 110 days; J. P. Miller Artesian Well Co., $47,602, completion in 120 days; Egger Galloway Well Corp., $40,735, completion in 120 days.

For the third contract, bids were received from Charles Equipment Co., $33,830, completion in 150 days; Patton Industries, Inc., $33,850, completion in 120 days.

Engineers estimates on the job, given prior to bidding, were $129,807.50 for the first contract, $45,500 for the second and $42,250 for the third.

Engineers are to review the bids, and recommend awarding contracts next week.

Westbury Density Plan Delays Board Action

only two. Later phases of the project would include 56 more townhouses, commercial and apartment areas. Total density is to be six units per acre.

The village plan commission recommended the board approve plans for the first two phases. Lancer must have installed foundations for either commercial or apartment development before seeking authorization to proceed with the final 56 townhouse units it is proposing, said Raymond McArthur, plan commission chairman.

BUT TRUSTEE James Guthrie asked, "What is the problem with having 15 per cent three bedroom in Phase I?" Guthrie said he was concerned the apartments might never be built, and if they are not the development never will reach a 15 per cent ratio. The apartments are to have one and two bedrooms, and would balance the three-bedroom units to conform to the village bedroom mix guidelines.

Mayor Robert O. Atcher said the builder could conform to the ratio in early phases only by starting the apartments at the same time as the townhouses. He also said townhouses should not be viewed in the same light as apartment complexes.

Trustee Herb Aigner asked how many units would be in each building of the apartment area. Hunter responded plans have not yet progressed to that decision.

Hunter also noted the land currently is zoned transitional, and is bound by restrictive covenants. The developer could, he said, construct only commercial structures on the site if he chose.

Atty. Jack Siegel noted the transitional zoning had been allowed to remain on the land, only because Lancer had filed a plan for development of a PUD. Siegel also said as long as restrictive covenants apply to the land he does not anticipate any problems in obtaining completion of development according to existing plans.

AIGNER REQUESTED a copy of the restrictive covenants for study before voting. Guthrie sought a week's delay in voting, to permit study of the plan.

On other plan commission recommendations, the board approved development of three lots in Centex-Schaumburg Industrial Park, and ordered preparation of an amendment to its zoning ordinance to provide a mechanism for obtaining variations for fences in front yards.

Also approved was the parking lot design for Woodfield office buildings, providing 568 parking slots, an increase from the originally planned 451 units. The plan provides four spaces per 1,000 square feet of usable office space.

The board also approved two recommendations from the zoning board of appeals, one for a sideyard variation at 33 Grand Central Ln. and the other for a setback variation at Woodfield Road and Mall Drive.

Track Satisfied With Scott's Action

by DAVID MAHISMAN

See related story Section 2, Page 10
Arlington Park Race Track officials have expressed satisfaction at Illinois Atty. Gen. William Scott's move to seek a court decision on the validity of the 1973 racing dates awarded three weeks ago by the Illinois Racing Board.

"I think this is the best way to go," said Thomas Rivera, Arlington Park information officer, of Scott's quest for a final decision in the racing schedule controversy.

The racing board Thursday unanimously denied a petition from Arlington Park - Washington Park Race Tracks Corp. for a new racing schedule, but race track owners' hopes for a better schedule were kept alive by Scott's announcement that his office will take the matter to court Monday.

Scott made the announcement in a surprise appearance at Thursday's racing board hearing on Arlington-Washington's request for reconsideration of the 1973 racing schedule. Track officials said they had not expected the courts to become involved in the controversy at this point.

THE RACING board voted unanimously to support Scott in seeking an early court ruling on the racing schedule.

Scott told the board and those present at the hearing that he is of the opinion that racing dates awarded to corporations headed by William S. Miller should be thrown out. Miller is a former racing board chairman under indictment — with former Gov. Otto Kerner — on charges of bribery and income tax evasion in connection with an alleged race track stock scandal.

The Illinois Racing Act provides that the racing board shall award racing dates based on maximizing state revenue and only to persons of good moral character. Scott said that Miller's indictment places him in the realm of "moral turpitude" and disqualifies him from receiving a racing license.

But Scott's opinions are not binding, so he decided to take the issue to court.

"We've had to go to court in the past to support our opinions, and we will go to court in the future," Scott said, adding that the courts have backed his opinions in the past. He called his case against Miller "important to the people of the state and the integrity of the state."

ACTING RACING Board chairman Joseph Lamendella said he hopes the court will consider the opinions of all racing commissioners in ruling on the racing dates. He was referring to three separate reports that were filed by commissioners following a 4-3 board approval of the 1973 racing schedule. Besides the majority report upholding the decision, Lamendella filed a dissenting report, as did former board chairman Alexander MacArthur and Commissioner Gerald F. Fitzgerald, asking for a change in dates. MacArthur resigned in protest over the schedule that was awarded.

"I certainly welcome the opportunity to finally have this (racing schedule) matter cleared," said Commissioner Edward J. Long after voting for board support of Scott. Long was one of the commissioners who voted in favor of the 1973 schedule.

Prior to Scott's appearance before the racing board, the commissioners unanimously approved Lamendella's motion to deny the race track's petition for a new schedule. Long seconded that motion.

Frank Riley, attorney for Arlington-Washington, told the board he based the petition on the fact that Arlington Park was granted a single 77-day racing license for 1973, rather than two licenses — one each for the Arlington Park and Washington Park Jockey Club meets. Technically, Riley said he was not seeking a new schedule, but another racing license.

Riley argued that state law prohibits a single meet of more than 60 days, which he said he feels was the effect of the board's decision to grant only one license. But an assistant attorney-general assigned to the racing board said the single 77-day license is valid because Arlington-Washington owns two race tracks.

ARLINGTON-WASHINGTON Pres. John F. Loomis spoke only briefly in defense of a longer racing season for Arlington Park. He said his testimony during the Nov. 17 board hearing — that a longer season for Arlington Park is in the best interest of Illinois racing — still stands.

Arlington Park was awarded 77 days of continuous racing to run from April 25 to July 24, preceded by six days of racing for the Sun-Times/Daily News charity meet. The track had requested 120 days of racing, the maximum allowed by law.

After the racing board voted Thursday to deny Arlington-Washington's request for a new schedule, Lamendella explained that he had earlier conferred with Scott, who had raised some question as to whether or not the board could change the schedule at this time. Scott based his opinion that such a move would be improper on two points:

—Arlington-Washington's petition did not ask for a change in dates, but only for another racing license.

—The racing board does not have the authority to change racing dates at this time.

Board OKs Budget For Municipal Hall Furnishings

Approval to add $19,333 to the budget for furnishings in the administrative area of the Schaumburg Municipal Building was granted by the village board Tuesday night.

Trustee Herb Aigner, chairman of the board's development committee, reported Tuesday the original budget for interior furnishings allocated $64,682. On completion of the total interior budget, estimates rose to $84,234.55, Aigner said.

The budget is for furnishings in the administrative office area, and for furnishings in the board room, said Aigner.

Also approved was a change order in the contracting for the building. The $2,000 change is to provide a standby natural gas sump pump to back up the main system, said Aigner.

IN OTHER ACTION, the board accepted dedication of streets and underground improvements in Levitt's Sheffield Park West single-family home development. The improvements and streets are guaranteed for one year, and the village funds an escrow account for 18 months to finance any repairs that might be necessary.

Final plan approval was granted for the Courtyard planned unit development by the Ciesel-McGuire firm, a complex of 16 buildings three stories tall and 36 buildings two stories tall to contain 151 one-bedroom apartments and 328 two-bedroom apartments near Roselle Road and Weathersfield Way. The building department now can review building permit applications.

First reading approval was granted 3-H Corp. for its Laurelwood development, also to be a planned unit development, and adjoining the Courtyard area.

The board approved on first reading an ordinance establishing inspection procedures for beauty shops and barber shops.

Also approved on first reading was the annual tax abatement. Each year, the village authorizes a tax levy, and when it becomes certain village revenues from other sources will meet anticipated expenses, the board has abated the property tax.

Final approval was granted for height restriction variations for 175-foot office buildings at Woodfield.

The board also authorized two charitable collections in the village planned for April. The Kidney Foundation of Illinois was authorized to hold a Walk for Life, seeking donations of funds and commitments for donations of organs upon the death of the donor, April 7-8. The Children's Benefit League of Chicago and the Suburbs was granted permission for tag day at intersections April 13. Rush Presbyterian-St. Luke's Hospital, which plans a branch facility in Schaumburg, is among beneficiaries of the tag day.

AN ACTIVE STUDENT body at St. Hubert Catholic School in Hoffman Estates enjoys a progressive curriculum. The academic program is aimed at the individual student needs following testing in September. Elective day, a day each week when students can partake in activities centered around their special interests is also part of the educational program at St. Hubert's.

Individual Needs Have Top Priority At St. Hubert's

by PAT GERLACH

At St. Hubert's School in Hoffman Estates, meeting the needs of individual students receives top priority in curriculum planning.

While reading instruction has been individualized at the school for several years, last fall a new and comprehensive individualized program was undertaken in the lower and middle grades.

With several reading levels in each grade, students progress from one group to the next at their own rate. This program, which is phonics-oriented, has been received with significant enthusiasm by students and teachers in grades two through five.

Another innovative program of individualized instruction introduced this year at the school concerns itself with spelling.

In September, students throughout the school were tested to determine their grade level of spelling ability. A classroom may well have students at several different levels, ranging from a year or two below grade level to well above that level, according to a school spokesman.

EACH STUDENT begins at his own level of achievement and moves at his own rate of speed. This makes it possible for students to progress through more than one grade level in the course of a school year depending on motivation and willingness to work hard school officials believe.

The program also utilizes student "checkers" to give individual tests and "student clerks" whose task it becomes to keep classroom spelling records up to date.

In keeping with growing efforts to meet the needs of each student, St. Hubert's entire faculty and several outside resource persons (often parents) have cooperated in the offering of elective "mini-courses" to junior high students.

Each course is offered on Wednesday, which has become "Elective Day" at the school. Specific classes are held for a period of 10 weeks and class size is limited to a maximum of 20 students.

A variety of subjects including conversational French, creative stitching, typing, dramatics, and model construction were included in a field of more than 20 electives offered to students during the first quarter.

ALSO POPULAR, as well as topical, was Election '72 in which students conducted a mock election the day before the Nov. 7 general election.

With the assistance of their teacher, Sister Sandra Marie, students managed to obtain the use of official voting booths for the experiment.

Soon to be added to the elective offerings are short courses in auto mechanics, chess, photography, Spanish and decoupage.

The individualized approach to reading and spelling and the elective program evidence efforts being made by members of St. Hubert's school board, the school administration and faculty. Their objective is to meet the varying needs of each student which, they believe, is achieved by building skills and by broadening student experience and extension of areas of interest.

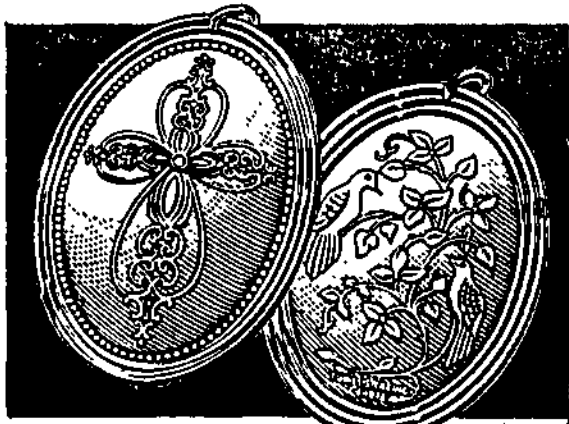

"Unless a child is given the opportunity to work on his own level, he will never experience the joy of success and of belonging. When he does, his frustrations begin to disappear, self-confidence returns, and once again he is caught up in the stream of achievement. Not until such experiences materialize can a school truthfully say it exists for the 'individual,'" says Sister M. Justilia, principal of St. Hubert's.

Just Politics

by Bob Lahey

Despite some inadequacies in the most recent reapportionment of Illinois legislative districts, representation of the Chicago suburbs, at least theoretically, should be strengthened measurably in the new legislature which will convene Jan. 10.

Suburban legislators objected that increasing the number of wholly suburban districts (each district elects one senator and three representatives) from 9 to 10 did not properly reflect the increasing suburban population.

However, there are six new districts which encompass parts of the City of Chicago and parts of various suburbs. This fact helped contribute to the court decisions which upheld the redistricting plan on the "one-man, one-vote" thesis.

It also helped increase the number of legislators with some vested interest in suburban problems from 9 senators and 27 representatives in the current legislature to 16 senators (in a total of 59) and 48 representatives (in a total of 177).

WHILE THE LEGISLATORS, elected from these new districts partly in the suburbs and partly in the city, are dominated by Chicago residents, the number of lawmakers who now have some direct interest in the suburbs has increased from about 15 per cent of the legislature to a more realistic 27 per cent.

In the six city-suburban districts, there are five Democratic senators and one Republican. The Democrats include four Chicagoans, three of whom are incumbents, and an Oak Park incumbent, Sen. Raymond J. Welsh. The single Republican, newly elected Sen. Edward T. Scholl, is also a Chicago resident, representing a district which stretches into the southeast portion of Maine Township.

Among the city-suburban representatives, 12 are Democrats and 6 are Republicans. They include two former city Republicans who moved to the suburbs following redistricting — Henry J. Hyde, House majority leader and a candidate for speaker of the House, now living in Park Ridge; and Philip J. Collins, now a resident of Calumet City.

Two Evanston residents, Republican Joseph R. Lundy and Democrat James P. McCourt are newly elected representatives. The other suburban residents in these districts partially in the city are Vincent Molloy, an Oak Park Republican, and Frank Giglio, a Calumet City Democrat. Both will be serving their first terms.

THE NUMBER OF state senators living in districts wholly within the city has been reduced from 21 to 14, and the number of representatives from 63 to 42. All 14 senators are Democrats, and 13 of the representatives are Republicans.

The number of downstate legislators remains the same — 29 senators, 19 of them Republicans, and 67 representatives, including 51 Republicans.

In districts located wholly in the suburbs, all 10 senators are Republicans and 19 of the 30 representatives belong to the GOP.

Tax Freeze Near The Bottom

Pay Raises Top Assembly's Agenda

SPRINGFIELD, (UPI)—Pay raises for legislators were on top of the list and a tax freeze apparently near the bottom as legislators assembled Thursday for what is likely to be the last meeting of the 77th General Assembly.

When the House and Senate last convened on Nov. 26, the order was reversed. Then, Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie's proposal for a freeze on real estate taxes was the prime topic and pay raises only a dot on the horizon.

Four things contributed to the about-face. Legislative leaders carefully worded statements that more time would be needed for study of a tax freeze; cancellation of a hearing on the proposal; introduction of bills in the Senate designed eventually to raise lawmakers' pay and a recommendation from an independent citizens' pay board that the legislators should get hefty raises.

It became evident during the brief November session that neither party in either house was interested in pushing through a law freezing homeowners' property taxes. Leaders almost unanimously voiced the opinion that more time would be needed to study the scheme, that hasty action might actually hurt the taxpayer and that a delay might be best for all concerned.

THEN, AFTER holding a Springfield hearing on the plan, the legislative revenue committee canceled a similar meeting scheduled for Chicago. That came despite the fact the legislature had adjourned until now primarily to study the freeze plan.

On the pay raise, the commission on compensation of state and local government employees Tuesday recommended that the solons be paid between $22,000 and $33,000. They now make $17,500 a year plus $6,000 a year for office expenses.

Elton K. McQuerry, a member of the citizens conference on state legislators, told the pay panel that higher pay would attract better men.

"If you don't pay a living wage to legislators, only the elite can afford to run," McQuerry said.

He recommended the House and Senate members get a "reasonable salary increase, a realistic per diem allowance for expenses while in Springfield and a substantial increase in their district office allowance."

SPECULATION around the Capital is that legislators will grant themselves a pay raise within federal guidelines, plus raising the limit on their allowable expenses. The Senate bills, which are likely to be changed would increase office allowances from $6,000 a year to $10,000 and would give the lawmakers a $32 a day expense allowance for the time they spend in Springfield.

The only sure thing about pay raises is that they will come soon if they come at all. Legally, no General Assembly may raise its own pay and the 78th takes office Jan. 10.

If such a raise comes, it would be the fourth in the past eight years. It would mean that in the span of less than a decade legislative pay has gone from $6,000 to whatever is tacked on this time to the current $17,500.

It would also be the second time in two years that a pay increase bill has been passed by a lame-duck assembly in the months following a general election.

Three Latest Nixon Appointees Named

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon has selected his speechwriter, a White House aide and the law dean from his alma mater in the latest round of administrative appointments.

The President nominated Joseph T. Sneed, 52, of Durham, N.C., to be No. 2 at the Justice Department; James Keogh, 56, to head the U.S. Information Agency and Ronald H. Walker, 45, to direct the National Park Service.

Walker was the man who set up the details of Nixon's trips to Peking and Moscow. Keogh wrote speeches in Nixon's first campaign. Sneed is a law professor at Duke University.

Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler indicated that the President would complete the major decisions for members of the new administration Friday, but that announcements of appointments would be extended into next week.

Ziegler also said Wednesday that William H. Brown III would remain as chairman of the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission and one of the highest ranking blacks in the administration.

FRANK T. READ, associate dean of the Duke law school, commended Nixon on the selection of Sneed. "It's a good appointment, but I'm sick he is leaving Duke."

His appointment as deputy attorney general would put him directly under Attorney General Richard G. Kleindienst and in a major policy position. Little is known publicly of Sneed's personal feelings about the department, but Ziegler said he would lead the administration's battle against crime.

Walker would succeed George B. Hartzog, who is being replaced after nine years at the top of the park service.

The Sierra Club, one of the nation's leading conservation groups, said Walker's appointment was "profoundly disturbing."

"He appears to be neither a person with a strong background in park programs, a strong environmentalist, nor a proven administrator," the Sierra Club said.

House Panel Won't Probe Train Accident

SPRINGFIELD, ILL. (UPI)—The Illinois Legislature apparently is not going to investigate the Oct. 30 Illinois Central commuter train crash in Chicago that took 45 lives.

The House Executive Committee yesterday voted, after an hour of discussion, to postpone action on a resolution calling for such an investigation. The resolution was sponsored by Rep. Robert Mann, D-Chicago.

Since the committee has no further meetings scheduled, the measure is effectively dead.

"If this method kills the resolution, at least we're killing it with kindness," said Rep. John Matijevich, D-North Chicago.

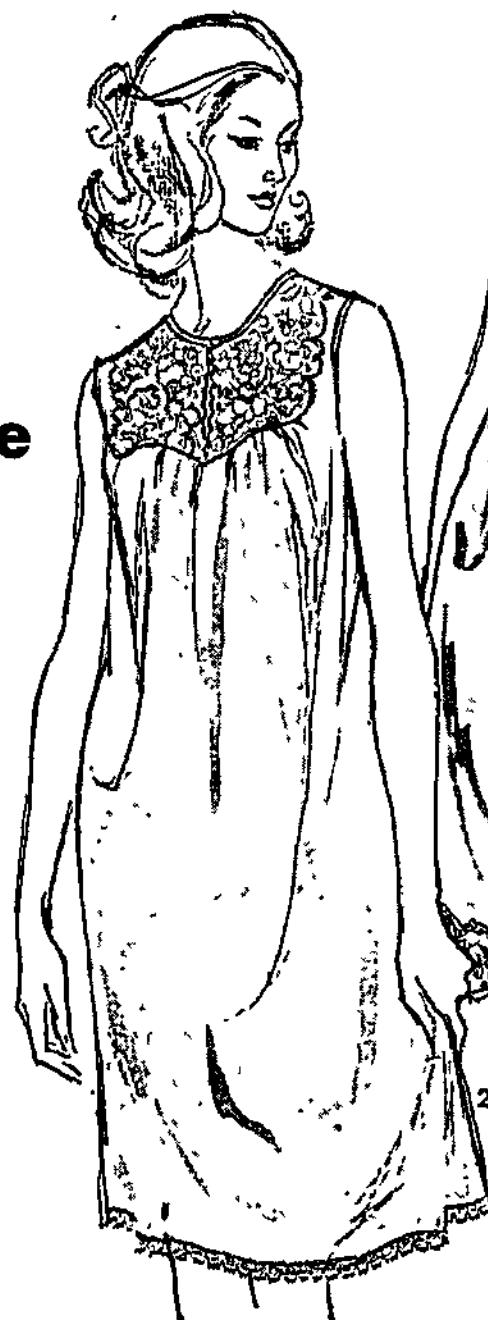

The major objection to the resolution was that another investigation would be unnecessary and would duplicate that conducted by the National Transportation Safety Board.

97th In State With 20.4 Crimes Per 1,000 Residents

Des Plaines Has Top Area Crime Rate

Des Plaines has the highest crime rate and the most police officers in the Northwest suburbs, a study released earlier this week shows.

The comparison and ranking of towns by their crime rates, population, number of policemen and their rank in the state by number of crimes is part of the Chicago-Cook County Criminal Justice Commission's 1973 plan.

The comparison is drawn in an appendix to the plan which lists priorities for federal funding for law enforcement and criminal justice projects during the coming year.

The chart shows the 1970 population, the number of full-time and part-time police in 1972, the 1970 crime rate per 1,000 population, and the rank of the municipalities in crimes statewide.

Des Plaines ranks 97th in the state with a crime rate of 20.4 crimes per 1,000 residents. The city has a 1970 population of 57,230. It has 78 full-time and 35 part-time policemen.

Statistics for other Northwest suburban communities, in alphabetical order, include:

Arlington Heights — 64,884 population, 61 full-time policemen, 12.8 crimes per 1,000 population and ranked 209 in the state.

Buffalo Grove — 9,966 population in Cook County, 1,833 population in Lake County, 15 full-time policemen, four part-time policemen, five crimes per 1,000 population, and ranked 302 in the state.

Elk Grove Village — 24,505 population, 43 full-time policemen, 12.1 crimes per 1,000 population and ranked 221 in the state.

Hoffman Estates — 22,238 population, 31 full-time policemen, 11.4 crimes per 1,000 population and ranked 227 in the state.

Mount Prospect — 34,995 population, 36 full-time policemen, 17.3 crimes per 1,000 population and ranked 128 in the state. Palatine — 25,904 population, 39 full-time policemen, 6.9 crimes per 1,000 population and ranked 283 in the state.

Rolling Meadows — 19,178 population, 27 full-time policemen, two part-time policemen, 19.6 crimes per 1,000 population and ranked 108 in the state.

Schaumburg — 18,531 population, 28 full-time policemen, 16 part-time policemen, 9.1 crimes per 1,000 population and ranked 255 in the state.

Wheeling — 14,746 population, 33 full-time policemen, 17.7 crimes per 1,000 population, and ranked 122 in the state.

Seminar On Flooding Set With Walker

Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission officials will seek to bring Gov. Daniel Walker together with municipal and county officials to discuss flooding at a seminar early next year.

Members of NIPC's Intergovernmental Relations Committee Wednesday discussed plans for the conference, which will be titled, "Storm Water ACCORD (Advisory Coordinating Council on Regional Development)."

The meeting will be held on a Saturday late in January or early February, Larry Aggens, NIPC Public Service Officer, said.

Aggens said officials invited to the meeting will include representatives of municipalities, townships, counties, the state, federal government branches, special districts and the judiciary.

Also invited will be representatives of governmental agencies and private organizations which deal specifically with flooding such as the Metropolitan Sanitary District and the Corps of Engineers.

Aggens said the purpose of the meeting is to, "organize political leaders toward separating people and stormwater."

THE MEETING WILL deal with over-bank stormwater flooding, inadequate stormwater drainage (water in the basement), and stormwater shoreline erosion and flooding, Aggens said.

Emergency action to deal with flooding, short-term land acquisition and construction, and a long-term plan will all be considered, he said.

He told the NIPC committee that 11,000 public officials will be invited to the conference.

He suggested the meeting include a breakdown into regional groups to discuss common problems.

DURING DISCUSSION of the planned conference John Walsh, assistant director of the Illinois Department of Local Government Affairs, suggested the conference should be directed at areas which do not have working river basin steering committees.

Aggens said, however, the purpose of the conference was "more than just local action." He said NIPC is, "trying to build a mandate to action," for municipal officials and state legislators.

NIPC Executive Director Matthew L. Rockwell said he saw the conference as a "chance for area officials to express open space concern to the new governor."

Committee Chairman Jack Pahl said the committee would discuss the focus of the conference in more detail after a date is established which will be convenient to Walker.

Des Plaines To Consider $28 Million Hotel, Hall

Construction of a $28 million hotel-exposition center at Wille and Mount Prospect roads will come before the Des Plaines zoning board and city council soon.

Developers of the proposed project, which would require annexation of more 65 acres by the city, met with Mayor Herbert Behrel this week to discuss project plans.

Consideration of the annexation, which will require commercial zoning and a height variation for the hotel, is expected at the Jan. 9 zoning board of appeals meeting.

Behrel said they may discuss the project at an open, committee-of-the-whole meeting, before Jan. 9.

Developers of the project, which was announced May 8 by Behrel, may include an athletic stadium and theater in long-range project plans.

"This is a big project. We're trying to eliminate unnecessary delays," Behrel said Tuesday at his press conference. "I don't think we've got a project this big in the City of Des Plaines."

BEHREL SAID the annexation agreement is necessary "because they're going to build this over a five-year period. Some of us may not be around that long. They want to be sure that as long as they keep their end the city keeps its."

has said the exposition-hotel phase will be completed by January or February, 1974. Land for the project will be purchased from Greco Construction Co. around Jan. 2.

The project includes an $8 million exhibition hall, a $20 million hotel and parking for 6,500 cars.

Sales Promotion Mgr. George Furman told the Herald Wednesday that the developers can "pick from any one of five hotel chains. We're trying to pick the one that has the best management, exhibition background."

The exhibition hall is expected to draw sports and industrial shows to Des Plaines. The development company hopes to attract business exhibitors who do not need, or cannot book, McCormick Place in Chicago.

The proposed hall will total about 210,000 square feet. "One of the problems with shows of this type is storage. You need to store equipment from the show coming in, the show leaving and the show going on," Finnocchio has said.

The site is roughly triangular, bounded by Wille on the north, Mount Prospect on the east and a section of the tollway on the south. A large lake on the site recently was filled. The land is east of the planned Metropolitan Sanitary District plant at Oakton Street and Elmhurst Road.

Daley Plans To Enhance Lakefront

Mayor Richard J. Daley has unveiled a plan to halt further commercial development along Chicago's lakefront in favor of off-shore islands for recreation and wildlife sanctuaries.

The plan released Wednesday calls for a 20-year development period that would add 10 miles of beaches and a five-mile expansion of existing beaches.

The proposed plan, which did not include an estimate of costs, will be finalized after public hearings in January, Daley said.

The plan calls for a dozen off-shore islands, some accessible only by boat, to be built with landfill from the Loop subway and the Metropolitan Sanitary District.

The plan also calls for increasing personal safety in the park areas, improving water quality and ecological balance of Lake Michigan, increasing the diversity of recreation opportunities, designing the lakefront to prevent erosion and prohibiting any road of expressway standards to be built through the park.

State Sen. Robert Mann said he liked the plan, but would like to see it incorporated into a state lakefront plan which the city and state would develop jointly.

Do As They Say, Not As They Do

by STANLEY C. PLOG, Ph.D.
President, Behavior Science Corp. (BASICO), Los Angeles

America has been forged from the energy and creativity of individuals working for the betterment of themselves and others. But apparently it is only a small number of individuals who are really energetic and creative.

In this land of the free and home of the affluent, most of us are generally too apathetic to do much work for the social good. These are the conclusions growing out of research completed by Behavior Science Corporation (BASICO) on the issues and problems confronting America today.

The research consisted of a series of encounter-type discussion groups and 1,500 in person interviews with adults in major metropolitan areas throughout the United States. In addition, a self-administered questionnaire, covering more sensitive items, was completed by all respondents after their personal interviews. The research was conducted entirely with persons who have been identified as "middle America;" that is, individuals who have comfortable incomes (at least $9,000 a year family income or $7,500 a year single income).

The questionnaire, which participants completed in private, included several questions which measured social values. The answers reaffirm that Americans are in favor of good causes and generally want to help others. This can be seen in the following answers to specific questions:

PER CENT ANSWERING "YES"
Given a chance, would you like to do something of great benefit to the world?
... Men, 88, Women 82.

A Santa Is A Santa ...

ARKANSAS CITY, KAN. (UPI)—Merchants held their breath Wednesday when the first child climbed onto J. E. Morris' lap at the annual Chamber of Commerce Christmas festivities and momentarily looked at his face and salt-and-pepper beard.

The businessmen were worried about what the child, a little girl, might say when she noticed that Morris had a black skin.

Then the girl slowly scrutinized Morris' size 48 costume and 350-pound bulk. The only thing the tot could be heard to mumble was "he doesn't look the same as last year. He wears a different kind of hat."

Do you approve of the work being done with youth by the YMCA and the YWCA?
... Men, 88, Women 96.

Do you believe in federal and state support to education?
... Men, 88, Women, 92.

Do you believe that one has the right to worship as he chooses?
... Men, 100, Women 100.

MOST OF US — men and women — would like to help others — in theory anyway. We support the word of charity.

The Plog Report

table organizations (such as the "Y"), we want education supported by tax dollars — and we are unanimous in believing in freedom of worship.

But these are passive values. Our feelings about these questions do not demand action on our part. How much are we actually willing to work for the common good — to build a better America for the future? When the questions probed these specifics, a very different picture emerged.

We measured involvement by asking people whether or not they belonged to or participated in activities of any civic or community groups. Also, we were curious about what proportion of the population had any real ambitions, albeit unfulfilled, to become historically significant individuals through their own efforts. The results of a series of such questions and our discussion groups revealed that the overwhelming majority of people are not active in community affairs, even when these are broadly defined, such as PTA activities.

For example, only 16 per cent of interviewees attend meetings of their local school boards. Only 34 per cent belong to any civic groups or clubs. Women are somewhat more involved than men, possibly because they are usually drawn closer to the community through their children's activities but even their answers indicate a lack of commitment.

EVEN MORE surprising, perhaps, is the lack of any desire by most people to become "great" individuals by making worthwhile contributions to society. Most of us would apparently rather go our own way, content with our position in life, and let some other fellow work for the common good.

The encounter-type discussion groups provided further insight into the problem. In these discussions, the overwhelming majority of participants were critical of a variety of things they consider to be wrong with America today. But very few offered suggestions about what should be done to correct these faults. An even smaller number indicated they were actively doing anything to help.

Apathy and passivity were pervasive. Most of the participants felt there was very little they could do — perhaps that they have not, somehow, been given the chance to translate a general desire to help into action.

The BASICO research team came away with the feeling that we are a nation that has learned to get our action vicariously from the television set. We identify with the hero's struggles to survive and to build a better world. But our empathy is generally limited to the security of our living room, while sitting turned off and tuned out from real life in our favorite TV chair.

Studying In Europe

Lynn Offelt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Offelt, 2402 N. Lafayette, Arlington Heights, is studying special education systems in Europe as part of her curriculum in the Department of Special Education at Illinois State University. ## School Borders Should Stand

The High School Dist. 214 board of education began in August considering how to draw attendance boundaries for Buffalo Grove High School. Now that the board has made a decision, we believe it should stick with it.

The board began its discussions in August by setting up criteria to use in determining boundaries for the new school, which will open in Sept. 1973. It proceeded slowly and carefully, holding several well-attended public meetings before making the decision last month.

Now, however, the board is being asked by Buffalo Grove village officials and residents of the Cambridge, which is a part of Buffalo Grove, should be allowed to attend Buffalo Grove High School to further community unity and identity.

There are reasons to be sympathetic to the Cambridge residents. They are caught between two villages, Buffalo Grove and Wheeling, and two park districts. As they explain it they feel isolated and left out of everything.

However, we believe the Dist. 214 board had good reasons for not including them in the Buffalo Grove attendance area. Enrollment projections clearly indicate that, if Cambridge is included, enrollments in Buffalo Grove and Wheeling high schools will be seriously out of balance within four years.

The school board must consider the welfare of all the students in all the schools of the district. Overcrowding Buffalo Grove in the name of community identity while allowing Wheeling's enrollments to sink, thus raising per pupil cost (and cost to the taxpayer), would be irresponsible.

In addition, a suggestion by one Cambridge resident at a recent meeting that portions of Arlington Heights now assigned to Buffalo Grove be "traded" for Cambridge is impractical. If the Arlington Heights students are left at Hershey, where they now are, it will mean continued overcrowding at that long-overcrowded school.

If, on the other hand, the Arlington Heights students are transferred to Wheeling, that would mean, in addition to protests from that area, that the students would be bused past a school they would logically attend to go to one more distant. School districts wisely avoid that kind of situation unless they are forced into it.

We also believe the desire of the residents of Cambridge to be part of Buffalo Grove does not necessarily require them to attend Buffalo Grove High School. An area with citizens who are so vitally interested in their community identity to venture out in large numbers on a cold snowy night, certainly should be able to use some of their dedication to further their ties to the community in other ways.

In short, we appreciate the feelings of the Cambridge residents and we understand that they feel community identity is important in the all-too-often faceless suburbs.

However, community identity cannot be allowed in this case to supersede the educational needs of all the students in Dist. 214. The school board has considered the district as a whole and come up with the most equitable solution from an educational standpoint. It should stick by that.

A 'Heavy' Death

Gigi, the 42-pound tabby that the Guinness Book of Records listed as the heaviest domestic cat ever recorded, died recently at the age of 12.

Anne Clarke, who acquired Gigi when the cat was six weeks old, said:

"She went off her food last week and the veterinarian told me it was the beginning of the end. I had her put to sleep at the weekend."

"When Gigi was younger I used to take her out for walks on a leash to stop her from chasing dogs," recalls Miss Clark.

Local Park Vote Backed...

On December 16, you will be asked to determine the future of your park and recreation program.

As your representative to the Park Board, I am very concerned about the many repairs and improvements needed in the Arlington Heights Park District. I can only hope you, as a citizen, are aware of these needs.

According to an engineering study done by L. S. Hubbard and Associates, the Recreation Park Pool should not be opened next summer unless the entire filter system is replaced at a cost of $70,000. Over the years this pool, which was built in the 1930s, has been our most highly attended pool. Where will be absorb all of those who normally use this pool?

Although there are five Community Parks and 29 Neighborhood Parks well distributed throughout the district, there are still areas not being well served. Some areas such as Scarsdale and Park Manor have gone for years without adequate facilities. The proposed fieldhouse and game room at Dryden Park will provide a much needed park program in this neighborhood.

Other areas such as Northgate and Berkeley Square are newly developed and new parks are needed to serve them. The proposed Riley and Rand Berkeley Parks will give these people much needed recreational opportunities. It is hoped that those of you who received new parks and pools in 1968, will not sit back and say, "What's in it for me?" Many people who lived in areas that received nothing in 1968 went out and voted yes out of an interest in the entire community's needs. Now it is their needs that should be served.

The question most often asked in the past few weeks is: How can you justify spending $1,075,000 on a luxury item? The Sports Complex is a luxury just as our swimming pools are luxuries. The District has invested close to $2 million in five outdoor pools. There were 206,000 admissions to these pools last summer and they gave us a fine summer program. We would now like to turn our attention to the lack of good winter programs. Last winter, despite the excellent efforts of our maintenance crew, we were only able to provide you with about 20 days of skating at your local rink. This at a cost of $12,000. An artificial ice rink could give us a year-round facility that would not be subject to the whims of Mother Nature. Based on studies of other Park District rinks, we would have between 350,000 to 400,000 admissions to such a complex.

Critics don't question the wisdom of our investment in our pools simply because Park Districts have operated pools for a long time. Public pools opened up what used to be a "country club" activity to the average citizen. A public rink would do the same thing. The private facilities provide opportunities for indoor skating to the affluent few. The Park District would like to provide the opportunity to skate to every citizen regardless of his pocket book.

If you approve of this bond issue it is anticipated that all work would be completed by January 30, 1974, and after its first year of operation the Sports Complex will generate $50,000 above its operating and maintenance. This money can be used to lower taxes, offset fees or to subsidize our free general recreation program. It is hoped the facilities such as this complex will help to lower the annual deficit incurred by our administration and maintenance fund. The last time the rate was raised for these purposes was 1946 and we were serving a few thousand people.

If this referendum does nothing else, it has given us the opportunity to communicate with those we are serving. Don't let these channels close. Continue to tell us what you need and want to make your Parks better. We are after all, your board.

Commissioner
Arlington Heights

...By Park Commissioners

In response to questions about the Arlington Heights Park District park improvements referendum, Saturday, December 16, I would like to clarify several facts.

The Arlington Heights Park District has expanded its park facilities and recreation programs immensely in the last four years. Your tax rate for the Park District before the 1968 referendum was 35 cents; today, after building three outdoor swimming pools and one indoor swimming pool, the rate is 35 cents again! (Park District taxes up?)

When you think about it, how many people have begun to ice skate and play tennis in the last four or five years? The new concept in public park and recreation districts is to construct revenue producing facilities, because people demand revenue to eliminate possible increase in taxes for park purposes.

What is the first question that real estate salesmen are asked when people inquire about purchasing a home in Arlington Heights? Schools and parks. I think that an excellent park district versus an adequate park district is certainly justifiable when real estate values increase considerably for very few dollars' invested.

There are also several specific questions that have been asked during the past few weeks that I would like to clarify.

1. How much space will the Sports Complex require at Recreation Park? The building will be located on the paved area between the south edge of the swimming pool and the north edge of the ball diamonds. Yes, the small brick structure used by the Little League organization will be removed and space requirements included in the new Sports Complex building, for their needs.

2. Do residents understand what will be included in the Sports Complex layout? The facility will include an 85'x200' main skating rink, 50'x100' lesson rink, skate rental, skate sharpening and pro shop; plus concessions, mechanical and office areas. In addition, there is seating for 1,500 spectators for special events including ice shows and hockey tournaments.

3. What will the outside of the Sports Complex look like and how will the parking be handled?

The exterior walls will be face brick and brown metal accents. There will be parking for 150 cars off Douglas Street in addition to parking on the street, and Douglas Street will be improved.

4. Why was Recreation Park selected?

a. Central location.
b. Additional public parking nearby for large spectator events.
c. Land too expensive to buy and would double the cost.

d. Possibility of mini-bus public transportation to the central part of the village.

5. What is the program outlined for the Sports Complex?

The main skating rink, plus the smaller lesson rink, will provide distribution of prime time to all skating interests.

a. Public skating.
b. Instruction.
c. Hockey.
d. Moms and Tots.
e. Figure skating.

6. What does the elimination of three ball diamonds at Recreation Park do?

a. Eliminates hazardous playing conditions because the area is not large enough for more than one game.
b. Since the new Wilke-Kirchoff detention basin provides four new softball diamonds (two lighted) all men's softball league games played there will free other parks for Little League and/or unorganized play.

c. The Methodist Church area will provide three additional ball diamonds to serve the Recreation Park area.
If you have any questions, I would encourage you to call 253-0624 and within 24 hours your questions will be answered.

He Hits Urban Land Cost

All the uproar created by CAP is very interesting to read about and certainly fires the anti-Cullerton movement more. To have everyone pay his lawful share is only right and I am sure that CAP is acting in its own best interest.

The lands they charge are legally under-assessed, I do not challenge. That is for the courts to decide. I would, instead, like to look at another perspective. What is the land used for? If it is indeed used for some commercial aspect of a business, such as a store parking lot, then perhaps it should be treated as business land. But what about acres of lawn and trees?

One of the great problems of Chicago is the value of land relative to one's ability to buy a square foot of it and afford the taxes. Land cost is so high it has packed people in like sardines. Look at all the resulting psychological and emotional problems from high density.

If we place too high a value on open land for taxing purposes, will not the eventual result be denser construction and a further urban squeeze? I wonder if maybe our legislators would do well to give a tax break on real estate used as undeveloped non-revenue producing open land (Re: companies that have vast lawns and gardens). Why not tax such non-revenue producing open land disproportionately low?

The actions of CAP on taxation of open land will certainly find some of the money necessary for their own next pay raise. But the urban development resulting 20 or 30 years from now could be a psychological hell to pay.

Politicians Earn Special Gifts

by ROGER CAPETTINI
Metropolitan Editor

Just in case you're wandering around with a lot of useless cash in your pocket for Christmas gifts, here's a suggested gift guide for those men who have everything and even for some who don't. For example, you could give:

COUNTY ASSESSOR P. J. CULLERTON a special version of Monopoly in which Park Place and Boardwalk cost one-third the amount of Baltic and Mediterranean avenues. The owner of the game gets to pass "Go" twice as often as everyone else, but if he gets sent to jail the game is over.

COUNTY CLERK EDWARD BARRETT a change of venue so he won't have to commute daily from his Palm Springs, Fla., home to his trial in Chicago's Federal Building.

Now STATE'S ATTORNEY BERNARD CAREY a giant can of "Raid" to clean the bugs out of his offices.

JAMES GAUGHAN and THOMAS BECK, the dynamic duo of the county comptroller's office, a joint checking account and a bicycle built for two, so they both can play comptroller at the same time.

COUNTY COMMISSIONER MATHEW BIESZCZAT a dictionary of vulgar phrases so that when protestors from the Citizen's Action Program appear at the county board he won't be limited to calling them "smart asses."

WILLIAM JASKULA, recently elected to the board of the Metropolitan Sanitary District, a copy of the Chicago Underflow Plan — a proposal Jaskula said he had never heard of a few days prior to his election.

CIRCUIT COURT CLERK MATTHEW DANAHER two tin cans and a long piece of string so he'll never be out of contact with his assistant Peter Deuel, the man with all the answers. A second choice would be the right to establish another Scofflaws Court, this one dealing with scoffing politicians instead of traffic violators.

FORMER STATE'S ATTY. EDWARD V. HANRAHAN a Liberate home-study course in how to play "Chopsticks" and a promise from this reporter not to write any more, "lousy, lousy, lousy — with three Ls — stories," about him at least until he runs for office again.

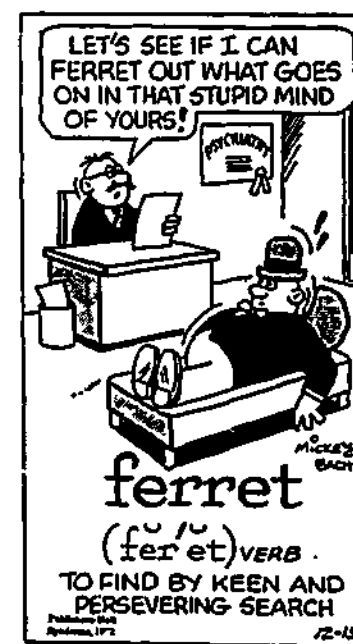

RICHARD KISSEL, former prime mover behind the Illinois Pollution Control Board, a special permit to burn his 900-page report on assessing practices in Cook County before it is distributed through washrooms in the County Building.

CORONER DR. ANDREW J. TOMAN a "self destruct" button to use on his office in case the four years he has to abolish the office runs out and he still has done nothing.

COUNTY BOARD PRES. GEORGE W. DUNNE free lessons on how to draw up a tax ordinance which will be held constitutional and a "sex tax" in unincorporated areas to solve all the county's financial problems.

EDWARD LONG, WALTER RHODES, BOB ELSON and BERNARD CAREY (not the state's attorney), all standouts on the Illinois Racing Board, snowsuits with "Balmoral Jockey Club" printed on the back and handwarmers for opening day ceremonies at Arlington Park.

Word A Day

Business Today

by DEAN C. MILLER

NEW YORK (UPI)—Vitamin sales in the United States are at record levels because Americans attribute almost miraculous powers to vitamins.

Vitamin C, according to Linus Pauling, a Nobel Prize winner in chemistry and peace, can beat the common cold if used in massive doses.

Vitamin E is touted as everything from protection against air pollution to sex stimulant.

Then there are those thousands of Americans who automatically use vitamins as health supplements.

WHATEVER THE reasons, more Americans are buying vitamins today than at any other time in the 60-year history of vitamins.

In 1971, more than $357 million worth of vitamins were bought at retail over the counter or by prescription. That was 11 per cent more than the year before and 30.2 per cent more than 1966. Industry sources expect 1972 to set a new record.

Melvin Zahn, president of Louis Zahn Drug Co., Chicago, the largest independent drug wholesaler in the country, believes "nature freaks" and "health nuts" helped accelerate the vitamin boom.

"The emphasis by nature freaks on organic foods and nutritional values caused people to be more attuned to vitamin supplements than ever," said Zahn. He estimated that three out of every four U.S. households have at least one person taking vitamins, or about 50 million people.

Zahn said his firm has trouble keeping up with the demand for Vitamin E. Actually, the Vitamin E had started about a decade ago with wheat germ. Aside from wheat germ, E is found in leafy vegetables, whole grain cereals, cotton seeds, vegetable oils — and many, many drug stores and discount houses.

WHISPERERS HAVE it that E is a super vitamin. E, it is said, is a fertility drug that increases sperm count, is helpful in menopause and can prevent habitual abortion and congenitally deformed babies. These are just a few of the claims.

John G. Bieri of the Laboratory of Nutrition and Endocrinology with the National Institute of Health in Bethesda, Md., said "this folklore" about vitamin E is "99 per cent wishful thinking."

That seems to be the professional opinion about Vitamin C as killer of the common cold. Medical Letters, a publication by Drug & Therapeutic Information, Inc., said Pauling's contention that Vitamin C can eliminate the common cold "cannot be lightly dismissed." But, added the respected publication, "examination of evidence as presented in his book provides little reason for accepting them."

Other medical sources warn that large doses of Vitamin C should be avoided by patients with a tendency to gout and to the formation of urate and kidney stones. Some specialists suspect that excessive Vitamin C during pregnancy may make that offspring prone to scurvy.

Pauling has insisted his theory is valid. He has suggested that the $300 million per year cold remedy business may be trying to discredit him.

Charitable Deduction Under Question

The charitable deduction, for more than half a century a feature of the Internal Revenue Code, recently became the object of sharp public questioning, to a point where its continued existence may be in doubt. This is the opinion of Alan Pifer, president of Carnegie Corp. of New York, in the foundation's 1972 annual report.

He warned that "those who believe that this feature of the income tax represents sound public policy must look to its defense, or it may well be allowed to lapse in some future round of tax reform."

The issue, Pifer said is the need to reaffirm the nation's long-standing tradition of private initiative for the public good. If this "crucial idea" should continue to lose vitality and eventually disappear, "much that is of the highest value, not just to the very few, but to all Americans, would be lost with it."

As one step toward revitalizing this concept in American life, Pifer proposed changes in the existing charitable deduction provisions to "make them more equitable for all taxpayers . . . to enable the support of charitable organizations to become a more democratic affair."

Under present law, any taxpayer who itemizes deductions on his federal income tax return is allowed to subtract from his taxable income the amount of his charitable donations up to one half of his income. The marginal tax rate for salary and wage income now ranges from a low of 14 per cent to a high of 50 per cent; for "unearned" income, it goes as high as 70 per cent.

"ANOTHER WAY to portray this," said Pifer, "is to say that the government subsidizes 14 per cent of a poor man's giving, 70 per cent of a rich man's, and somewhere in between for the others." For those not choosing to itemize deductions on their tax returns — and this includes the majority of low and middle income taxpayers — an unspecified allowance for charitable donations is presumably included in the standard deduction.

The plan for revision put forward by Pifer as one possibility to stimulate public discussion would allow every taxpayer, whether or not he itemizes and whatever his tax bracket, to be treated as if he were in the highest, or 50 per cent, marginal bracket for salary and wage income for purposes of his charitable contributions.

"The effect of this, obviously, would be to give every taxpayer a 50 per cent tax credit for his charitable donations. A person giving $200 would, for example, get $100 automatically knocked off his tax bill . . . This would be entered on the tax return as a tax credit after all other computations had been made, although in spirit it would remain a deduction and would have to be supported by . . . an itemized list of contributions.

Cigaret Production Increasing Again

WASHINGTON (UPI) — With per capita cigarette smoking by Americans up for the second year, total U.S. cigarette production will rise 4 per cent to a new record in 1972 and likely will increase another 2 to 4 per cent next year, the Agriculture Department said.

Officials added in a report, however, that the 1972 figures — while up from 1971 — are about 1 per cent below the levels forecast in an Agriculture Department report for 1972 last September.

The new report said per capita cigarette use by Americans aged 18 and over would raise this year to 4,050 cigarettes, or 202.5 packs per person. This would be up about 1 per cent, two packs, from the 4,010 figure for 1971. It is up four packs per person, from 1970 when per capita use "bottomed out" after a long decline spurred by reports linking cigarettes to cancer and other disease.

THE REPORT also estimated total 1972 cigarette production at 601 billion "pieces," a record high, compared with 576.4 billion in 1971. Experts said total consumption by U.S. smokers would reach a record 580 billion cigarettes compared with 550.4 billion last year.

Next year's figures will rise because of increased population growth in heavy-smoking age brackets, continued income gains for consumers, a decline in anti-smoking commercials, economists predicted.

The new 1972 per capita use estimate, the highest since 1968, left per capita use below the 4,000 level predicted earlier for 1972. But experts believe 1973 may bring a further 1 per cent gain, lifting the figure to about 204.6 packs per person, or 4,091 cigarettes.

The per capita figures do not indicate how much an average individual smokes, since they cover both smokers and non-smokers in the over-18 population. Changes in per capita consumption can come either from more cigarette use by the average smoker or a drop in the percentage of non-smokers.

Personal Finance

by CARLTON SMITH

"Stay out of metal buildings during a thunderstorm." True or false?

American folklore is rich in prescriptions for protecting life, limb and property during thunder-and-lightning storms, tornadoes and other forms of atmospheric violence. Do you stay in your car, or get out of the car? Are you safer near a wall, or away from the walls? Folklore doesn't always agree — or speak the truth.

If you went looking for some top experts in this field, you might well find yourself talking to GAB — the General Adjustment Bureau.

To handle insurance adjustments in the wake of disasters and catastrophes, it maintains a staff of more than 3,000 trained adjusters and specialists. A GAB crisis squad of 400 is on constant alert, all ready to fly to any part of the country. GAB "catastrophe teams" move into hurricane areas even before the storm strikes.

HERE ARE some of the facts — not folklore — offered by GAB that can help minimize damage and injury during violent storms:

Travel is always dangerous. It's best to remain indoors. But if you're caught out in a car during an electrical storm, stay there. It's one of your safer places because metal conducts electricity.

For the same reasons, take shelter if you can in a large metal building. Brick and wood structures, as nonconductors of electricity, receive the most damage.

If no such shelter is available, seek low ground and stay down — in a ditch, if one is handy. Or crouch in the open, away from and lower than nearby objects. Stay away from places likely to attract lightning — hilltops, lone trees or isolated buildings (A clump of trees is relatively safe.)

If you're in your own home, it's probably safe — but stay away from open windows, doors, fireplaces, sinks, and plug-in appliances.

METAL OBJECTS can serve as lightning rods and cause death if touched. This includes golf clubs, fishing rods, even spiked golf shoes. Avoid especially pipes, radiators, stoves and, out of doors, any metal equipment that's in contact with the ground.

Stay out of water, or get out if possible — whether in a bathtub or a small boat.

THIS GAB UP could be a lifesaver: If your skin tingles or your hair stands up — fall to the earth. Lightning may be about to strike.

The tornado is one of the most violent and destructive of all weather phenomena, but any storm with winds of 50 miles an hour or more is rated "severe." Protective measures:

In tornadoes, "there is only one life-saving measure — instant shelter, preferably below ground level and away from windows."

While storm cellars and caves are your best protection, there should be an air outlet to equalize pressure.

If you take shelter in a building, stand against an interior wall on the lowest floor. The top of a building almost always goes first. Avoid gymnasiums, auditoriums, theaters and other buildings with large-area roofs, which may collapse.

Illinois Bell Considers Cutting Rates For Elderly

Telephone users may welcome the news that Illinois Bell Telephone Co. is considering a proposal of reduced rates for senior citizens. An additional piece of good news for the holiday season is that higher long distance telephone rates slated to go into effect within the next week can be avoided by most individual customers.

Following a meeting early this week with the Senior Citizens Coalition of the Citizens Action Program (CAP), Bell representatives said the company will explore the rate cut proposals for elderly customers. The CAP spokesman had requested a 50 per cent decrease in basic service rates.

"We know all too well the damage that continuing inflation can do to the budget of people living on a fixed income," a Bell spokesman said. "Illinois Bell is not a do-nothing company. We plan to continue to meet with representatives of senior citizen groups and to do our best to be responsive to their problems."

CAP representatives said there are 611,000 households in the state headed by senior citizens. A reduction of 50 per cent in basic service rates for persons over 65 years of age would cost the utility $22 million a year, CAP contends.

The Federal Communications Commission (FCC) on Nov. 22 approved rate increases for American Telephone & Telegraph (AT&T) customers. The authorized net increase would bring in an additional $145 million a year for AT&T.

A Dec. 22 deadline is set for the specific rate change announcement for interstate calls, reflecting higher labor and equipment costs. The rate increases will primarily affect business customers, according to a utility spokesman. No increases are planned for customer-dialed interstate calls or customer calls in evening and weekend hours. Increases will represent about a 2 per cent rise in rates, and will be below 1953 service rate levels.

Truant, Expelled Pupils Need Help: Witnesses

by WANDALYN RICE

Two district viewpoints emerged this week at hearings conducted by Cook County School Supt. Richard Martwick into the problems of truant and expelled students in suburban schools.

On one hand witnesses, including a probation officer and attorneys, attacked "inactivity" of school administrators to the problems causing students to skip school and misbehave.

On the other side, witnesses pointed to failures of parents to control their children and provide them with the proper attitudes toward school.

Witnesses on both sides in the two days of hearings, however, agreed that schools must try to provide alternatives for students who don't get along in school.

THE HEARINGS were called by Martwick to explore the problems of truancy and expulsion with an eye toward formulating a program that might result in new legislation. A report of findings will be issued later.

One witness, Marvin Roelofs, a probation supervisor for the Cook County Juvenile Court, brought up points that were often repeated by other witnesses. Roelofs charged that school administrators make schools into "prison systems" with rules and overuse suspension and expulsion in dealing with children.

"In far too many of the suburban school districts," Roelofs said, "there is a violation of the compulsory school attendance law by school officials." He added, "The juvenile court has begun to take steps to invite or subpoena school administrators to explain why students are not in school and what they are doing about it."

Roelofs was supported by attorneys William London and Patrick Keenan, who represent students in expulsion cases before school boards.

"Expulsion is a neat solution that appeals to many school boards, but it is also becoming more difficult and expensive because of lawyers like me," London said. "Schools are starting to use more underhanded methods of getting rid of students by telling the parents to voluntarily withdraw the child."

JOHN AURAND, a representative of the Illinois Education Association (IEA), said he believed three steps could be taken toward improving truancy and expulsion rates. He said the law regarding due process and student rights must be explained to educators, alternative education programs must be established for truants and law enforcement must be improved.

Aurand explained that improved law enforcement is necessary because "as a teacher I continuously had problems with parental responsibility in regard to truancy, drug use and other things. I feel when the parents don't wish to cooperate or even show up we should use law enforcement."

Donatta Yates, attendance officer at Eisenhower High School in south suburban Worth, told the hearing officials she differs sharply with those who charged that school officials are insensitive to students.

"That's nutsey" Miss Yates said, adding, "It is of no more benefit to the schools to continue to beat administrators for their failures than it is to beat the recalcitrant child over the head. We may be misguided but we're not insensitive."

Miss Yates said that in the two years she has been at the high school the number of absences, and thus truancy, has been cut from 25 to 28 per cent each day to 7 to 8 per cent.

AT EISENHOWER, she said, "The emphasis is to get kids to come to school to get something for themselves, not to fulfill any requirement."

Several school administrators, in describing some programs they would like to implement to help students, explained that financial problems sometimes stand in their way.

Jack Newmiller, a principal in Coolidge Junior High School in Dist. 151 serving South Holland and Phoenix, said he wants to start a program of "in-school suspensions" where students could be assigned to one teacher for a certain length of time instead of being sent home for misbehavior.

Nutritionist: Diet Aids Are Like Snake Oil

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A nutrition expert today described fad diets and over-the-counter reducing aids as "a snake oil type of industry" that misleads millions of Americans who want to get slim to be sexy.

"The fact is that none of these methods works for very long," Dr. Jean Mayer told a Senate subcommittee hearing. "I like to call it the rhythm method of girth control."

Mayer, a nutrition professor at Harvard who is a frequent government consultant, said nothing but sensible diets and exercise is going to peel off pounds, no matter what manufacturers of reducing aids and authors of fad diets contend.

"I don't see that any of them have any use whatsoever," Mayer said. "This is a snake oil type of industry of absolutely no value whatsoever."

"The primary motivation for weight loss is a cosmetic one, rather than a health one." The great majority of those who seek to reduce want to be more attractive to the opposite sex in one month more than they are worried about the possibility of developing diabetes in 20 or 25 years."

Prospect Heights' Paul Lindstrom

Viet Prisoners In China: Pastor

REV. PAUL LINDSTROM: "Hong Kong sources suggested that...the North Vietnamese...are not planning on releasing all of our prisoners."

The Rev. Paul Lindstrom, the ultra-conservative minister from Prospect Heights, said in Honolulu this week dozens of American prisoners of war have been transferred from North Vietnam to detention camps inside Communist China.

Lindstrom, pastor of the Church of Christian Liberty in Prospect Heights and chairman of the Remember the Pueblo Committee, made the charge while speaking to newsmen Wednesday prior to boarding a flight to Chicago.

He said he learned in Hong Kong, "from Chinese sources that U.S. prisoners of war have been transferred by the Pathet Lao (the Cambodian version of the Viet Cong) and the North Vietnamese into Communist China."

Lindstrom said his reliable sources told him "as many as 73 Air Force personnel have been transferred over the past 14 months," to several detention sites in China. He said he did not learn why the transfers were made, but added, "The Hong Kong sources suggested the possibility that the North Vietnamese and the Pathet Lao are not planning on releasing all of our prisoners and have moved some into safekeeping in Red China."

Lindstrom was not available for further comment yesterday.

When asked about the reliability of his sources, Lindstrom said, "They supplied the information which turned out to be true," citing the Pueblo Committee's release of the correct date prisoners from the Pueblo were to be freed by the North Koreans.

St. Viator Elects High School Forum

A recently elected Parent-Faculty-Student Forum will advise St. Viator High School officials on some policy decisions for the remainder of the 1972-73 school year.

Brother Leo V. Ryan, CSV, school president, said "school administrators are looking forward to working with forum members and plan to ask their advice on a wide range of present and future policy decisions. By sharing in decision-making, the forum will contribute to mutual understanding and to the personal growth of everyone concerned."

The forum is composed of seven parents of St. Viator pupils, seven members of the faculty and seven students. Many parents offered to serve on the forum, and ballots were sent to all parents this fall. The results of the tally showed that Arlington Heights residents Paul Bruck, Frank McAleer, Dolores White and Edward Traxler Jr. and Mount Prospect residents Mikred Halas, Bernard Pierco and Larry Ostling were elected to the forum.

FACULTY MEMBERS on the forum, elected by the faculty, are Brother David Erbach, CSV, history teacher and basketball coach; John Erford, English teacher and basketball coach; The Rev. Robert Erickson, CSV, mathematics; Ted Kane, history; Sheila King, religion; Jim Lyne, head football coach and Ken Peck, mathematics and history teacher and cross-country coach.

Representing the student body are Craig Ameel, Dave Hutcheson, Bill Kastner, Mike Mooney and Tom Murphy of Arlington Heights, Bob Camel of Palatine and Kurt Heerdegen of Des Plaines. The student members on the forum were elected by St. Viator pupils.

At an organizational meeting this month, the group agreed to meet on the first Tuesday of each month. Parents on the forum encourage all parents of St. Viator students to contact them with suggestions of discussion topics.

St. Viator, a Catholic high school for boys, serves 1,100 students living throughout the Northwest suburbs.

Yule Activities Scheduled At St. Viator High

Several Christmas activities are planned at St. Viator High School in Arlington Heights this year.

The student activities council is sponsoring a food drive for St. Joseph's Home for the Elderly. The film "Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid" will be shown at the school Friday evening for St. Viator students. The admission price includes food items which will be delivered to the Home for the Elderly in Palatine before Christmas.

Members of the student activities council are Kurt Trooster and Steve Polizzi of Mount Prospect, Dick Hollar of Arlington Heights and Chris Deger of Palatine.

On Monday the St. Viator band, under the direction of Richard Cullen, will perform at the school with Christmas music highlighting the program. Senior Dave Richter of Mount Prospect is band president this year.

On Tuesday the chorale from Taft High School in Chicago will present a Christmas program under the direction of J. J. Stamm of Palatine. Stamm has also directed several of St. Viator's annual musical plays and is now working with students for a presentation of "Damn Yankees" in February.

Members of the St. Viator swimming team and coach John Fleck will celebrate part of the Christmas vacation at the Swimming Hall of Fame in Ft. Lauderdale, Florida. Fleck will attend a coaches' clinic, and the students will have the use of a 50-meter outdoor pool.

Christmas Seals Cover World

by DAVE MAHSMAN
Question: What's brightly colored and a Christmas tradition all over the world? (Clue: It's not Santa Claus.) Answer: Christmas Seals.

It's true. America has no monopoly on Christmas Seals. We didn't even originate the idea.

Visitors to the lobby of the Arlington Park Towers Hotel this month will have an opportunity to see colorful Christmas Seals from more than 40 of the 94 foreign countries that belong to the International Union Against Tuberculosis. This special exhibit on loan from the Chicago Lung Association (CLA), and the local Christmas Seal agency, reflects the global efforts against TB and other respiratory diseases, says a CLA spokesman.

The first American Christmas Seal was used in 1907 when Emily Bissell, a Red Cross worker from Wilmington, Del., was asked to raise $300 to support a tiny TB treatment center for adults. Success. She raised $3,000.

MISS BISSELL has designed a simple seal bearing the Red Cross emblem. The Red Cross continued to sponsor Christmas Seals until 1920, when the National Tuberculosis Association took over.

Even though the United States first issued seals 65 years ago, the honors for originating the idea goes to Denmark. Einar Holboell, a Danish postal clerk, got the idea of issuing a stamp to raise funds to build a children's TB hospital. The king liked the idea, and the first Christmas Seal came out showing the head of Queen Louise. That was in 1904.

TB was as common as measles in 1904. And it carried a stigma second only to leprosy, says the CLA. There were no TB hospitals or sanitariums, and doctors didn't know what caused the disease or how to treat it. Hundreds of thousands died of TB annually.

But with the success of the first Christmas Seal, other nations quickly followed suit. Sweden, Norway, then other European nations started issuing seals of their own. In a generation, Christmas Seals were being issued around the world.

Each Christmas Seal reflects the art and culture of the country it represents. Seals from Moslem nations often depict a double-barred crescent instead of the familiar double-barred cross, the international anti-TB symbol. Some countries honor scientists and doctors on their Christmas Seals, while others pay tribute to their religions and life in their country.

IN THE UNITED STATES, of course, Christmas Seals are decorative. But in some countries, they can be used for postage. Switzerland issues special greeting cards which may be used throughout the year.

A direct result of the Christmas Seal success story was the formation of the International Union Against Tuberculosis in 1922. Hospitals and sanitariums have been built around the world since. And the union's seals have helped provide for TB detection programs and education for the public and professionals, says the CLA.

In spite of these services and new drugs, the CLA says the fight against TB continues in many countries. Death tolls and new cases have been cut, but the problem is not completely solved.

In recent years, however, Christmas Seal work in Chicago and Cook County has broadened the battle to fight all lung diseases — especially emphysema, chronic bronchitis and asthma. The CLA also directs its efforts to combat air pollution and cigarette smoking.

So the CLA is no longer simply the Tuberculosis Institute of Chicago and Cook County. But they are still the Christmas Seal people.

CHRISTMAS SEALS are known around the world even though their forms vary slightly from country to country. A display in the Arlington Park Towers Hotel lobby tells Fran O'Connor and other visitors what kind of seals to look for on foreign cards this year.

Airlines Or Federal Government?

Anti-Hijacking: Whose Responsibility?

by ROBERT F. BUCKHORN
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Whose responsibility is it to protect the airline passenger against hijacking — the government or the airline industry?

A few days ago, Transportation Sec. John A. Volpe announced a tough new anti-hijacking program designed to close loopholes in the airline security network. He said the airline industry must:

—Inspect all carry-on luggage.
—Post armed guards at every airport boarding gate.
—Scan every passenger with a metal detector.

But he made two other points which have triggered controversy over the future of the program.

ACCORDING TO VOLPE, the airline industry must pay the cost of the program. Once it is in full operation, the government will withdraw its 1,500-man force now helping to police major airports.

Critics charge the program is a device for the government to evade a responsibility that is rightfully its own while leading the flying public to think that it is being protected by the full power of the federal government.

The National League of Cities and the U.S. Conference of Mayors attacked the plan to make airport operations and local governments provide armed guards at airport boarding gates.

"This function of protecting passengers from terrorists and political refugees is uniquely a federal obligation and cannot be effectively delegated to a local government," the groups argued.

THE AIR TRANSPORT Association (ATA) a trade organization representing the major airlines, said the carriers feel "the law enforcement officials should be federal rather than local in order to achieve the necessary uniformity and responsiveness and to properly enforce the federal laws being violated by hijackers."

Volpe disagreed. The administration is equipping airports with more than 2,000 metal detection devices to aid the program, but he asserted, "The responsibility for initiating and managing these security programs will fall on the airlines and airport operators."

The Airport Operators Council International estimates 4,000 guards will be required to police the airports and says the cost could run as high as $100 million.

But Volpe said he expects the airline industry to get the money back from fare increases. "It is our position that the costs should be recovered from the traveling public," he said.

"There is nothing unusual about the placement of this responsibility except that it is now to aviation," Davis pointed out. "Banks provide their own guards and facilities for protecting themselves against robberies and the local communities provide the back-up law enforcement force."

CRITICS ARGUE that the major flaw in the government program is that the responsibility for carrying it out is fragmented — that the airlines, the airport operators, and local governments all must work together to make it effective and this triangle leaves a wide margin for errors.

The more obvious solution, the critics claim, would have been establishment of a federal agency with the single task of operating the anti-hijacking program.

The airlines are expected to push hard for this in the new Congress.

Under the administration plan, the government is shunting the responsibility for the passengers safety to the airlines, and making the passenger himself pay the cost while it does very little to stop hijacking, the critics argue.

English Language Classes Offered

A Laubach Literacy School is opening in January for people in the Northwest suburbs wanting free tutoring in English as a second language.

The volunteer service features tutors who are trained to work with one student at a time. There are currently openings for 15 students in the program.

Classes will begin Jan. 8 at Christ Lutheran Church, 41 S. Rohlwing Rd., Palatine. Morning sessions will be on Monday and Friday from 9:30 to 11 a.m., and evening sessions will be held from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. on Mondays and Wednesdays. A book fee of $1.25 will be necessary.

People interested in learning to speak, read and write English may contact Mrs. Curtis Dahlstrom at 359-5689 now. Volunteers wanting to participate in the program should also call Mrs. Dahlstrom.

The program was developed by missionary Frank Laubach while he was in foreign missions trying to communicate without a common language. The method claims to give an illiterate person an upper grade language ability in two years, and to show improvement after a few months of tutoring.

Castro Seeks U.S.-Cuba Airline Skyjack Accord

by MARTIN McREYNOLDS
MIAMI (UPI) — Cuban Premier Fidel Castro said Wednesday his government is serious about seeking agreement with the United States on handling airline hijackers, but is not interested in improving over-all relations between the two countries.

In a speech broadcast by Radio Havana and monitored in Miami, Castro said the U.S. economic blockade of Cuba would have to be lifted unconditionally before his government even considers talking about better relations with Washington.

"We are discussing a solution to the problem of the airplanes, a problem of the airlines, a problem that worries the entire international community, and we will seriously try to find a solution for this problem," Castro said.

"But no one should think for a moment that we want conciliation with Yankee imperialism. Mr. Nixon has said he will not change his position on Cuba. What do we care what Mr. Nixon thinks in that arch-reactionary and fascist brain of his?"

"THERE CAN be no talks between the blockaders and the blockaded," Castro said. The current anti-hijack talks are being conducted by Cuban officials and the Swiss Embassy in Havana, representing the United States.

Castro spoke at a farewell rally in Havana's Plaza de la Revolution honoring visiting Chilean President Salvador Allende, who also addressed the mass gathering.

Allende was scheduled to return to Chile yesterday via Caracas, Venezuela, ending a trip that included visits to Peru, Mexico, the United Nations, Algeria and the Soviet Union.

Castro devoted much of his speech to praising Allende as a fellow-Marxist struggling against the forces of imperialism in his attempt to build a socialist society in Chile.

The Cuban premier suggested that every Cuban donate at least a half-pound of his individual monthly sugar ration to the people of Chile. He said this would make it possible to send 40,000 tons of free sugar to the South American nation.

Most Cubans currently have a monthly sugar ration of four pounds, reduced in February of this year from six pounds due to a disappointing sugar harvest and the need to meet export quotas. The 40,000-ton figure mentioned by Castro would indicate Cubans would have their sugar ration reduced for another year in order to help Chile.

Studying School Financing

Tax Reforms Get Attention Of Panel

by RAYMOND LAHR
WASHINGTON (UPI) — A commission representing federal, state and local governments has voted to advise President Nixon that the states should retain primary responsibility for property tax relief policy and for equalizing school finances within each state.

It was the first vote taken by the Advisory Commission on Intergovernmental Relations, which was asked by Nixon last January to study school finance reform, particularly a value added tax, as a substitute for property taxes. The recommendation was approved by voice vote after two hours of discussion.

A commission staff report said home owners generally were not overburdened by residential property taxes except in some states.

JOHN SHANNON, assistant director of the commission's staff in charge of school study, said New York, Wisconsin and Vermont were among states where the tax situation was tight.

He acknowledged that a survey taken for the commission showed property taxes were regarded as the least fair of all levies but said many protesting home owners were objecting to what was a tax on "unrealized capital gains" in the value of a house they had no intention of selling.

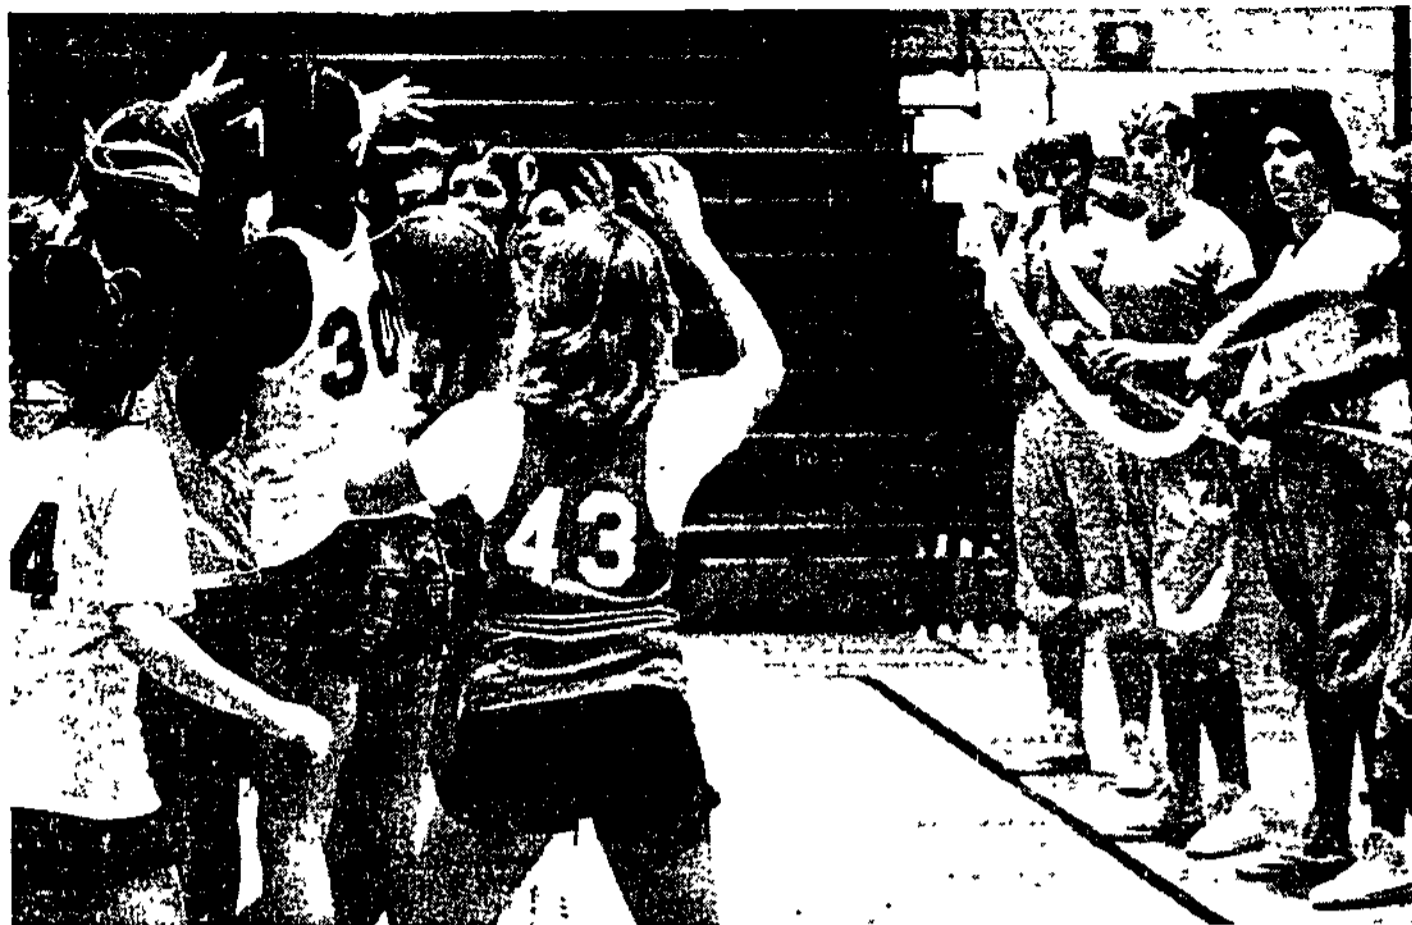

Commission disapproval of the value-added tax was expected at its meeting running through yesterday and possibly into today.

The administration already has indicated that it is no longer interested in such a levy, although Nixon still would like to see property taxes on homes and apartments cut in half. In an Oct. 5 news conference, he said any such goal could be reached only in steps and that property tax relief for the elderly should get first priority.

EARLIER REPORTS from the advisory commission have urged that state governments take over most of the cost of public schools. A similar recommendation came March 3 from the President's special commission on school financing.

RECENT COURT decisions may drive the states in that direction. These courts have held that school financing, relying mostly on property taxes, results in inequality between wealthy and low-income areas.

The National Governors' Conference opposed a value-added tax at its June meeting. Both it and the National Legislative Conference, representing all members of state legislatures, have asked for more federal aid without strings for schools.

THE CHEERLEADERS were beautiful (right) and the action was fierce in the powder puff basketball game Saturday night at Hershey High School. Final score in the close-fought battle was 14-12 in favor of the school's cheerleaders. The defeated opponent was the school's orchids dance troupe and half-time entertainment was provided by a group of male majorettes.

First Aid Kits, Hard Hats Replace School Supplies

by W. ROBERT WELLEN
HELENA, Mont. (UPI) — Long Johns, first-aid kits and hard hats have replaced more conventional school materials for 41 Helena High School students.

The students are enrolled in Project 180, which sponsors say is the first full school-year outdoor environmental education course.

Teachers Terry Beaver and John Gnechko say their students, all sophomores, will need an impressive array of outdoor gear because their 180-day school year is spent entirely out of doors.

Since the school year began, the class has built small log cabins near Priests Pass along the Continental Divide 15 miles west of Helena and fought a wild fire.

Later this year the students will learn how to fish and hunt, study snow, soil and mapping, and work with the Montana Fish and Game Department in transplanting wild turkeys near Priests Pass.

They also will study logging, ecology, reforestation and dam construction, Beaver says.

UPON FINISHING the program, each student will get 15 high school credits, 10 each in science, math, English, social studies and art, and five credits in physical education.

State school officials say programs such as this one aren't intended to be vocational education, but Beaver says the course may help keep some students in school who would otherwise drop out.

"This is a select group, the kids were very much disenchanted with conventional school. They have expressed dependency towards school and we are trying to reenthuse them," Beaver said. "At this point it's not particularly important whether they learn any phase of math, or science or English. It's more important that they continue in the learning process and return to conventional school work as juniors and seniors."

Beaver has been working for a program like this for three years but this year he put it all together with the help of school officials, Model City personnel and various environmental agencies.

MODEL CITY and the school district came up with money for the course's bus and truck. Beaver said except for those, the project costs no more than a regular school course.

The Helena National Forest provided 4,000 acres of diversified forest land, the east basin of Priests Pass, where the class works.

Several other governmental agencies have promised to supply equipment, manpower and resources.

Beaver, who has taught biology at Helena High School for six years and Gnechko, who holds a master's degree in outdoor education, say their students will choose an occupational specialty later on in the program.

If they show enough enthusiasm, professional guidance will be sought for them, Beaver added.

Beaver said Project 180 is not a complete answer for the drop out problem, "But I think it's really working. There are kids out there involved in the education process who haven't been involved for a number of years."

Has Earthquake Been Rescheduled?

by RICHARD M. HARNETT
SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Vicki Settles wishes she had the money to rent a helicopter for a few hours the morning of Jan. 4. She thinks she might witness the destruction of San Francisco in a great earthquake.

Word is filtering through this quake-conscious city that the date has been set — again — for that cataclysmic shock that the experts say is due — sometime. But experts also say no one can forecast a quake.

Residents of some communes where many of the "hip" people now live, are getting their rusty vans ready for a trek to safer ground.

Vicki, however, is not a commune dweller. She is a clerk who works in the financial district, on the 28th floor of one of the many skyscrapers that she fears may come tumbling down precisely at 9 a.m. on the fourth day of the year 1973.

VICKI AND a half-dozen of her co-workers are planning to be out of town. They have passed the word in their building and say a lot of people don't take it quite seriously enough to leave. "But a lot of them will be late for work — if the quake does not happen," she says.

"Look," says the young office workers, "If we were up here when it happened and we didn't know, we couldn't do anything about it. But when somebody tells me just when it's going to happen, I'm going to get away."

"My mother is going to L.A.," she adds.

Word about the predicted quake has been passed by the "alternative" press and radio stations. It has not yet been acknowledged by the scientific community.

THE LAST such exercise in earthquake countdown occurred in 1969, when the mayor and others held a fun-filled "doomsday" party in front of City Hall on the night that someone had said San Francisco would be destroyed.

The time for the predicted 1973 quake was set by Reuben Greenspan, who has been called an "independent geophysicist." He made his prediction in interviews with several newspapers in Arizona and California earlier this year.

Greenspan has since made himself unavailable for elaboration on the new doomsday forecast.

In the published interviews he said the epicenter of the quake will be 2½ miles south of San Francisco. It will have a reading of seven on the Richter scale — enough to wipe out much of the city.

The reason that Vicki and her friends believe this prediction is that they have heard Greenspan was right about some previous quakes.

In fact, Greenspan, now 68, did achieve some notoriety for predicting earthquakes. That was back in 1935, when he was a mathematics teacher in New York City. He sent letters to newspapers advising them that earthquakes would occur in certain areas of the world on specific dates.

ONE HE is said to have predicted destroyed the city of Quetta in India, with a loss of 52,000 lives. He then was called an "uncanny earthquake prophet."

Greenspan has not always been right, however. In fact, his current prediction is his third strike as far as forecasting the big one for San Francisco.

On May 14, 1931, he said San Francisco would crumble at 9:30 a.m. Sunday, June 10 of that year.

The hour of doom passed quietly and one concerned person is reported to have called back asking: "Has the earthquake been rescheduled?"

Mayor Invites Quake Seer To Coffee

by DONALD B. THACKREY

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Mayor Joseph L. Alioto Thursday invited earthquake predictor Reuben Greenspan to drop by for a cup of coffee at 9 a.m. Jan. 4 — the hour Greenspan says San Francisco will be destroyed.

"I will be at work at my desk in City Hall at that hour," said the mayor. "And I invited Mr. Greenspan to join me for coffee."

The mayor's lack of concern about the self-styled quake expert's prediction was echoed by many city residents. But there were some who planned to be out of town at the appointed hour — just in case.

During a quake prediction scare in 1969, the mayor held an "earthquake party" at the hour of doom on the steps of City Hall. Hundreds gathered to frolic and watch pictures of the 1906 shaker that leveled San Francisco.

GRENSPAN, 68, a prophet with mixed credentials, say she will be on a hill overlooking San Francisco with his cameras. He says he hopes his prediction will save some lives.

Greenspan claims to have correctly called the Feb. 8, 1971, quake near Sylmar, Calif., that killed 63 persons in the Los Angeles area. A Southern California newspaper reporter says Greenspan told him about the deadly quake in advance — but he left the prediction out of his story.

Greenspan has been less successful predicting major earth tremors on the San Andreas fault near San Francisco, missing in 1931 and again in 1938.

Vicki Settles, a young clerk, and a half-dozen of her co-workers in a downtown skyscraper plan to take the day off and leave town on Jan. 4 in case Greenspan's formula — which involves the line-up of the sun, moon and earth — turns out to be correct. The members of the local commune also plan to ride their vans out of the city that day.

THE PREDICTION has become a topic of conversation around town since it was publicized this week — and there's usually someone who says he's thinking about a one-day vacation on the fourth.

But official disaster agencies plan no special activities and most of the private citizens asked about the prediction aren't worried.

McCloskey's Political Career Cost Him Home And Wife

by MURRAY OLDERMAN

SAN MATEO, Calif. — The hurt and puzzlement are still in Pete McCloskey's face. He sits at his desk in the old frame house which is his home headquarters, going through the ritual of politics — the incessant telephoning, the obsequious politeness, the desk-side huddles. It's demanded.

He'd chuck it all tomorrow if Cubby McCloskey, of McLean, Va., told him to come back.

Paul N. McCloskey, Jr., representing the 17th Congressional district of northern California, has paid the price of being a politician. On June 7, the day after Pete McCloskey won the Republican primary in his reelection bid for a third straight term in Washington, Cubby, his wife, asked him to leave home.

It was a warm, comfortable home — for Pete. When he was there, there was a tennis court. And a little football field. It was in the country, halfway between the Capitol and Dulles Airport, and through it revolved his four growing children.

'The whole problem of politics is that there's no limit to what you can do if you want to put the time in...'

The congressman, who could pass for younger than 44 if his wild shock of Kennedy-type hair wasn't turning gray and the character lines weren't etching deep, wants to be back. Hopes to. Almost despairs that he can't.

"I told her," he says, "that if she would even consider trying to reconcile, I'd resign from the Congress tomorrow." But he won't and he knows it.

"IT'S LIKE the tiger," he said last summer. "He's satisfied with milk until he tastes blood. There's a heady atmosphere in Washington. You're at the center of power, the decision-making process. All of us love the power."

McCloskey has tasted the blood and it broke up his marriage and the constant pattern of his life.

"The whole problem of politics," he now reflects, "is that there's no limit to what you can do if you want to put the time in. The tendency is to put all your time into it, with corresponding lack of attention to the needs and priorities of your family. That's exactly what I did and I deserve ever bit of what she did. I can understand her feelings and dismay over my commitment. I don't blame her at all."

Now. "If I had foreseen this would be the result," he says, "I wouldn't have gone into politics. None of this was worth losing my wife."

In 1971, by his own count, he was away from home 207 days out of 365. He went to Vietnam and Laos on his Easter vacation. He took his summer vacation to write a book.

"My wife could see another 20 years of that," he says, "and who needs it."

"On a day of campaigning, you get up at seven o'clock and go through till midnight. You're in constant communication with strangers. You grow testy and frustrated and less sensitive to the problems of people around you because you're so wrapped up in your own. You become dehumanized."

IT STARTED for Pete McCloskey when he went to Washington half a dozen years ago as the exemplar for all good, young Republicans, the Marine war hero who once volunteered for Vietnam, who had upset Shirley Temple Black in a special congressional election.

"Cubby and I," he muses, "had spent 18 years of marriage literally building a lovely home in Portola Valley, in the finest place you could ask to live in the world, living the best possible life. I had a successful law practice."

"Then you ask your wife to uproot. We sell that home, bring the children to Washington, get accepted to a new environment and then the children go away to school."

"A woman turns to some need for her own identity, her own self-respect. Somebody said to me, 'Your wife is a very strong, competent person and doesn't relish the role of being subordinated to your activities on all occasions.'

"If I'd realized this a year earlier, our marriage might still be together. I took her for granted."

Since the marriage broke up, Cubby McCloskey took a real estate license in Virginia.

"LAST MONTH," notes McCloskey, "she sold three homes and probably earned twice as much money in commissions as I'm earning as a member of Congress. It's the first time in her life she's ever worked and she's been tremendously successful."

The McCloskey children have also dispersed, but in a more natural way. Nancy, 21, and Peter 19, are in college in California. John, 17, went back to friends in Portola Valley. Kathleen, 13, remains with her mother, but the Congressman took her on an eight-day tour of New England this summer.

"Kathie," he says proudly, "is something else. She gets straight A's and is a self-contained little girl. The only problem is I don't want to interfere. You really miss that seeing her every night."

Above all, there is a sense of emptiness. "My particular wife," says McCloskey with feeling, "was a very big part of everything I did. I just put a tremendous amount of reliance on her and the home she furnished. She put everything into the marriage and I took everything out in order to wage these political fights."

"So losing her was a tremendous blow. I've come around to the point of view that your family and you as a human being are more important than your political success."

Kerner's Lawyer Says Reply Mocks U.S. Law

CHICAGO (UPI)—A defense attorney Wednesday said the government's response to requests for details on the race-track stock bribery charges against former Gov. Otto Kerner was so evasive, it "mocks" the constitution.

Kerner's attorney, Paul R. Connelly, filed a written motion in U.S. District Court here requesting a two-week delay in the start of the Kerner trial, scheduled to begin Jan. 3, on the grounds that the charges are so vague he cannot prepare a defense.

Connelly said the prosecution's listing of charges was "so evasive as to be contemptuous and displays a fixed attitude on the part of the government to refuse the particularization necessary to permit the defendants to prepare for trial."

KERNER AND Theodore J. Isaacs, state revenue director under Kerner, are to be tried on charges of mail fraud, bribery, conspiracy and income tax evasion in connection with the sale and purchase of race-track stock while Kerner was governor.

Connelly's motion was directed toward a three-page government document filed Dec. 5 that alleged Kerner enacted legislation, made appointments to racing boards and otherwise exerted influence in a manner designed to favor certain racing associations.

Connelly asked that the government be ordered to name those appointed to racing boards by Kerner, indicate what laws he enacted or vetoed to benefit racing associations, and list what actions Kerner allegedly took to influence the conduct of racing dates.

To ask "a man to define his liberty" without such specifics, Connelly said, "mocks the Sixth Amendment's command that a defendant be informed of the nature and cause of the accusation."

Lutheran General Bids For $50,000 OEO Grant

Lutheran General Hospital has applied for a $50,000 two-year grant from the Cook County Office of Economic Opportunity (OEO) to fund an out-patient center for low-income families in the Des Plaines area.

Harold Kurtz, hospital public relations director, told the Herald the out-patient center would offer a comprehensive family medical program for some 50 low-income families in the Des Plaines area.

Kurtz said a study by the Northwest Opportunity Center last October showed at least 50 families lived in the Des Plaines area who have incomes below the federal poverty level guidelines.

Kurtz explained that a family of four living on an annual income of $4,000 or less was considered below the federal poverty level.

KURTZ SAID the hospital is asking for $25,000 from the OEO during the first year of the center's operation and an additional $25,000 for operating costs the second year.

"The cost of the center will be in excess of $100,000 a year but if we get the OEO funding and enough volunteer help it should help to fund a full family medical program," Kurtz said.

He said medical services at the center would include prescriptions, dental care, psychiatric care and work with drug addicts.

"There is no question such a program is needed in the area," Kurtz said.

Applicants for the out-patient center service will be screened and referred to the hospital by the Northwest Opportunity Center in Rolling Meadows.

Kurtz said the hospital will also encourage other area organizations to help fund the center.

He said if the hospital doesn't get the OEO funds the program might be cut but added that was strictly conjecture.

A SPOKESMAN at the Northwest Opportunity Center said if the OEO approves the hospital's application the program might be able to start in March.

The hospital's family planning program for low-income families presently is the only other hospital service funded partially by the OEO according to Kurtz.

The family planning program was established 1½ years ago to help women who desire to plan the size of their family but are unable to afford to participate in family planning.

Breakfast Problems Hurt Household

Dear Dr. Lamb — Breakfast at our house is quite a problem. All health books say to eat a good, nourishing breakfast. None of us care for breakfast food, not prepared or the cooked variety. It is said that proteins are necessary, still what protein is not high in cholesterol? Eggs are limited, liver is high in cholesterol, so are sausages and bacon and ham. Bread is fattening. Really, what do you feel is a good breakfast that is low in fat and carbohydrates, cholesterol and not too many calories? We also have a weight problem and would truly welcome any advice. This is the one meal when we are hungry and do not know what the proper things are to eat. Thank you for your help. We always read your article in the morning. We use a lot of skim milk, cottage cheese and powdered skim milk.

Dear Reader I get lots of letters asking about breakfast, so you are not alone. Of course, the hot cereals are fine, such as oatmeal. There are a number of other hot cereals that some people like and these do contain a certain amount of protein, particularly if they come from wheat or oats. The protein in whole wheat products contains important essential amino acids. Unless a person has a medical problem that prevents their use, I think one should try to get some protein from cereal, and breakfast is a good place to do this. Fortified skim milk is an excellent source of protein, so are egg whites, which contain no cholesterol or fat. It is not true that sausage, bacon and ham are high in cholesterol. Sausage and bacon are very high in fat, but they are not high-cholesterol foods. Lean ham used in moderation is satisfactory for breakfast. So is lean round steak and lean beef. So you could use whites of eggs and ham periodically without increasing your fat or cholesterol intake excessively. You could have prepared cereals (which I understand you don't like) or home-cooked cereals, which includes oatmeal, home-cooked wheat products and rice. Rice is not rich in protein, however.

Some people enjoy fish, which is an excellent source of protein, for breakfast and most of the lean fishes are relatively low in fat. This does not include herring, sardines and some of the fatty salmon. Canned pink salmon is lower in fat than some other types of salmon and it can be used to make salmon patties, which some individuals like for breakfast, too. You can also use dried beef and make creamed beef on toast, if you like that, or you can use chicken. Some people like creamed chicken on toast even for breakfast.

I understand you are trying to avoid carbohydrates, otherwise I would recommend pancakes (which can be made without either eggs or added fat), which you could serve with syrup, honey and one of the polyunsaturated margarines. Of course, breakfast is a good time for fruit juice, fresh fruit and melon, but these foods are not important protein sources. They are low fat, free of cholesterol, nourishing and rich in important vitamins, particularly vitamin C. Newspaper Enterprise Assn.) Send your questions to Dr. Lamb, P. O. Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.

Win At Bridge

by Oswald and James Jacoby

Here we are back with our code word "ARCH." Analyze the lead. Review the bidding. Count winners and losers. How can we make the contract?

West opened the king of clubs; continued with the ace and shifted to the six of diamonds.

South analyzed the diamond lead as showing the ace, but not the queen. He analyzed the club lead as showing ace and king, but not the queen.

This analysis marked West with the king-queen of spades and the king of hearts.

"How can I make this contract?" asked South. The question was in his mind only. South was a good player and good players don't talk while playing a dummy.

He gave his mental answer and proceeded to rise with dummy's king of diamonds.

Then he led a trump; thought for a while to check his previous assumptions and clattered up with the ace of hearts.

West's king dropped. That was luck, but the sort of luck that good play will produce on occasion. West had to hold the king and it turned out to be a singleton. After this it was a simple matter to

IF THE CHICAGO Bears' visit to Philadelphia last Sunday did not result in the worst professional football game ever played, it wasn't because the two teams didn't try.

For the record, the Bears won, 21-12. It can be truthfully said, even without checking, that the National Football League Hall of Fame in Canton, Ohio did not send for the game films.

I felt obligated to watch because I thought John Huarte, the Bears' backup quarterback, might play. He was one of our guests Monday at the Pro Sports Club Luncheon, and I wanted to make sure I was watching if he did play in Philadelphia.

I should have known better. Huarte didn't play — again — and I wasted an afternoon in front of the television set. I was addressing Christmas cards as the fiasco developed, and this is the first time in memory when addressing cards actually was the highlight of any afternoon.

One thought persisted as I watched this poor excuse for a professional game. Wouldn't it have been fascinating to have Gibron: It was a team effort today. All 40 people wanting to play football. We didn't get any breaks again and the officials robbed us as usual but we won and ... and ... I thought I ordered sausage and pizza.

Douglass: I thought I was being interviewed.

Cosell: How true, Bobby Douglass. You are being interviewed. How very true, young man. It is you, my close and dear friend, who is giving me this exclusive interview, who has just walked off the field with a victory. You are seeing it through in your career, Bobby Douglass. You have been tossed into the National Football League cauldron. You've been thrown into the pressure cooker of professional football with all its cruel con- vinning and its tension-gripped atmosphere.

Gibron: Bobby Douglass is my No. 1 quarterback and he will be my No. 1 quarterback because I say he is my No. 1 quarterback and what I say goes because this is a 40-man team and I am running the show and ...

Meredith: (breaking into song) Fight on, Chicago Bears ...

Gifford: You are a beautiful human being, Abe Gibron, all of you. We have some replays to show you now and I would like some comments from our guests. Is the camera on me? Why not? I am speaking. I am a former star with the New York Giants ...

Meredith: I found your hair spray, Faultless.

Cosell: Oh, shut up, Dandy. I, Howard Cosell, will continue this exclusive interview which gives my viewers the perception that comes with someone who is constantly striving to bring an insight into sports through journalism that has long been absent from broadcasting. The wryly inconspicuous Danderoo can not always convey those observations.

Gifford: We're rolling the tapes now and I would like Bobby and Abe to comment on this pass here that is thrown 30 yards behind Earl Thomas who is running a simple sideline maneuver.

Douglass: I am the No. 1 quarterback.

Gifford: Then we have this replay of a pass that takes six bounces before reaching George Farmer. My, that must have been difficult to throw, Bobby.

Gibron: Bobby Douglass is my No. 1 quarterback.

Meredith: Wow-wee, what do you say to that, Howard?

Cosell: Danderoo, that was exciting banding between a coach and his quarterback, the type of dialogue that has long been a part of my tell-it-like-it-is broadcasting.

Gifford: Here's the taped replay now of your own pass completion, Bobby. What a thrill it must have been to complete a pass. Let's roll it again. Freeze it! There ... it is on tape ... it did happen! Howard, Don, I see it there before my very own baby blue eyes, before winsome Frank, the former star with the New York Giants. Bobby Douglass did complete a pass against the Eagles today. I told you it wasn't an old Johnny Unitas re-run.

Cosell: A thing of beauty, Faultless, and not even the most obdurate and pertinacious critics that we have alluded to earlier could deny that we have here a quarterback whose tenacity and perspicacity are indubitably Herculean in nature ...

Meredith: Right on, Howard.

Gibron: Bobby Douglass is my No. 1 quarterback.

Douglass: I am the No. 1 quarterback.

Cosell: Speaking of quarterbacks ...

Meredith: Yes, Howard ...

Cosell: Speaking of quarterbacks, I wonder how Joe Willie from Beaver Falls, my close and dear friend, is feeling today. I understand he threw 95 passes for 765 yards against the Oilers today and his arm fell off on the 85th pass. Joe Willie, if you are listening, my dear and close friend, I can only say that we wish you well because you are a beautiful human being. Why just the other day Joe Willie and I were having some popcorn together ...

Gifford: When I was playing with the Giants ...

Meredith: Golly, Frank, did you play for the Giants?

Cosell: Isn't it absolutely incredible what wondrous verbiage often flows from the mouths of Faultless and Dandy?

Gibron: As I was saying, it was a team effort out there against that fine Eagle team. All I ask for are 39 people who want to play football with my No. 1 quarterback, Bobby Douglass.

Cosell: My dear and close friend, Abe, who consented to give me, Howard Cosell, this exclusive interview, just how do you assess your total quarterback situation with one confrontation remaining? How do you assess the artistry, dexterity, deftness of one John Huarte?

Gibron: John? ... John who?

Douglass: I am No. 1.

Gibron: You are No. 1.

Gifford: I was No. 1 when I was playing with the Giants.

Cosell: I am No. 1, and I, Howard Cosell, will always be No. 1.

Meredith: Wow-wee!

There's only one way for the top table tennis players in the United States to get to Yugoslavia for the world championships.

They'll have to stop off first at Wheeling High School.

The leading 24 players in the United States, 12 men and 12 women, will assemble in the Wheeling High School gymnasium Saturday and Sunday for challenging round-robin competition.

Five men and four women will qualify from the two days of action at Wheeling for the team that will represent the United States in Sarajevo, Yugoslavia at the World Table Tennis Championships in April.

Competition will be held over five sessions, starting at 2 p.m. and 7 p.m. Saturday. There will be three sessions Sunday at 10 a.m., 2 p.m. and the finals at 6:30 p.m. Doors will open approximately 30 minutes before the actual competition.

Tickets are $2.00 each for the first four sessions and $3.00 for the final round only. A ticket package for the five sessions costs $3.00.

Children under 12 will be admitted for half price.

Tickets are available at Ticketron outlets or by contacting Gordon Helsler at 392-8546. Tickets also will be available at the door. Each session will last about 2½ hours.

The United States team will be selected on a round-robin basis with each entry playing 11 games. The men and women with the top records will qualify.

Preliminary competition for some of the nation's best will be held tonight at the Chicago Table Tennis Club, 2047 N. Milwaukee, as they battle for the remaining positions in the weekend tryouts.

The Wheeling Naval ROTC will take part in the ceremonies at each session this weekend under the direction of Bill Marsh. In addition, several area dignitaries are expected to attend the tryouts which are sponsored by the Mount Prospect Jaycees.

Table tennis buffs will also get a chance to test their skills against some of the leading players in the United States. For a slight charge, a person will be able to play many of the nation's top performers in the fieldhouse adjoining the gymnasium.

"This is a unique opportunity for people to see the finest players in one competition," said Warren Hamilton, project chairman from the Jaycees for the tryouts.

Mid-Suburban League Basketball

North, South Scrambles Continue; 5-Way Tie Could Develop In North

Just as it was during the football season, balance is the middle name of the North Division in Mid-Suburban League basketball.

At least four of the six teams in the division have shown about equal ability thus far and as many as five could be tied for first place after tonight's three intra-division games — if results happen a certain way.

Already, memories are being rekindled of the frantic North football race, in which three teams finally tied for first place, the crown had to be resolved by statistics, and almost every division contest was close.

The two North cage entries which have won both of their conference games, Palatine and Arlington, both play 1-1 teams tonight. Varsity games, as usual, will get under way at about 8:15 following 6:30 preliminaries.

WHEELING AT PALATINE

Palatine coach Ron Finkrock took a busman's holiday and was one of quite a few area coaches in attendance at Saturday's game between Wheeling and No. 1 ranked Lockport Central.

"I was impressed with Wheeling," said Finkrock, still raving about the Wildcats' near upset. "I was really impressed with their jumping ability."

"They're a well-coached team with excellent speed for the size kids they have. I believe they're a tough basketball team."

Finkrock admitted that all the above sounds like he's trying to really overload Wheeling with praise, but he added, "I Really mean it." Although Wheeling is supposed to be in a rebuilding year, Finkrock was especially impressed with its overall discipline against such a highly touted Porter team.

However, he was also pleased with his team's showing against a much taller Hersey team. Utilizing fine balance (five in double figures), the Pirates outscored the Huskies 63-51.

"To me that was a big milestone showing what these kids can do," said Finkrock. "Overall, what really disappointed me was that we should have held them to

District 211 Game On Radio Friday Evening

A meeting between District 211 rivals will be featured Friday night as WYMM-FM of Arlington Heights continues its weekly coverage of Mid-Suburban League basketball.

The station at 92.7 on the dial has selected the game between Conant and Schaumburg for the Friday night broadcast, which will originate at 8 p.m. from the Saxon gymnasium.

Station Sports Director Dick Thomas and Herald Sports Editor Bob Frisk will be at the microphone for the matchup between a school that reached "Sweet Sixteen" status last winter and a relative newcomer to the area that has shown signs of explosiveness in the young campaign.

Conant's entry into "Sweet Sixteen" status last March marked the first time an area team had ever advanced that far in the state tournament series.

LEADING SCORER Bob Westrich lays one up as Arlington's Dan Donahue tries to block it Friday night at Grace Gym. Watching from behind is Wheeling teammate Bill Pickler as Jeff Cleveland (24) and Jim Stull

(22) await a possible rebound. Westrich had 16 points, but it wasn't enough as the Cardinals held off a late Wildcat rally to win the Mid-Suburban game, 53-50.

Knights (2-0) Await Stiff Grove Challenge In South

It was supposed to be a four-team basketball race in the South Division of the Mid-Suburban League, but that may not be the case if Prospect keeps rolling.

Of course, only two conference games have been played and there's a very long way to go. However, if Prospect — the only South team 2-0 — beats Elk Grove tonight, it would be a very big win. That would mean both the Grenadiers and Forest View, figured as solid contenders, would already have two games to make up against Prospect.

There's only one other game in tonight's abbreviated South schedule. Conant, another pre-season choice to be right in the race, needs a victory at Schaumburg, which is also hoping to move into the picture.

The Forest View at Glenbard North game, scheduled for last Tuesday night, had to be postponed because of inclement weather and road conditions. The game has been rescheduled for this Wednesday night. The two teams will be idle tonight.

PROSPECT AT ELK GROVE

The word Berg in German means mountain.

In Elk Grove about now the word that more closely relates to mountain is Bergen.

Tom Bergen is the mobile mountain they're talking about. He's part of the Prospect contingent expected to visit the Grenadier court tonight in one of what promises to be a long line of crucial contests in the Mid-Suburban League's southern circuit.

"We watched Prospect over at Conant last week and came away awfully impressed by this kid," sighed Gren coach Bill Parmentier in reference to Bergen. "He's matured quite a bit since last year. He's quick and he's got some nice moves."

Bergen is also big — quite a bit bigger than anyone Elk Grove has — and that concerns Parmentier most of all. "You know it's going to be hard to keep him off the boards. Prospect in general is a big, strong team that can rebound you to death and I just don't know how much of our running game they'll take away."

Running, needless to say, is Elk Grove's forte. Running requires rebounds. So Elk Grove would appear to have a mountain to move tonight.

Parmentier has another dilemma as well. His one starting forward berth is being so tightly contested right now that drawing straws might be the end result.

Fan's Forum

LOGAN COLUMN DISCUSSED

Dear Mr. Logan,

I am writing to comment on your recent article about the overemphasis of midget football in this area. It's no wonder some schools have such poor high school teams. Some of these so-called "super stars" of between eight and twelve years old are so spoiled with trips outside the state, trophies and glory that they get turned off by a high school team that only goes 20 miles to play an opponent, much less travel to a "bowl" outside the state.

One thing you failed to mention was the high risk young boys take in playing organized tackle football. Doctors have written numerous reports that show youngsters shouldn't play tackle games until their bones have developed, supposedly about 14 years of age.

There's no way my young son will play tackle ball until he's matured enough physically. I don't want to answer to him someday if he would get crippled from playing in a midget league. When he's a freshman in high school, fine. But not until.

Mr. Martin

ELK GROVE VILLAGE READY FOR BASEBALL AGAIN

Dear Fans Forum:

There's nothing like a Chicago Bears football team to make someone long for baseball again. That disgrace last Sunday on television probably sent Pete Rozelle, and maybe George Halas, out to get a good stiff drink or two. Could you imagine that game between the Bears and Eagles on pay TV? How much would you have paid to see that?

LIKED VAIL STORY

Dear Sirs:

I wish to take this opportunity to thank your Mike Klein for the nice article about Willie Vail in Monday's Des Plaines Herald (Dec. 4). The article really boosted Willie's ego.

He has two older brothers who are under 5-7 and excelled in sports at Notre Dame High School back in the years when N.D. was opened. Willie started at N.D. and tried basketball but did not make the team. He then quit school for a semester until he found himself and then entered Maine North. He went out for basketball right away but because of the ruling a transfer student can't participate in sports the first year he just was able to practice. This is Willie's first year playing varsity ball and we are very grateful to coach (Jerry) Nelson at Maine North who gave Willie the opportunity and is a man who also cares about his ballplayers.

Again, thanks, Mr. Klein.

Sincerely,
Mrs. William S. Vail

DISAGREES WITH ZEKE

Dear Sirs:

I attended your sports luncheon Monday and even Zeke Bratkowski disappointed me by talking about how he doesn't like the idea of "musical quarterbacks" either. In other words, he doesn't like to shuttle quarterbacks in and out, like the Eagles did Sunday when the fans almost demanded it. That's not the issue in the Bobby Douglass case, Zeke. We're not asking for "musical quarterbacks." Bears fans are asking to see John Huarte in action. There have been several games recently when the decision was out of reach and when you needed a passer in there to try to get some points on the board. When a quarterback is not moving a club, you make changes late in a game. And when you're behind, you don't stick with someone who is a notoriously bad passer. We're not asking for alternating quarterbacks. We're asking for a fair shake for the backup man, in this case John Huarte.

DEFENDS SCHOOL NAMES

Dear Larry Everhart:

Who do you think you are, anyway, passing judgment on school nicknames in this area? I happen to like most of them and I'm sure many other fans agree. You criticized especially the names Mustangs (a name many of us here at Rolling Meadows are very proud of), Wildcats, Vikings, and others. What's so bad about them just because they are common? I'll take them over those way-out names you like (Zippers, Pretzels, Wooden Shoes).

You just don't understand Mustang pride and the feeling of a school for its own name. Didn't you have any school spirit when you were in high school (assuming you attended one)?

I suppose you expect the new schools in Hoffman Estates and Buffalo Grove to check with you and see if you agree with the names they choose. Well, it's their business, not yours.

Name Withheld By Request

BARRO OFFERS THANKS

Dear Bob Frisk:

Now that the first Mustang varsity season is history, I would like to take this opportunity to say thanks to you and your sports staff for the excellent coverage you gave us this year.

I would like to commend Jim Cook for his fine cooperation with us. I thought he did a fine job.

We look forward to working with Pad-dock in the future.

Now is when stamina enters the picture.

The first double weekend of back-to-back games looms tonight and tomorrow night in the Suburban Catholic Conference basketball race and a lot more will be known by Saturday evening about who will be contending and who won't.

St. Viator faces a formidable challenge in the next two evenings as it prepares to travel to River Grove to take on Holy Cross tonight before returning home Saturday evening to tackle Notre Dame.

The Lions have won only one of their first five games, but just two were conference clashes, so there's still time to get into the race. But it will have to be done this weekend and a pair of wins are sorely needed.

There was hope in last weekend's 56-48 loss to St. Patrick, always a rugged force on the hardwood. The Lions showed definite improvement in that one after a pair of one-sided losses the previous weekend.

"As I said after that game," repeated Viator coach Ed Wasielewski, "I thought we played well enough to win. That game was tied about 40 times and we were only down by two points with two minutes left. Then we made some bad passes and that was it. But it could have gone either way."

Garvos' 583 Tops

Junior Classic

Beverly Lanes held a two-point lead over Striker Lanes after recent action in the Paddock Junior Traveling Classic League.

Rolling Meadows was in third, Hoffman Lanes in fourth, Spencers in fifth, and Ten Pin Bowl in sixth.

The top series was a 583 by Jim Garvos of Hoffman Lanes with Jim rolling 200, 168, 215.

At Fair Lanes

The Eau 'd' Odors fired a 2051 series and the Klukas had high game of 731 in the Thursday Eye Openers league. . . Four teams were hot as the Blue Jeans, Wild Lemons, Eau 'd' Odors and Charismas each took seven points. . . High individual scores were Angie Pilcher with 525-203, Marilyn Klug with 475-170, Jean Brogdon 472-205, Elsie Senesac 181, Judy Driskowski 177, Sharon Harrod 175 and Grace Lisching 172. . . Split conversations were by Claire Bakowski (2-10), Shirley Twigg and Scott Cole (5-7).

Holy Cross, Notre Dame On Lions' Weekend Slate

At Holy Cross

ST. VIATOR		HOLY CROSS
6-3 Cook	F	6-3 Pianello	6-3
6-0 Dwyer	F	6-0 Olliespie	6-3
6-0 Hutcheson	C	6-0 Augustine	6-3
6-0 Krivan	C	6-0 Traver	6-3
6-10 Hallinan	O	6-10 Ristas	5-10

TIME: Preliminary at 6:30; varsity at approximately 8:00, Friday, Dec. 15.

PLACE: Holy Cross High School, 3000 N. 50th Ave., River Grove.

COACHES: Ed Wasielewski, St. Viator; Al Ostrowski, Holy Cross.

"I think we showed a lot of desire. We'll be a decent ball club. We're still inexperienced, but we'll keep improving."

None of the boys who started the season had played any varsity ball and none was over six feet tall. But both of those disadvantages were remedied by the return of 6-3 Mike Cook, the only returner from last year who had been out of the first three games with an injury. Cook, who averaged 11 points a game last year and was a fine rebounder, now has scored 28 in two games.

Dave Hutcheson, who starts at center though only 6-0 tall (Cook is a forward), is also a capable scorer. He has 65 points in five games for a 13.0 average.

Other starters are Mike Dwyer at forward and Fred Hallinan and Terry Kee-han at guards.

Revenge could be a motive this weekend since St. Viator last year lost three of four games played against this weekend's two opponents. All three losses were very close and the Lions would like to get even.

Foes of the next two evenings met last Friday with Holy Cross toppling Notre Dame 65-58. At this time the Crusaders stand 3-2 and the Dons 3-3.

The small Lions are getting accustomed to going against taller teams and that will again be their plight in both games this weekend. Holy Cross' front line measures 5-5, 6-3, 5-3 and Notre Dame goes 6-6, 6-3, 6-1.

Dave Westhoff, Holy Cross' first-year coach, says, "Our team hasn't been together very long because we have some football players who came out late and some players ineligible until Dec. 1. So we've made some lineup changes."

"Our scouts say St. Viator is small but hustles and plays good man-to-man defense. They gave St. Pat's all they wanted."

The Crusaders have balanced scoring and a 6-5 sophomore center, Dave Augustine, who scored 15 and rebounded very well against Notre Dame. Two other players also average about 15.

Notre Dame also has a big, balanced club. Coach Ralph Hinger says, "We remember from last year that Cook is tough. St. Viator is coming along and we're looking for a tough battle — especially since we also have to play at Marist Friday night."

Danville, Parkland Fall

Harper Matmen In Romps

Harper wrestlers easily disposed of two more teams at Danville Wednesday evening while extending their season long winning streak to seven.

Hosting Danville Junior College was thumped by the Hawks 48-6, Parkland a short time later absorbed a 42-9 setback.

Coach Ron Bessemer's outfit was never really threatened by either team although they did fall behind 6-0 at the outset of the Danville fray. From that point, until forfeiting the heavyweight finale to Parkland, Hawk grapplers were victorious in 18 of the next 19 bouts, including two exhibition frays.

Both the host Jaguars and Champaign-based Parkland forfeited a number of matches, prompting Bessemer to express some concern over the calibre of competition his unit's been faced with this fall. "As a team, we're still not wrestling up to par yet, and we're not being helped by the fact that the competition has been generally weak. Except for DuPage, all of our opponents have lost by pretty wide margins."

Against Danville, Bernie Kleiman was nosed out in the opening 118-pound contest by Jim Shannon of the Jaguars, 9-8. Hawk Al Gordon at 126 then lost a 7-3 verdict to Pat McDonald.

Tom Dal Campo at 134 turned the tide with a pin in 4:43. Then Gary Thacker at 142 won by forfeit and followed up with an 8-4 exhibition victory.

Kurt Ehling at 150 was a winner by fall in 1:54. Paul Morris at 158 and Ron Ortworth at 167 also pinned, in 0:52 and 4:20 respectively, and Ron Vylasek and John Majors took the next two weights by forfeit.

Tryst Anderson, jacked up to heavy-weight to replace Phil Rader for the night, capped things off with a 4-26 pin.

Kleiman and Gordon both won by forfeit to open the Parkland dual. Dal Campo then triumphed 12-4. Thacker lost 4-2 to Al Stout, Ehling won 8-3 and Morris and Ortworth both racked up pins again, Morris winning at 6:46 and Ortworth at 6:50.

Vylasek was a forfeit winner for the second time but he paired off in an exhibition match this time and triumphed 10-3. Majors, also wrestling up a weight for the evening, followed with a pin at 1:47 and then heavyweight was forfeited to John Johnson to avoid the chance of an injury to a much lighter Anderson.

State's Top Gymnastics Teams Meet In Maine East Headliner

Gymnastics Editor

A sneak preview of what may be in store for the state gymnastics meet next March will be unveiled at Maine East Saturday beginning at 7 p.m.

A dozen of the state's finest teams have been extended invitations to the 6th annual event won by Hinsdale Central last year.

The Red Devils are back to defend their title and should they succeed, the momentum might just carry over to their fourth straight state gymnastics crown.

Other participants with their finishes in the state meet in parentheses are Mid-Suburban League entries Arlington (2nd), Hersey (9th), Elk Grove (11th), Wheeling (17th), Prospect (20th), and Conant (22nd).

From the Central Suburban comes Glenbrook South (5th) and Maine South (38th) while the Suburban League will be represented by Evanston (3rd) and Waukegan (15th).

"Our meet is generally a pretty accurate indicator of who will do well in the state meet." Tournament Director and Maine East head coach Tom Gardner said.

FAN FARE

By Walt Ditzen

"We think this is a perfect meet for the spectator who is looking for the closest thing to perfection. I'm not afraid to predict that the winners of the various events will be at least 8.5's and pushing the 9.0's," Gardner said.

Medals will be awarded to the top five event finishers and trophies to the first, second and third-place teams. Each squad will enter one competitor per event and scoring will be based on 11 points for first, nine for second, eight for third, etc.

While the season is still in the infant stages (a couple of the teams will make their debuts tonight), most of the squads have begun serious campaigning for state reservations by virtue of potent dual-meet and tournament scoring.

Hinsdale soared past 140 in its opening test, but Evanston surprisingly edged the Red Devils in the Wildkats' own invite to prove they'll be challenging the three-time champs.

Elk Grove and Hersey have each topped the century and one-quarter mark and Conant, Glenbrook South, Prospect and Waukegan have all conquered 100.

En Garde! Girl Fencers Duel Interscholastically

Although many high schools include fencing in the Girls Physical Education curriculum in the suburban area of Chicago, the girls in Illinois are now enjoying their first opportunity to fence against students from other schools in the area. A recent decision by the Illinois High School Association has expanded the former list of interscholastic activities to now include fencing.

The competitive fencing season for girls in the Mid-Suburban Conference began on Dec. 7 with a meet between Arlington High School and Maine West High School of Des Plaines. This may well have been the first interscholastic girls fencing meet held in Illinois. The Arlington Cardinals won the meet by a score of 21-11.

There are three area schools which have established a competitive fencing calendar: these schools are Arlington, Maine West, and Schaumburg. Each team is scheduled to meet each of the other teams twice during the season in dual meets, once at home and once away. In addition to this schedule, each of the schools will host a triangular meet involving all three of the league teams.

Individual fencers teams consist of eight competitors who are ranked according to their ability and compete with others of similar skill and ability. The eight fencers are divided into two groups, an A and a B group. Each of the four fencers in both the A and B groups fence against each of the other fencers within their own group or pool.

Team points are then accumulated by the awarding of one point for each bout won in each of the groups; the maximum total of team points for a meet is 32.

The remaining girls fencing league schedule:

Ostermann All-Pac 8

Steve Ostermann, a former star football player for St. Vitor, has been elected to the All Pacific Eight football team. Ostermann, a soph., plays offensive tackle for Washington State University.

Bastable Sixth in Big 8

Former Wheeling-high athlete Jack Bastable has placed sixth in the final Big Eight varsity football punting statistics. Playing at the University of Missouri, Bastable kicked 71 punts for 2,506 yards, an average of 36.6 yards per kick.

His per kick average was approximately four yards below Rich Sanger of Nebraska who led the Big Eight.

Donahue, Little All-American

Honors keep rolling in for ex-Palatine Pirate quarterback Phil Donahue, now a senior at Ball State University.

Donahue has been named to the Associated Press Little All-American football team, one of three Ball State Cardinals to earn that honor.

Donahue was a three-year starter at quarterback for the Cardinals who make their home in Muncie, Ind. Among his six school records are single game marks of 24 completed passes and 350 yards passing.

Donahue was joined on the All-American team by teammates Tony Schmidt and Fred McGuire, both juniors and natives of Indiana.

Kummer Off The Bench

Former Maine West star basketball player Tom Kummer is carving a big spot for himself at the University of Northern Colorado in Greeley.

Kummer, a 6-5 sophomore, has come off the bench twice in early season play and led the Bears in scoring. He's hit on 19 of 28 field goal shots for an excellent 67.9 per cent.

"I'm happy as a sixth man as long as I keep shooting the way I am now," a delighted Kummer said. "I've been playing just as much as the starters, and if I remain the number one substitute, then I'll get enough playing time."

Kummer scored 20 points in a loss to Denver and 22 in victory over Western State College.

Bears coach Thurm Wright says, "Some players might be mad sitting on the bench, but Tom knows that he will play as much as the starters. "He's improving in all areas of the game. We just hope he can keep up the pace he has started."

Wright on!

As in Don Wright, former Wheeling basketball player who's doing it all for Illinois Wesleyan University of Bloomington.

The Titans are 3-1, losing only to St. Bonaventure, and Wright is one big reason for their success.

"Don realizes that for us to be good, he has to play super defense and get the ball to other people," said coach Dennis Bridges.

Wright has been twice named to the All-Quincy Tournament team along with recognized stars Lloyd Neal of Tennessee State, Richie Fuqua of Oral Roberts and James Lister of Sam Houston State.

Penalty Fee At Eagle River

There will be a $10 late filing fee added to regular entry fees for all classes excluding juniors, racing in the tenth annual World's Championship Snowmobile Derby, Jan. 19-21 at Eagle River, Wis.

All entries must be in by Jan. 15 to avoid the additional charge. For further information, contact Bud Risman at Box 158, Eagle River, Wis., 54521.

Big Eight Rolls On

Best football conference in the country? It's probably the Big Eight again. Five of the league's teams have post-season appearances scheduled.

Those include Iowa State vs. Georgia Tech in the Dec. 18 Liberty Bowl, Missouri vs. Arizona State in the Dec. 23 Fiesta Bowl, Colorado vs. Auburn in the Dec. 30 Gator Bowl, Oklahoma vs. Penn State in the Dec. 31 Sugar Bowl and Nebraska vs. Notre Dame in the Jan. 1 Orange Bowl.

Whadda lineup! Whadda lot of money for the Big Eight!

At Beverly Lanes

Nan Larsen had a scratch 200 game and Mary Dakosa carved out a 536 handicap series in the Arlington Ladies Elks League at Beverly Lanes. . . Other 200 games with handicaps were by Evelyn Miles, Beth Hennessy, Rita Plunkett, Virginia Thelander, Beverly Smith, Mary Barkulls, Connie Zordon and Fran Batton.

Harper Rolls In 2nd Half; Rips McHenry

by A STAFF WRITER

Terry and his Pirates, uh, Hawks were at it again Wednesday night. This time the victim was McHenry.

Terry is none other than Terry Rohan, Harper College's hot handover the last eight days. During that time this veteran sophomore has broken out of his shooting slump in a big way.

The game against the hosting Flying Scots was the same story. Rohan, having only six at halftime, caught fire in the second half with 17 as Harper romped to an 88-59 victory, its third straight.

"The zone didn't work too good," said Coach Roger Bechtold of Harper's first half defense. The score at intermission proved his point: Harper 34, McHenry 33. "We went into the man-to-man and pressed them and they made mistakes."

The smaller and slower Scots wilted under the pressure and dropped their third Skyway Conference game without a win. Harper's 2-1 in league play. The Hawks will be aiming at an overall record of .500 (4-4) when they take on hosting Elgin tonight at 7:30.

Besides being pleased with Rohan's play, Bechtold also had praise for another starter — Chuck Neary. His lanky forward (6-7) "did a splendid job rebounding and shot fairly well," said Bechtold. "He pulled down 12 rebounds and got 16 points and didn't play the whole game. He did a good job in the first half when we needed it. He kept us in there. . ."

Neary tossed in 11 points over the first 20 minutes and came down with some clutch rebounds. He had to because Don Spry, Harper's veteran 6-6 center, had an off night and only pulled off four and was held scoreless. Bechtold is expecting Spry to deliver against Elgin.

The same five — Steve Heldt, Rohan, Neary, Spry and Scott Feige, who scored 18 points — will be starting against the Spartans. "I was very happy with the bench's performance. They did a great job defensively — our goal is to keep opponents under 60 points, and they sure did that."

Two of the top bench men, according to Bechtold, were Bill Campbell, former Forest View player, and Gary Pemberton, from Conant. Both had six points. Dave Schmitt, also of Conant, paced the substitutes with seven. Pick up 6 pt 70 points. The defense is not what it should be yet.

"We're playing at 50 per cent efficiency of what these kids can do. I look at the ball game a little differently than some people do. What we're scoring (69.8) we should be scoring. Our shooting isn't outstanding... we're getting an awfully lot off the press."

Flintrock expects Wheeling to do some pressing of its own, but Wildcat coach Ted Ecker isn't saying what his plans are. He's just concerned about stopping a team that accomplished what only a handful have done over the last four years — beat Hersey at home.

"Shocked me? No," said Ecker of the Pirate win. "It really didn't shock me. They're quick. They put full court pressure on people. That seems to be Hersey's nemesis up to this point. That's the report I get from everybody."

As for the turnaround by his team after losing to Arlington on Friday and nearly taking Lockport the next night, Ecker said, "They were ready to play basketball on Saturday night. It was a different style of ball game, true, but they went out in the first quarter and took the percentage shot. They were knocking them in."

"Friday we couldn't even buy a basket. It got everybody down. They stood around and played poorly."

The Wildcats will be hoping to pick up where they left off last Saturday against the Pirates. An all underclassman line will try to turn the trick, including sophomore Mike Brzuszkiewicz (6-3).

"He's very, very strong," said Ecker. "He'll give us a lot of strength on the boards. He's very sound with a great deal of poise for a sophomore."

The ladsophomore to be brought up in a starting role at Wheeling was Roger Wood. Brzuszkiewicz could become as much of a Mid-Suburban household word as the former Wildcat star.

ARLINGTON AT FREM

No wonder Leon Kasuboske wants Arlington to come over to his Fremd lair before the Vikings visit the Cardinal den.

The Cards and Vikes will be looking up in league combat for the 10th time over six seasons when they collide this evening at Fremd. A pattern of sorts has emerged from the first nine contests and Fremd's coach is only too eager to see it continued now that the schedule has reversed itself this year.

TIME: Preliminary game at 6:30 p.m.; varsity at approximately 8 p.m., Friday, Dec. 15.

COACHES: Ted Ecker, Wheeling; Ron Flintrock, Palatine.

For the last four years, ever since George Zigman has been at the Cardinal helm, his team has hosted the Vikings first thing. And Arlington has won every time.

After dropping four of their first six outings this year, Fremd is prepared to gear their strategy around anything that will help — including tradition, to bring Arlington in line. Notes Kasuboske: "I definitely think it's advantageous to play them at our place first. Having the home court always helps. And if we can beat them first, it gives us an edge in confidence when we have to go over there next month."

Zigman is in accordance over the home floor advantage. "There's no doubt that it means something to be the home team. You're more familiar with the surroundings and you generally have better support from the fans. This could be especially crucial this year when so many teams appear to be of about equal ability in the conference."

While Fremd has been up-and-down so far this season (they split last week, ramping past Rolling Meadows and then losing to Willowbrook) the Cardinals have faltered only once — at Barrington — and they are unbeaten in a pair of conference outings thus far.

At Fremd

ARLINGTON	FREM
6-5 Gaetz	F Youman	6-3
6-3 Cleveland	F Mize	6-3
6-9 Donahue	C Coughlin	6-5
6-9 Stull	G Funk	6-10
6-10 Bana	G Pettit	6-10

TIME: Preliminary game at 6:30 p.m.; varsity game at approximately 8 p.m., Fri., Dec. 15.

PLACE: Fremd High School, 1000 S. Quentin Rd., Palatine.

COACHES: Arlington, George Zigman; Fremd, Leon Kasuboske.

And though they won't be on home ground to begin with, they'll still have a height advantage tonight, a difference that Kasuboske duly notes. "This is the first team we've played this year that is quite a bit taller so we'll be posed with some new problems. I've been extremely pleased with our guard play of late but we're going to have to get tougher inside to contend with a team like Arlington."

The Cardinals however, akin to the Vikings, have been getting their biggest boost from the back court to date. Leading Arlington scorer is steady senior guard Jim Stull with a 14-point tempo per game and he and outside partner Bob Bunn have combined for nearly 100 points in four games while 6-9 Dan Donahue and 6-5 Brian Gaetz have accounted for just 71 over the same span.

With Fremd it's been 5-10 Mark Pettit and 5-10 Mark Funk providing a good portion of the scoring punch although forward Bob Youman has been the team's most consistent offensive player and junior Doug Mize has provided additional help, including 18 points last Friday since his recent elevation from Jayvee status.

Wherever it comes from, the hosts will be hoping to parlay the pointage into their first triumph over Arlington in six tries dating back to that 68-69 campaign.

Saturday the Cardinals will return home to take on West Aurora's highly touted quintet. The Vikings will be idle.

MEADOWS AT HERSEY

When two teams are in the throes of modest losing streaks, you'd expect each to be anxious to right those wrongs with a chance to play as soon as possible.

Hersey is eager to end a two-game skid and to start digging out from its sub-.500, overall 2-3 record. A successful weekend would accomplish both the Huskies' goals.

Rolling Meadows, on the other hand, is looking to exit from a three-game loss skid, but head coach Ken Arneson doesn't believe looking up to the much bigger Huskies is the easiest way out.

"I know they've been having their problems, too," Arneson said. "I just hope they're not too mean and ornery tonight. It seems like everybody has something to take out against us."

Familiar faces may be missing from both lineups tonight which may affect the brand of ball each team is accustomed to playing.

Hersey's playmaking guard Kevin Lephart sprained his foot against Palatine last week and according to coach Roger Steingraber, the inflammation is still hounding his 5-9 scrapper. "Let's say he's questionable pending on how he feels tonight," Steingraber said. "If he's not ready, we'll probably go with (Mark) Krause."

Arneson is also faced with the task of finding a running mate for forward Dave Thorstensen — a 6-3 jumper who impressed on the Jayvee squad and earned a starting berth with the Mustang varsity.

Jack Lloyd, the 6-1 muscleman who normally mans the position, has been pre-occupied with practice-interrupting football banquets which found him receiving the coveted Knute Rockne Award among others for his all-state play on Meadows' football team.

TIME: Preliminary at 6:30 p.m., followed by varsity at approximately 8 p.m., Friday, Dec. 15.

PLACE: Hersey High School, 1904 E. Thomas St., Arlington Heights.

COACHES: Rolling Meadows, Ken Arneson; Hersey, Roger Steingraber.

"I don't know who we'll lean to," Arneson said. He's left the position up for grabs among seniors Bill Geegan and Len Link and sophomore John Hogan who are battling down to the wire for the starting nod.

Arneson was quick to mention the success Palatine enjoyed against Hersey last week by running with the ball, pressing full court and moving the ball on offense with short, snappy passing.

"We have to move out there the same way we did against Fremd in the first half," Arneson admitted. "I think we played our best 15 minutes of basketball against Fremd, despite a lot of turnovers and the fact that we missed seven shots from between 6-10 feet."

Steingraber confirmed that his Huskies have difficulty with an opposing press and admitted that it took a toll on 6-11 center Dave Corzine who was forced to accept the inbound pass, run the length of the court and then ward off two or three Pirates who were fighting for position under the boards.

Even more important, though, will be Hersey's ability to get the ball to Corzine who owns a non-stoppable turnaround jumper from eight feet away. "Dave had 26 shot attempts (38 points) last week," Steingraber said. "That's the most he's had all year. We've got to keep getting him the ball."

Both teams will keep busy with non-league games Saturday night when Hersey entertains Barrington and Rolling Meadows travels to Fenton.

TIME: Preliminary at 6:30; varsity at approximately 8:00, Friday, Dec. 15.

PLACE: Schaumburg High School, 1100 W. Schaumburg Rd.

COACHES: Conant, Redlinger; Schaumburg, Joe Breault.

straight losses that have dropped his record to 3-3. Schaumburg stands 2-2.

Last weekend was a long one for Conant, which lost 58-47 at Prospect and 61-52 at East Leyden. The Cougars showed some periods of good play in both games but are mired in a deep, puzzling slump from the free-throw line. They have managed just 19 free throws in 44 attempts in their last four games, an incredible 29 per cent.

Coach Dick Redlinger has made a wholesale lineup shakeup for this one. Mike Atkocitis, formerly a guard, and Tracy Robertson, who has been playing forward, will switch positions. Dick Southworth will remain at the other guard, Roger Sander will start at center for the first time, and the other forward position was considered wide open earlier this week. Redlinger hopes that either 6-7 Steve Irion or 6-4 Dave Sutherland — who at times have played well — will take charge at the position.

"It all rests on the shoulders of our big kids," says Redlinger. "We've got to rebound better and be more aggressive. We've also got to be patient and take only good shots. The kids will be up for this one. They like to win and we've had good practices."

For Schaumburg, coach Joe Breault will go with his usual lineup except that Art Abraham will start at a guard. Abraham, though only 5-7, played what Breault felt was "an excellent game on defense" against Glenbard, holding his high scorer to only six points. He was filling in for Dave Hill who had a case of the flu.

Breault also had words of praise, understandably, for 6-6 forward Trent Tucker, who enjoyed a 27-point outburst to pace last Friday's victory. Tucker now has 80 points in four games for an even 20-point average.

"I think our team showed a lot of heart and a lot of poise in winning that one at Glenbard," said Breault. "Victories have been few and far between for us (the Saxons were 3-18 a year ago) but now our guys are beginning to have confidence in themselves."

Last year's outstanding Conant team topped Schaumburg twice by 64-51 and 71-39.

Although Conant has good size and Schaumburg is rather small, the Cougars won't have much of a height advantage tonight because of their lineup changes. Both teams are apt to press on defense at any time.

Schaumburg visits Crown Saturday night in a non-league tussle.

Hersey Frosh Tourney To Begin Monday

Eight teams will hook up in the Hersey Freshman Invitational Basketball Tournament with two games set for each of four evenings, starting Monday.

Defending champion Maine South heads a field which includes host Hersey, Maine West, Deerfield, Schaumburg, Mundelein, Elk Grove and Barrington.

The schedule Monday matches Maine West and Deerfield at 7 p.m. and Schaumburg and Hersey at 8:30. On Tuesday, Dec. 19, Mundelein will meet Elk Grove at 7 p.m. and Barrington will play Maine South at 8:30.

The winners will play in 7 p.m. and 8:30 games Wednesday with the championship and third place battles set for the same times Thursday evening, Dec. 21.

Admission is $1.00 for adults and 50 cents for children.

Card 'Jayvees' Too Powerful For Elmwood

Coach Don Anderson is quick to admit that Elmwood Park isn't too tough this season. For just that reason, the Arlington swim coach sent his "Jayvee" team against their hosts and still rolled up a lopsided score.

Winning 10 out of 11 events, the Cardinals romped to a 73-22 victory with the regulars enjoying the proceedings on the sidelines. They had their workout in the morning — a 5,000-yard one.

Steve Heller paced the team with victories in the 200 and 100 freestyle events.

Other winners were Kiernan Mack in the individual medley, Erick Karger in diving, Don Herrick in the butterfly, Jeff Haseman in the 400 freestyle, Ron Heffner in the backstroke, Larry Miller in the breaststroke, the medley relay team (Hefner, Miller, Don Fanning and Jeff Schramuk) and the 400 freestyle relay team (Heller, Herrick, Haseman and Miller).

The sophomores, led by the double victories of Dan Stubling also won easily, 79-16.

Arlington Heights Minor Hockey

MIDWEST ALL-STARS
Arlington's Midwest All-Stars, despite being short-handed eleven minutes of the game, tied Deerfield 2-2 at the Spectrum last Saturday.

Midway of the first period Deerfield opened the scoring, with Arlington tying it up with two seconds to go on a goal by Hudec, assisted by Santelli. Arlington outshot Deerfield 11-3 in the second period, but neither team could score the tie. Deerfield went ahead again at 8:43 of the third period, but Jerry Weber tied the game with an unassisted goal two minutes later while Arlington was short-handed. Goals Mike Mattox, for Arlington, stopped 15 shots, while the Deerfield goalie made 23 saves.

SQUIRT ALL-STARS
The Squirt All-Stars lost their first game in exhibition play last week when they were outscored by an outstanding Evanston team, 4-1. Arlington's two goals were scored by Lee Gray and Bobby Anderson, with the only assist to Andy Lund.

REG-WEE ALL-STARS
Bob Hilde scored one goal and assisted on another as the Reg-Wee lost to Deerfield 2-1 in an evenly matched and well played contest. Arlington's other goal was scored by Paul Grayman, unassisted. Goals Jim Murphy, for Arlington stopped 12 shots, while the Deerfield goalie made 9 saves.

BANTAM DIVISION
Arlington All-Stars 1, Deerfield 0

ROSE LEAGUE
Conoco 3, Wauconda 1
Den Mattox scored in the first period, assisted by Jeff Smith. This goal stood up until the start of the third period when Wauconda took charge with two quick goals by Bill Bowers and Mark Heston. Scott Carey assisted on both. Mattox scored his second goal, unassisted, and Dave Zimmer put the game away with another goal, also unassisted.

Five goal keeping by Mark Munroe, playing his first game after a month-long injury, reduced red, kept Conoco in the game. He stopped 23 shots, 12 in the first period when Wauconda mounted a furious assault. Other good games came from Jim Heston, who worked hard in the corners, and Matt Liebow who played a fine defensive game.

Conoco 3, Johnson's 1
Johnson's scored first on a goal by Lear, assisted by Chuck Lynch. Then Mark Munroe scored the second, resulting in a desperate Johnson attack in the third period with a succession of five saves. His team mates played their best game to date. In the meantime, scoring six goals, Dan Pfeiffer scored two goals and assisted on another. Brad Webster scored two goals. Dave Zimmer picked up a goal and an assist. Den Mattox scored once, while Jeff Smith and Warren Johnson each tagged an assist. Paul Adams, Paul Wilbers and Leo Lewis also had good games. Chuck Lynch and Dave Bonci worked hard in the losing cause.

Wheeling Swims Past 2 Opponents; Now 3-0

Wheeling's swim team didn't let a delay in their meet with McHenry wreck its concentration. Called off on Tuesday because of the weather, the Wildcats hosted it a day late and still emerged the winner, submerging McHenry 59-38.

A pair of double winners paced the 'Cat scoring. Bill Modica won the 100 freestyle in 53.9 and the 200 in 2:00. Ken Bergman dominated the individual medley in 2:16.7 and the butterfly in 1:01.2.

Posting other wins for the 3-0 Wheeling team were Paul Lindquist in the 50 freestyle (25.0), George Wurtz in diving and the freestyle relay team of Lindquist, Mike Hyde, Modica and Bergman (3:46.0).

These Wildcats took seconds: Hyde in the 50 freestyle (25.7) and the 100 freestyle (58.1), Dan Woodruff in the 200 freestyle (2:11.9) and the 400 freestyle (4:41.3), Ed Wilkosz in the 200 individual medley (2:40.0), Lindquist in the butterfly (1:02.3), Larry Slad in the backstroke (1:09.0) and Mike Saltzman in the breaststroke (1:15.2).

The sophomores easily captured the frosh-soph meet, 74-11.

Coach Doug Cotner's team made its record 2-0 a few days before by handling Elgin Larkins, 81-14.

Modica again won two events — 200 freestyle (2:03.1) and the 400 freestyle (4:20.3). So did Bergman and Lindquist. Bergman took the butterfly (1:02.8) and breaststroke (1:10.0). Lindquist won the individual medley (2:30.3) and the 100 freestyle (57.3).

Other winners were Hyde in the 50 freestyle (26.4), Slad in the backstroke (1:10.3) and Wurtz in diving.

The sophomores took all 11 firsts for a 78-3 victory.

Binsel couldn't put it together, mustering only six shots on Welders goal while Welders replied with 23. Andy Chatten and Paul Stolzner scored hat tricks, while Bakas and Kostopoulous each scored one goal and assisted on two. More picked up two assists, Senten and Schraeger one each. Nolte assisted by Lattot scored for Binsel.

JUNIORS

Wauconda 11, Rob Roy 2
Rob Roy played this game with only 1 and one half lines, but gave as good as they got until about halfway into the second period when superior numbers told. Some of the Rob Roy players spent almost the entire game on the ice. Jarochi scored first assisted by McGuire for Rob Roy. The other Rob Roy goal was initiated by Jarochi, who while heavily checked by four opponents, dropped a blind pass to right defenseman Chris Lindahl who hit a slap shot on the pass from the blue line. The Wauconda goalie had no chance. But the more numerous Wauconda players were Rob Roy down.

SQUIRTS

Arlington J's 8, Lattot 2
Tim Ditch scored his second hat trick of the year for the J's while Bob Hillstrom scored twice. Jim Mundorf scored the other J goal. Ditch also picked up two assists, as did Dennis Kriz. Bob Klingender also assisted on one goal. Lattot's goals were scored by Mike Alfio who also assisted Larry Smith's goal, scored in the closing minutes of the game. Mike Bickel, in goal for Lattot kicked out 14 shots and robbed the J's of many good shots.

Jaycees 4, Computers 2
Jaycees opened the scoring when Ed Cann went in unassisted early in the first period. In the second period Century scored against the run of the play, making only two shots on goal and scoring twice. Lee Schmidt scored them both, the first assisted by Eric Wold and the second on a fine unassisted effort. Despite the goal tending by Computers Throp and Friedman, Dave Latze scored the first goal of his hat trick near the end of the period with assists from Ed Cann and Dean Schroeder. Latzer finished off the hat trick in the third period assisted once by Schroeder and once unassisted. Fine goal tending by Century Computer kept them in the game as their forwards had trouble with a hard checking Jaycees defense.

Computers 4, Lattot 8
Far closer than the score indicates, this game saw a hat trick for Lee Schmidt, assisted by Stanley and Weed, who also scored the other Computer goal. Lattot made a game of it but were just unable to score although they had the edge in shots on goal.

DAWYAMS

Arlington J's 4, Jaycees 1
The Arlington J's remained undefeated as they downed the Jaycees 4-1. The only scoring in the first period was by the J's Tom Moore scored by Dennis Kriz. In the second period Bob Hillstrom and Tim Ditch (assisted by Bill Kuhn) scored for the J's and Dave Lotzer, on a pass from Ed Cann not one for the Jaycees. At the beginning of the 3rd period, Dennis Kriz and Jim Mundorf combined to make the final goal for the J's.

Ford Hikes Prices; G. M. Asks 3% Boost

DETROIT, Dec. 8 (Special) —The Price Commission today allowed Ford Motor Co. to raise 1973 model car and truck prices an average of $62.55 a vehicle, or 1.5 per cent, effective Monday.

Hardly had the ink on the commission's stamp of approval dried when General Motors Corp., which last week was granted an average 3.5, or 1.2 per cent increase, asked for an added 3 per cent price boost.

The Ford increases range from $29 on the subcompact Pinto two-door to $190 on the Lincoln Continental Mark IV.

cover general economic costs [1972] and safety equipment [to cover the cost of side guard door beams which become standard equipment Jan. 1]. Ford, as yet, hasn't asked for a price boost for economic considerations, but is expected to do so. On today's increase, Ford said it will honor prices on firm retail orders taken by dealers up to midnight Sunday at the old prices, regardless of delivery date.

Grade School Basketball

NORTHWEST CATHOLIC ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION
In play this Sunday in the 1972-73 season, the schedule will be: St. Thomas of Villanova at Our Lady of the Wayside, St. Anne at St. James, St. Alphonsus at St. Colette, St. Emily at St. Theresa and St. Mary at St. Hubert.

In the eighth grade game, St. Colette rallied in the fourth quarter for a hard fought 39-44 victory. St. Colette trailed throughout the first quarter but tied the score 24-24 at the half. Leading the Tigers were Jeff St. Colette with 21 and Bob Rose with 19. St. Colette grabbed 12 rebounds. It was neck and neck in the second half until the winners pulled away late.

The seventh grade contest saw St. Alphonsus take command early and whip St. Colette, 36-11. Dan Smith scored eight points for the losers. (No other details were reported).

St. Colette's sixth-graders made it three wins in four games with a 24-21 win. The Tigers were paced by Jim Rose with nine points and 20 rebounds, followed by Keith Zarawski with six points and nine rebounds.

Wayside vs. St. Raymond
The Wildcats of Our Lady of the Wayside led from start to finish in the eighth-grade game and beat a stubborn St. Raymond team 48-31. Bill Givens, Frank LaSimone and Gary Kempin led the winners.

St. Raymond was the winner in seventh grade action, 25-26. P. Levan had the hot hand

In the first half while P. Tumbaro paced St. Raymond in the second half John Thompson and Jim McCarthy were high scorers for the Wildcats.

St. Theresa vs. St. Emily
Jim Hamill led the St. Theresa eighth grade to a close 35-33 victory over St. Emily with 11 points and 16 rebounds. Teammate John Saver hit 11 points and Andy Peterson scored 10 points behind 22-16 at halftime, but a solid defense in the second half held the losers to 11 points. St. Theresa revised its record to 2-3.

St. Theresa's powerful seventh-grade team remained perfect with a 11-0 record after a pair of wins — 25-15 over Mary Seat of Wisdom of Park Ridge and 29-16 over St. Emily.

In the win over Mary Seat, Theresa got off to a quick 9-3 lead but fell behind 12-11. Dave McKinney hit three straight baskets in the third quarter to put Theresa ahead for good. McKinney took scoring honors with 13 and teammate Chris Plazak scored eight. John Josten played a fine defensive game.

St. Theresa substituted freely in the 30-16 win over St. Emily in Mount Prospect. Theresa piled up leads of 10-3 and 20-6 after the first and second quarters. McKinney was high with eight points and Kevin Weaver had six. Gordie Anderson played well on defense with eight steals.

ST. JOSEPH THE WORKER
St. Joseph's eighth-grade team strangled its 10th straight victory by rolling over Boyce Junior High of Evanston, 72-32. The Chargers featured a balanced scoring attack, led by Brian Bezowicz with 16 points. Jim Lockreier chipped in 14 and Mark Lyle 11.

The Chargers won conference victories at all three levels over St. Mary of Fremont Center, 22-12, staying in sole possession of first place. David Gueck led St. Joe with 12 points.

The seventh grade also remained in first place with a 66-22 triumph. Leading a very balanced scoring attack were David Scanton with 12 points, Scott Mulford with 11 and Jim Lockreier with 10. St. Joe became 5-1 overall.

The eighth grade raced to its 11th win in as many games with a 66-31 rout of St. Mary. Brian Bezowicz was high-point man with 25 and Scott Steiner contributed 10.

St. Joseph the Worker will entertain St. Gilbert in a state of conference games this Sunday at Holmes Junior High. The first game will start at 1 p.m.

ST. MARY OF BUILTALD GROVE
A fierce, full-court press forced St. Joe's at Libertyville into many errors and St. Mary's sixth grade team coasted to an easy 46-14 victory. Steve Toporek led the scoring with 12, while Fred Machin and Greg Bazany contributed nine and John Bambini hit for eight. The sixth grade record now stands at 6-0 and they have outscored their opponents 222-49.

St. Mary's seventh grade won their sixth in seven outings by defeating St. Joe's 48-21. A very effective half-court press used for the first time sealed the victory. Paul Wiloff with 21 led all scorers while Jim Hansen had 10 and Bill Lilly eight for St. Mary's. Superior board strength made the victory easier than team records would have indicated.

The Blau varsity turned back a stubborn Libertyville club 40-29. Fred Hensch and Dave Brooks controlled the boards and were the difference in the ball game. The varsity's record now stands at 3-3.

In the St. John of Niles tournament, St. Mary's varsity won its opening game with a 38-23 victory over St. Benedict of Chicago. St. Benedict cut the margin to two in the fourth quarter, but St. Mary's held on to win. Fred Hensch with 12 and Bobby Mason with nine led the scoring.

Milton Richman

NEW YORK (UPI) — George Foreman has this habit in common with most grown men who have made something of themselves and feel good about it.

These men like to remember some of the things that happened to them as kids, some of the things they maybe didn't think too much about then, but make them proud to talk about now.

That's what George Foreman was doing.

The news conference was over. George Foreman and Joe Frazier, the heavyweight champion, both had gotten up and talked about their 15-round title fight to take place in Kingston, Jamaica, Jan. 22, and now each was heading his own separate way.

Off on one side of the room, George Foreman picked up his highly fashioned, chocolate-colored leather coat, pulled the belt around his waist and said to a number of those around him, yet nobody in particular.

"It's fantastic!"

"What's fantastic?" someone asked the big, longarmed challenger from Marshall, Tex., who's now living in Hayward, Calif.

"It's fantastic that a man can be born in this country, not even have a pair of shoes when he was a boy, and now 23 years later, he's gonna get nearly half a million dollars."

"You didn't have shoes when you were a kid?" one of Foreman's questioners pressed him.

"Uh-huh," replied the man hoping to become the next world heavyweight champ. "I didn't even have my own pair of shoes."

George Foreman first gained real attention in Mexico City four years ago when he won the Olympic Heavyweight title. That in itself as an accomplishment, but it was what he did immediately after winning the championship that made people remember him.

While some of his fellow Olympians were behaving completely contrary on the victory stand, George Foreman came up with a couple of small American flags and walked around the ring proudly with them in his hands after capturing the title.

Later, when they asked him why he did it, Foreman said:

Why not? It's a good country. I'm proud of it."

Joe Frazier came up pretty much the same way George Foreman did. There were no millionaires on Is block in Beaufort, S.C., when he was a kid. Frazier earned the Olympic Heavyweight crown in Tokyo four years before Foreman did, and for this fight coming up, Smokin' Joe, who also feels this isn't too bad a country, will wind up with $850,000 against 42½ per cent of the receipts. Foreman gets $375,000 against 20 per cent.

George Foreman has had 37 fights and won them all. He has won 34 by knockouts, and feels he has a good chance against Joe Frazier. He goes even further than that.

"I'm sure I'll beat him," he said, when he got up to say his piece Tuesday.

He's been winned and dined and been with presidents and kings," Foreman said of Frazier. "He came in here today with a couple bunnies. Now it's my time."

When Joe Frazier's turn to speak came around, he said Foreman reminded him of Cassius Clay.

Foreman and Clay are not really alike, though.

Frazier continued:

"Everybody's tryin' to get rid of me for the last 12 years. They've buried me, cremated me, dug me up, put me back, and I'm still livin', pretty good for a dead man."

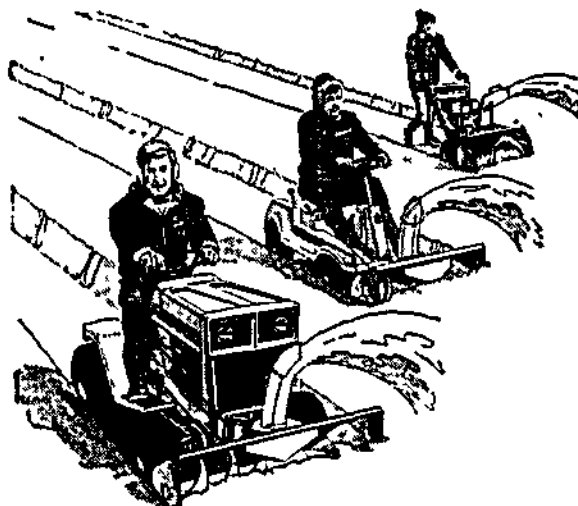

"I am not a bragger, but the way I feel now, nobody around is gonna take that title away from me. You know Yank manager Yank Durham never had any problem trainin' me. He has no problem now I'm not the type guy who plays anybody cheap. I wouldn't, if I was gonna fight my own brother. Come January 22nd, I'm gonna be ready to smoke. I'm gonna do my thing, and what I like to do is smoke."

George Foreman, sitting on Joe Frazier's right, listened quietly. He was taking it all in. He didn't look at all worried.

When you think about it, how can you ever worry a man who didn't even have a pair of shoes as a kid?

Palatine Hockey Report

Note to publicity director: Please call Larry Everhart at the Herald, 394-1300, Monday through Thursday after 10 a.m., for instructions on how to properly report game results.

Squirt Division
Traveling Team
The Squirt traveling team, sponsored by Palatine Rotary, finished two weeks of hockey with three straight wins. In Polar Dome play Palatine had to settle for a 4-4 tie against Streamwood. It took the lead in the first period with two goals by Charlie Marland and one each by T. J. Peluso and David Kudi with two assists from Bruce Bartmann and one from Peluso, only to see the lead whittled away. Palatine finally was tied when Streamwood scored twice in the last minute of play.

Rotary lost 4-2 to Oak Park at the Arlington Ice Spectrum. Both Palatine goals were scored by Peluso on assists from Rick McLellan, Kudi and Bartmann. Rotary lost again 5-0 at Evanston the next day.

The picture brightened with a 4-1 win for the Rotary Squirt team against Tri-City at the Polar Dome, moving the winners into sixth place. Goals came from Rick Pula (two), Marland, and Mark Anderson. Two assists were credited to Greg Trocke and one each to Scott Thomas, Pula, and Marland. Palatine got good play from goalies Dave Niemeyer and John Chope.

The winning streak took off on Dec. 9 with a tight 1-0 victory over Streamwood. Palatine's only goal was scored in the last period by Brian Koerner on assists from Craig Jenkins and Tom Jordan. That same night Palatine again won 5-0 against Oak Lawn at the Ice Spectrum. The goals came from Jenkins, Koerner and Pula on two assists from Terry Bleeker and one each from McLellan, Anderson, and Trocke. Goalie Niemeyer, who played the entire game, racked up his first shutout of the season.

Free Wheel Division
Traveling Team
The Palatine Jaycees traveled to Lake Forest College to play an exhibition game against the Chicago Minor Hawks. It didn't turn out to be much of an exhibition with the Minor Hawks crushing the Jaycees 8-1. The only score for the Jaycees came from Mike Mikulan, assisted by Mike Muraloni.

The next morning the Jaycees traveled to Oak Park for a Northern Illinois Hockey League game. Oak Park opened the scoring 50 seconds into the game and held the lead until the third period when Mike Muraloni knotted the score, assisted by David Anderson. A minute and a half later Anderson, assisted by Mike Dalonso, scored the winning goal. Scott Vena and Rick Mitchell shared the goaltending for the Jaycees.

The Jaycees returned to the Polar Dome to defend their hold on first place against the Tri-City Blues. The Jaycees rattled off eight goals before their opponents could get on the scoreboard and won 11-0.

In the first period David Anderson opened the scoring assisted by K. C. Gullett. Mikulan later stole the puck, walked in on the goalie all alone and buried the puck in the upper right corner.

Early in the second period Brett Anderson, the only Canadian on the Jaycees, scored assisted by Gullett and David Anderson.

Brett Anderson then stuffed another one past the Tri-City goalie, this time assisted by Gullett and Bleeker. After assisting on the previous two goals, Gullett took a pass from Matt Kangas and put it in the net. Also assisting on this goal was Muraloni. Mikulan then scored, assisted by Dan Thomas, and Mike scored another one, unassisted. This was his third goal of the night and his first hat trick at the Polar Dome. Brett Anderson also had his first hat trick in the United States.

The Jaycees responded to a Tri-City score with goals from Ed Price assisted by Mikulan, Bleeker unassisted, and Ed Price assisted by Fred Vitis. Tri-City closed out the scoring on a goal by Smith unassisted. Vena was in the nets for the Jaycees.

The Jaycees traveled to Westmont to beat the Elmhurst Huskies 3-0 in a Northern Illinois League game. The Huskies opened the scoring on a picture play and had things their way until Mikulan took a pass from Andy McLellan and tied the score. Before the Huskies could recover, Mikulan dug the puck out of the corner and fed Dan Thomas breaking down the slot and stuffed it in and the Jaycees and the lead. Near the end of the period Price fed Brett Anderson in the slot and Brett scored the winning goal. Vena again was in the nets.

The Jaycees returned home to blank the Oak Lawn Flyers 8-0. The game was nip and tuck during the first period until Fred Vitis assisted by Tim Cunningham scored with only 20 seconds left in the period. Second period scoring was done by Gullett assisted by Dave Anderson and Brett Anderson assisted by Bleeker and Dalonso. In the third period, the Jaycees broke it wide open on goals by Matt Kangas assisted by Bleeker, Mikulan unassisted, Muraloni assisted by Price, Anderson, unassisted, and Price assisted by Mikulan. Mitchell earned the shutout.

The team traveled to Carol Stream to whip the Dundee Demons, 6-2. Gullett opened the scoring shortly after one minute had elapsed in the first period, assisted by Dalonso. After the Demons had tied the score on a short-handed goal, Dalonso of the Jaycees rounded out the scoring in the first period. The assists went to Kangas and Vitis. The only score in the second period went to Cunningham on an assist by Dave Anderson. In the third period, Gullett then put the game away by scoring two goals to complete his hat trick. Bleeker assisted on both goals and Dave Anderson the first. Mikulan closed out the scoring on an unassisted goal just before the final buzzer. Vena and Mitchell shared the nets for the Jaycees.

Free Wheel Division
House League Teams
Arby's House Team 4
Zimmer's Hardware

James Camel led the scoring for Arby's with two goals on assists by Dave Dudek and Dave Jackson. Barry Peterson scored one on an assist by Dan Sullivan. The final score for Arby's was by Ken Peters on a breakaway. Scoring for Zimmer Hardware were Drew Mize and Charles Haines.

Woodfield Ford 2
Bob's Freeway Gas 2

The Ford team broke the game open in the third period, scoring four times. Mike Johnson and Dan Campbell each scored twice and Stewart Smith, Jeff Wiley, and Mike Cullen once. Steve Pederson, Dan Trocke, Mike Cullen and George Moncek were credited with assists. Ted Hutton played a fine game in goal for Woodfield Ford. Brian DeValk and Kevin McGuire scored for Bob's Freeway.

Palatine Savings and Loan 3
Old-Fashioned Chevrolet 2

Goals for the winners were by Dirk Beveridge, Frank Courley and Jim Campise with assists by Jerry Olles, Barry Quirk, Matt Mara, and John Bartlett. Dan Dyer was in the nets for the winners. Scoring twice for Old-Fashioned Chevrolet was Lance Joaquin, assisted by Mike Krueger.

Midwest Division
Traveling Team
The Palatine Norsemen Hockey traveling team, ages 15 and 16 has been playing regular Northern Illinois Hockey League games as well as in the Polar Dome League.

The most recent game results:
The Norsemen, sponsored by the Arlington Elks, tied Streamwood 3-3. Kevin Fromm led the scoring with two goals and one assist, Mike McSweeney one goal and one assist, and Tom Garatola and John Fredrickson also earned assists for Palatine. Scoring for Streamwood was shared by Frank Young and Stelmann on assists by Larson and Wingren.

In another Northern Illinois Hockey League game at the Ice Spectrum in Arlington Heights, the Norsemen lost to Wilmette 1-0. The lone score of the game was made by Montrous, assisted by Rankins.
The Palatine Midwest team is playing with four of the boys out with injuries, two being hockey-related injuries.

POINTED SUGGESTIONS

Elk Grove Hockey Facts

The Elk Grove Village Amateur Hockey Association players ran their undefeated streak to 13 games by defeating the Sabres 3-1 and tying Hoffman 2-2 in Polar Dome action.

Elk Grove played its best defensive game of the year, led by goalies Steve Cimino and Larry McDermott and defenseman Bill Halpenny. Rob Goeske and Bob Brun to hold the powerful Sabres to one goal. The Sabres scored first but Rob Goeske scored for Elk Grove, assisted by Mike Tucker and Jim Samuels, to make it 1-1. Tom Balcer scored the winning goal, assisted by Bob Lamanilla and Larry Mitsch.

In Polar Dome play, Elk Grove was held to its third straight 2-2 tie. Elk Grove outshot Hoffman by a 2-1 margin but the goaltending of Hoffman held Elk Grove to two goals.

Hoffman scored first to take a 1-0 lead, but Larry Mitsch scored for Elk Grove, assisted by Tom Balcer and Bill Halpenny to tie the game. After two periods the game remained tied at 1-1 with Hoffman getting only three shots on goal.

Hoffman came on strong in the third period and scored to take the lead. Rob Goeske scored for Elk Grove, assisted by Bob Brun to tie the game. Hoffman had the pressure on the rest of the game but Elk Grove's fine goaltending stopped all shots.

Next game is Tuesday, Dec. 19, Elk Grove vs. Streamwood at the Polar Dome at 9:30 p.m.

Grand Rapids Climbs In CBA Play

It doesn't matter whether the game is professional basketball or hockey or chess. Winning on the road often spells the difference between a champion and a runnerup.

Bob Sullivan, general manager of the Grand Rapids Tackers, certainly subscribes to that theory. His club has won four games in a row to climb into contention for the championship in the Continental Basketball Association — but the Tackers have made only two appearances on their home court in five weeks of competition.

"We got off to a slow start this season," said Sullivan, recalling Grand Rapids' three game losing streak, "but I think that can be traced to the fact that we didn't have any practice sessions before the season began. And we didn't schedule any exhibitions, either."

"Even though we lost our first three games, I was confident that we still had the best club in the league. Our players weren't in shape and their desire wasn't what it should have been. But after those early losses, they realized they had to hustle to win the championship. And they've started to put everything together."

The Tackers hiked their record to 4-3 last Saturday by tripping Decatur 112-127.

as Steve Mix collected 39 points and 15 rebounds and Dennis Stewart popped in 31 points. Grand Rapids' front line of Mix, Stewart and Joe Johnson is the highest scoring trio in the CBA, accounting for 92 points per game between them.

Coach Don Vroom's backcourt combination of Don Edwards and Charlie Tucker also has been bolstered with the acquisition of 6-4 Willie McCarter, a former All-America at Drake who retired after two seasons with the Los Angeles Lakers. McCarter currently is head basketball coach at Battle Creek High School.

Meanwhile, Flint pushed its record to 6-1 last Saturday by turning back Rockford 136-139 as Justus Thigpen, the league's leading scorer, sank 27 of 38 shots and finished with a record 63 points. Thigpen is averaging 43.3 points for seven games.

The West Division tightened up last weekend as Rockford dropped a pair of games to Flint and Decatur (106-104). The Rockets are a curiosity, winning only once in three home games but showing a 3-2 record on the road. The Rockets, who has lost three games in a row, sank only 32 per cent of their shots (40 of 125) in their loss at Decatur last Sunday and Marshall was held to 10 points, his lowest production of the campaign.

Meanwhile, Pontiac snapped its four-game losing streak last Saturday by rallying to dump Lake County 113-102. Trailing by five points with 2:10 remaining, Pontiac overcame the deficit behind guard Jerry Moss and 6-9 pivotman Craig Love. Moss finished with 28 points, Love got 22 and George Gervin netted 23.

The Debut Of A Belly Dancer

She Learned To Swivel And Shake

by GENIE CAMPBELL

"Ah sir... I thought maybe you could help. Do you sell jewels? You know, the kind for your navel?"

The silence on the other end of the telephone line was finally broken by an answer that was extremely hesitant if not altogether unsure.

"Well yes, I guess I have something you could use. But I have several kinds... flat ones, pointed ones. It depends upon your shape... of your belly button, of course. Wouldn't you rather come in and try one on?"

"A pointed one will do quite nicely," I replied being careful not to laugh at the salesman's embarrassment. "For an 'Inny,' it's preferred."

The arrival of one small crystal jewel (C.O.D.) was the final preparation for what would turn out to be a brief yet enlightening new career.

No, I hadn't been invited to perform in Athens, nor was a Turk auditioning me to join his harem. I was, however, making my stage debut as a belly dancer at the Olympic Flame Club in Chicago.

I wasn't lonely. Nineteen other amateurs, the boldest members of the belly dancing classes at both Northwest and Park Ridge YMCAs, were joining me.

"Belly dancing, you're kidding me. Whatever made you do it?"

"YOU KNOW for awhile I thought you were saying belly dancing instead of ballet."

"But it is and I am. What more can I say?"

Quite a heterogeneous group we were: tall and short, slender and stout, the very confident ladies who adored a male audience peering in at the door and misses who shivered in their leotards.

"It sure beats yoga," laughed one happy woman, a middle-aged housewife who enjoyed her weekly evening out to swivel and shake.

"It's a sure fire way to turn a wife into the sensuous woman... I hope," quietly whispered another into my ear.

Whether or not belly dancing helps one get into shape for snow skiing (one woman was convinced) or melt away unwanted inches from the midriff (if stomach muscles don't tighten, they at least ache), one thing is for sure. Belly dancing, while an age-old art, is also a strenuous sport.

Learning the suggestive motions was one thing. Matching them to the rhythm of our cymbals was something else altogether. Forty women and 80 "clangers" add up to just one thing... a lot of noise.

BUT WITH a little practice the classes progressed and Fatima, our instructor (who readily admits to a humble beginning herself), introduced us to the Turkish and Egyptian walks, pivots and swirls. First the medusa and then down on the floor into the snake... hiss, hiss, hiss.

And would you believe belly dancing can even be dangerous? For instance, it almost got me in trouble with the law.

Flying home for a weekend with 600 coins stashed away in a small suitcase, the makings for an elaborate belt to set off my costume, I failed to realize I would be caught by metal detector machines and mistaken for a skyjacker.

"COME WITH ME, lady," I was gently nudged out of the passenger boarding line by someone who appeared to exude a great deal of authority. "Now tell us, what's all this metal in your bag?"

"I'm a belly dancer and this is all part of my costume."

"You wear these?"

"All six hundred."

"Get on board miss, for heaven's sake... get on board."

A week before the show was to take place several women were forced to turn in their jewels, victims of irate husbands who refused to share their wives with the public.

Yet others were more enthusiastic. One husband went so far as to make his wife's costume for her. He added lots of fringe.

We all arrived opening night (also the only night) in bright chiffon laden with all the adornment of the profession... jewels, bracelets, tassels and eyelash adhesive (the best glue in the world for securing in place belly button jewels).

I ALSO CONSIDERED adding a fake tattoo, hesitating between a blue-feathered peacock and two red hearts with "mom" written through. But I was told a tattooed belly dancer was not in vogue for fall of '72.

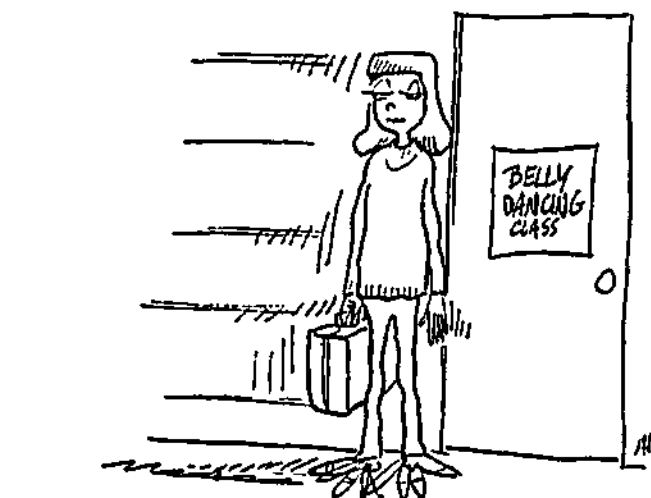

The dining room was packed. It was amateur night at the Olympic Flame and the club was overflowing with curiosity seekers.

And if our steps weren't perfectly coordinated, at least we were natural. Not being professionals (certainly a free dinner is not usually the only compensation), we were also very generous with our time.

Following the final dance we tipped down the narrow rows between tables lovingly feeding grapes to all the male members of our special one-night audience.

And that, no doubt, was the smartest move of the entire evening. How did I return with a fistful of dollars? It wasn't just my dancing. It pays to have friends planted in the audience.

HOMEMADE CHRISTMAS decorations are currently the main attractions at the Museum Country Store. Above are felt ornaments made out of stained glass, pine cones and felt. A wall decoration and Santa's boot that doubles as a holiday cookie jar compete for attention at left. A goose egg decorated with pearls is the setting for a delicate scene between Mr. and Mrs. Claus at bottom.

At Country Store

It Looks Like Christmas

The Museum Country Store in Arlington Heights is decorated for Christmas. The look, however, is only temporary.

Just when store managers Lew and Helen Smith set up a display to their liking, a customer comes in and ruins it all by taking home the main centerpiece.

But that's all right by the Smiths. It's the primary reason for exhibiting all the handcrafted Christmas decorations in the first place.

More than 275 craftsmen have articles on display in the Museum Country Store located at 112 W. Fremont. And most of these artisans currently have on sale special items just for the holidays.

CERAMIC Christmas trees that light up are for sale along with a host of hand-made ornaments. There are those fashioned from felt, wood and yarn. Door and table decorations are plentiful. So are Christmas gift ideas, both old and new.

The Museum Country Store specializes not only in crafts, but also antiques. And if you're interested in creating an old-fashioned tree, check out the old mercury Christmas balls that are for sale in the store. They're dated 1885.

Both Haviland and Hummel Christmas plates are available to collectors, those from this year and Christmases past.

Cheese enthusiasts will like the handcrafted ceramic chess sets. For children the Museum Country Store has on hand an abundant supply of stuffed animals and penny candy. (Smith apologizes because he must sell his candy canes at two cents apiece instead of one. Even candy is affected by inflation.)

IF YOU'RE FRESH out of ideas for persons on your holiday gift list, it might be a good idea to go in and talk to Lew Smith. He has all kinds of unusual items hidden away.

How about the propeller from an old airplane that flew in World War I? Lew Smith has one in the back room.

The Museum Country Store is now open Tuesdays through Saturdays until Christmas.

Collecting

with Grace Carolyn

Do you have your Christmas shopping all done? Have you mailed your cards, baked your fruit cake and prepared your plum? I haven't finished the first three, but the Swede in the house is all ready with his contribution to the holidays, the brewing of the plug.

To the uninitiated, plug is a heart-warming, soul-stirring mixture of several potent liquid ingredients, combined with spices, orange peel and raisins, guaranteed to make the wintry blasts more endurable, or at least to make one unaware that there are any wintry blasts. It was invented, they say, by the ancient Vikings who needed something to counteract the chill after coming home from a raid, or whatever Vikings always came home from. It was suspended from the ceiling in a goatskin bag, and the Norseman's hardness was judged by the length of the draught he could consume. (One small punch cup is hardly enough for me.)

Every Swede has his own pet recipe for plug, and my husband is true to his breed. He mixes the usual liquid ingredients, but labors long over his herb and spice bag and searches for just the right kind of raisins. The raisins absorb the strength of the brew and are eaten with a small spoon from the bottom of the cup.

WE HAVE AN elderly uncle, who has been a "teetotaler" all his life, but once a year, at Christmas, he relents a bit and takes a few of the raisins, rationalizing that they are fruit, not alcohol. Uncle Oscar always wears a toupee and he takes great pains to see that it is arranged very carefully on his head at all times.

One year he had a few raisins too many, and soon he was laughing, singing Swedish songs and having a delightful time, never realizing that his hairpiece had twisted about until the part ran across his head sideways, from ear to ear.

It took me a long time to acquire a taste for plug, and I know I never will become an addict, for it requires a heritage of east iron stomachs and galvanized pipes.

SINCE I AM a mixture of several ethnic origins, I didn't bring many customs to our home, but had to learn the Swedish ones from my husband and in-laws. The Christmas Eve dinner is a smorgasbord, with potato sausage, sill (herring) salad, lutefisk, meat balls, brown beans and my favorite, limpa bread. Limpa is a delicious rye and white flour bread made with cardamom and orange peel, much better than cake. Luckily, I have a sister-in-law who does most of the work, even stuffing her own potato sausage in the casings with an antique sausage stuffer. She lets me do the simple things, like slicing cheese and boiling the potatoes for the lutefisk.

Once again, the Collecting column sounds more like the Cook's Corner, but somehow, it's nice to collect the old customs at Christmas and to serve foods in the family tradition. Our children, who are half-Swede, like the idea, even though they aren't too fond of the foods. But most of all, they look forward to another evening with Uncle Oscar.

Questions? Please write Grace Carolyn Dahlberg, in care of Paddock Publications, Suburban Living, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.

The Book Stall

"THE SAVAGE DAY," BY JACK HIGGINS
160t Hinehart, $9.95

To flaming Ireland, where assassination is as common as rain, comes gun-runner Simon Vaughan, a half-Irish British agent on the trail of a stolen cache of munitions. The book is stuffed with the usual rebel types, but the author moves them about with dispatch and skill.

"FIRST A MURDER"
by JOHN CREASEY AS JEREMY YORK
McKay, $1.95

Superintendent Folly of Scotland Yard, who fancies himself a gourmet, and Detective Inspector Bell of Bournemouth, who prefers meat pie, follow the twists and turns of this plot that begins with an escaped killer well, maybe a killer and ends up — well, that would be telling.

"LOST AMERICA," EDITED BY
CONSTANCE M. GREIFF
Plyne Press, $15.95

For a young country we have destroyed much of our heritage and here is a sparkling assortment of photographs of imposing hotels and churches, magnificent theaters and courthouses that have fallen to the wrecker's ball, or succumbed to fire. But we still can enjoy our architectural patrimony through these photographs.

"OVER AND OUT,"
by NORMAN ROSTEN
George Braziller, $3.95

Norman Rosten is a playwright, a poet, a poetic novelist, a New Yorker more specifically, a Brooklynite; precisely a denizen of Brooklyn Heights, a community that attracts the artist seeking habit as Greenwich Village beckoned in an earlier time.

His "Over and Out" should be read by sweating writers anywhere who dream of doing great things in the Big City.

Rosten's central character is a writer, aging, having trouble with his wife whom he loves, a demi-success.

Things and people stand in the way of his pursuit of writing: The neighbors or shopkeepers who interrupt to pass the morning; his desperate march to the public library where he spends restless hours trying to get the words out; other encounters, sexier maybe, but no less frustrating; a disastrous, through no fault of his, business venture that leaves him temporarily debilitated and tamed by a reality that will see him tomorrow sitting in the library, giving it another try.

Rosten's hero is less exotically fueled than some others of the genre-Galley Jimson and Samson Shilline, for instance — but he knows the lash of the same drive.

John McKenna (UPI)

"SON OF GROUCHO," BY ARTHUR MARX
David McKay, $7.95

Groucho Marx was neither the best of fathers nor the worst, but he certainly was fascinating to live with. Here his son tells what it was like to be on the receiving end of Groucho's love — and his jealousy.

"ALL CREATURES GREAT AND SMALL,"
St. Martin's, $7.95

Here's one for the animal lovers who would just as soon read about four-legged and feathered friends. It's the warm story of life as a veterinarian in Yorkshire, England.

"WRITE MURDER DOWN"
BY RICHARD LOCKRIDGE
Lippincott, $5.95

Det. Lt. Nathan Shapiro is at it again, doubling his way through a murder case that involves a dead Southern lady novelist, assorted literary types and a brother of the murdered woman whose portrait is going to cause some muttering among Lockridge fans south of the Mason-Dixon.

"HANGED AT AUSCHWITZ"
BY SIM KESSEL
Stein & Day, $4.95

It's all been written about before, and by other survivors. But there is something in Kessel's setting down of the horrors he saw and experienced that makes it all come alive, no matter how numb to the subject repetition has made one.

'PTA' Composer Sees Bright Future For Country Music

by JOE FROHLINGER
NEW YORK (UPI) — Country music and rock music are worlds apart and the man who wrote "Harper Valley PTA" is putting his bet on country.

Tom T. Hall, whose 1968 hit sold more than 10 million records worldwide, explains the difference between country and rock this way:

"The big difference as I see it is that rock people are into their minds a lot while country people are into the dirt. We're into the flesh and blood of things. That's why country music is so realistic. That's because we're dealing with tangibilities like wear and tear on the body.

"Rock people try to play and sound like country artists quite a lot nowadays but they can't do it. Why not? Because they come from totally different backgrounds and have different ideas about the music.

"IT'S LIKE this. You can get into your mind pretty heavy, but it's hard to get into the dirt and realize the sweat and tears of the thing. Rock borrows the groundwork of country and then turns it around and gets mental with it, and that's wrong."

The reason Hall suggests for the ever increasing popularity of country music is its flexibility.

"The music has grown up and is changing with the times," he said.

"Public taste over the years has become less sophisticated and that's one reason why country is becoming so popular with all ages. Another explanation is that country's not old-fashioned nor so pure that it's not able to change with the times."

Hall sees an even brighter future for country music than its present popularity, particularly if the top country artists are willing to spread out from their home base in Nashville, Tenn. He said:

"THERE'S NO doubt in my mind that country music is booming in popularity right now and that's great to see. We can't sit in Nashville and talk about being interested in country music, we have to come to New York and let the uninitiated know about it.

"Pretty soon country music will be the pop music of the land because it will be the most popular music in the land and I'll bet that day is not too far off."

Playback

by Tom Von Malder

Rick Nelson

Rick Nelson (He's long since abandoned Ricky) has had a huge success with his single "Garden Party." This seems strange when you realize the song is actually written because of a bad audience, yet the tune is pleasant enough that most people have never probed to find the meaning of the song.

"Garden Party" is about the time last year that Rick and his Stone Canyon Band played one of Richard Nader's rock and roll revival shows at Madison Square Garden. The folks who came to relive the past just couldn't accept Nelson's long hair, purple suit and rock music. They actually booed.

"They all knew my name but no one recognized me/I didn't look the same," Nelson was to write in his song.

The experience may have been bad, but it turned into a learning one and spawned Nelson's best song. Naturally an album of the same name has followed (Decca DL 7-5391) and it too is Nelson's best. Filled with a skillful blend of country and rock, the album is one of the more satisfying of the year.

"But if memories were all I sang, I'd rather drive a truck." This theme from "Garden Party" is central to Nelson current work. The whole album is new direction (Nelson doesn't even play lead guitar) with very refreshing results. "Are You Really Real" is a soft ballad while Chuck Berry's "I'm Talking About You" is pure hard rock (this is the only old song).

Nelson's flaw, as it were, is his tendency in "Garden Party" and "A Flower Opens Gently By" to write some very obscure lyrics. This may lose him some listeners but a little effort can capture the meanings, making the songs that much better.

The whole country-rock scene these days seems to be flourishing. One of the leaders in the movement is The New Riders of the Purple Sage, a group out of San Francisco. "Gypsy Cowboy" (Columbia KC-31930), their third album, falls short of "Powerglide," the previous one, but still contains some good sounds.

An eight-minute-plus "Death and Destruction" features some fine violin work by Richard Greene and "Whiskey" is the fun tale of a runner's life and dangers. Other highlights are "Long Black Veil," "She's No Angel" and "Sailin'."

Another in this country-rock sound is Earl Scruggs, the famed banjo player. "Live At Kansas State" (Columbia KC-31758) is a good selection of what he and his Review are up to these days. It certainly isn't what he was doing five years ago. This is a rock group he has. Son Gary does vocals and plays bass and son Randy plays the guitar.

The music is good. The band would be like any of a dozen except for the fact that it does have Scruggs' banjo in there—really enough to set apart any band in itself. They do Woody Guthrie's "Ramblin' Round Your City," Scruggs' own "Foggy Mountain Breakdown" (used as the theme for the movie "Bonnie and Clyde"), "Everybody Wants To Go To Heaven" and the spiritual "Bound In Jail All Night Long," among many other songs.

All Youngbloods fans will be glad to know that although the group has called it quits, two more records will be issued. The first of these, "High On A Ridge Top," is a collection of other people's songs (except for one original) and is available on Warner Bros. BS-2653.

It is a pleasant enough batch of rock and roll, mostly sung by Jesse Colin Young. "Speedo," "Running Bear" and "I Shall Be Released" are the stronger cuts in the album.

The group has broken up due to "personal and musical differences" and reportedly, no one is at all bitter. Still they will no longer be making music together, after six and a half years.

A really wild violin (played by Graeme Smith) is what makes "String Driven Thing" (Charisma CAS-1002) worth a listen. The band, same name as the title, is pretty ho hum other than that violin, which often takes off on incredible musical journeys.

A listen to "Jack Diamond," "Circus" or "Easy To Be Free" will tell you just what one instrument can do to enliven a whole group.

Masque-Staff Announces 'Thousand Clowns' Cast

The cast for Masque and Staff's January production of the comedy "A Thousand Clowns" was announced by Director Shirley Johnson, who reported a large turnout at auditions held recently.

Guy Marsh of Mount Prospect has been given the role of Murray Burns, the former television writer who quits the "rat race" and retires indefinitely to his cluttered apartment, going out only to do things that amuse him — and do not obligate him in any way.

The role of Nick, Murray's nephew and ward who wishes his uncle would "take a job... any job," is played by 13-year-old Larry McNally of Mount Prospect, one of five boys who read for the part.

Sandra Markowitz, the distaff member of the Bureau of Child Welfare team that attempts to bring a little order and reasonableness into Nick's home environment, is played by Elaine Pellegrinetti, also of Mount Prospect. The male social worker, Albert Amundsen — the "brawn of the outfit," as Murray puts it — is played by Paul Carey of Arlington Heights, who will be performing in his first Masque and Staff production.

Art Hassel of Arlington Heights is cast as Arnold Burns, Murray's theatrical agent brother, who brings fruit every morning and expresses continuing exasperation at his younger brother's erratic behavior.

Clarence Petersen of Rolling Meadows plays Leo Herman, better known to his young television fans as "Chuckles the Chipmunk," friend of the younguns and seller of Chuckle Chips, the potato chips your friend Chuckles the Chipmunk eats and chuckles over.

Producer for the play is Bob Johnson, and stage manager is Sharon Farber.

"A Thousand Clowns" will be presented the evenings of Jan. 19 and 20 and Feb. 2 and 3 at Dempster Junior High School in Mount Prospect. Ticket information may be obtained by calling Mrs. Johnson at 437-0679.

SNOOPY TRIES HIS hardest to gain attention from Charlie Brown and Linus in Des Plaines Theatre Guild's January production of "You're A Good Man Charlie Brown." Tom Ventris is directing the play that will be staged Jan. 5, 6, 12, 13, 19 and 20 at the Guild Playhouse in Des Plaines. Ken Johnson of Des Plaines, left, plays Snoopy. Charlie Brown is Dave Kajor of Elk Grove Village, center, and the role of Linus is being taken by Jim Curren of Des Plaines. Tickets, 296-1211 after noon.

Entr'acte

The four seasons are spanned by the paintings currently on display at Alexian Brothers Medical Center in Elk Grove Village.

The artwork decorates the walls in Stritch Hall, the emergency-outpatient areas and the core area of each of the medical/surgical floors. The exhibit may be viewed during hospital visiting hours, 10 a.m. to 8 p.m.

Nancy Guttery of Elk Grove Village contributes to the winter scene with "Mark at the Window." Mark, with snowball in hand, presses his nose against the pane of glass.

"Spring Bouquet" is Palatine artist Nancy Fortunato's answer to winter doldrums.

Landscapes of the West are being shown by Medard Lobaack of Roselle, who painted "Navajo Lake" and an oil, "Wyoming," is done in fall shades of color by Joan Lucin of Roselle.

TWO ADDISON artists, Martha Berlin and Ruth Watts, chose a favorite subject for fall, chrysanthemums, for their subject matter in the current exhibit.

In an unusual work, a small, haughty, white owl stares at hospital visitors from a seasoned cross-section of a log. Helen Moseman of Hoffman Estates is the artist.

Twenty other local artists are included in this exhibit. The paintings will be on display through Jan. 5. All paintings are for sale through the public relations office.

Two 'Macaroon' Shows A Sellout

Two performances of "The Adventures of Peter Macaroon," being staged by Village Theatre tomorrow and Sunday, are completely sold out.

Tickets are still available for the 4 p.m. performance tomorrow and both performances on Sunday, 1:30 and 4 p.m. The play is being staged at Hersey High School in Arlington Heights.

"Peter Macaroon" utilizes a script that does not use an antiquated vocabulary or copy the everyday language of an adult. It is written for children with a "now" dialog.

Dr. Jared Brown, professor of drama at Western Illinois University and his co-author, Robert McKendrick, carefully considered every line before including it in the final script.

BOTH THE DUKE of Dirtydom (William Bailey of Bensenville) and Countess Nasty (Alice Orlowski of Arlington Heights) hurl insults at Sam the Sad Sorf (Hank deGroot of Arlington Heights). He is called everything from "Bumptious booby," "light-footed lunkhead" and "nimblefooted nitwit" to "hopeless hot-tentot," "bubbly bumpkin" and "pesky pumpernickel."

Even the cursing of the two villains is unique. They exclaim in vegetables, "oh spinach," and "oh broccoli and asparagus."

Tickets for "The Adventures of Peter Macaroon" are available through 259-3200.

Night Out

Musical '1776' Opens At Woodfield Theatre

by GENIE CAMPBELL

It was a strange sensation to set my alarm last Saturday morning in order to make sure I would be up early enough to go to the movies. The occasion was a sneak preview of "1776", a Columbia-released picture based on the musical play of the same title that received rave reviews when it played in Chicago the beginning of this year.

The film that zeros into the real action behind the writing and the signing of the Declaration of Independence will be showing at the Woodfield Theatre beginning Dec. 22.

The theatre is offering special discount rates for groups of 35 or more Mondays through Fridays except holidays, and this is expected to attract many classes from elementary schools in the area.

It's not a bad idea, for "1776" depicts the signers of the Declaration of Independence for what they truly were... only human.

Thomas Jefferson, for instance, was more interested in seeing his wife than writing the document. Benjamin Franklin had a bad habit of always dozing off throughout many of the long boring sessions of the Continental Congress and John Adams was "obnoxious and quite disliked" by his fellow representatives.

The musical is light and entertaining while still retaining an accurate account of the birth of our nation. It's a good "G" picture, and there are not too many of those around.

Starting times for the film will be 2:10, 4:45, 7:20 and 10 p.m. To make reservations moviegoers may call the theater, 882-1620, anytime after 2 p.m. and ask for one of the managers.

The price for the New Year's Eve celebration at THE HANGAR, the restaurant located at Palwaukee Airport in Wheeling, was incorrectly quoted in last week's "Night Out" column.

The price for both the dinner and 40-minute flight over Chicago at night is $49 per couple, not per person as was originally printed.

A CHRISTMAS DAY buffet will be served from noon to 1 p.m. Dec. 25 with reservations required in the CAROUSEL OF ARLINGTON PARK TOWERS.

All of the traditional dishes will be served — turkey, dressing, vegetables, cranberry sauce, salads and relishes.

The price is $4.95 per person. Children under 12 years of age will be charged half of the adult price.

THE SHENYANG ACROBATIC TROUPE of the People's Republic of China will be in Chicago performing for the first time on U.S. soil.

The company of 55 acrobats, magicians and musicians will give six performances in the OPERA HOUSE Dec. 18 through Dec. 24. Except for a 3 p.m. matinee on Sunday, all of the performances have an 8 p.m. curtain.

ABC To Offer O'Neill Drama

Like Crime Movie

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Paramount Studios reports "The Godfather," despite its Italian-Mafia theme, has broken box office records for an American movie in Italy.

Record Collection

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Recorded interviews with legendary black jazz artists are part of the "Urban and Industrial Manuscripts" collection of the University of Missouri at St. Louis.

ABC is committed to a 1972-73 presentation of Britain's National Theater production of Eugene O'Neill's "Long Day's Journey Into Night," starring Sir Laurence Olivier and Constance Cummings.

Miss Cummings is a Seattle, Wash., native who began her career as a Broadway chorus girl, appeared in several Hollywood films, then moved to London to become a noted dramatic actress and the wife of British playwright Benn Levy. She, of course, plays the tragic wife-mother in this traumatic autobiographical drama by O'Neill.

GOOD THINGS COME to those who wait. Tiny Tim and his parents, the Cratchits, receive a cornucopia of fruit. The scene is from "The Stingiest Man in Town" being staged at the Mill Run Children's Theatre tomorrow and next Saturday, Dec. 23.

Film Role For Egan

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Eddie Egan, the cop after whom "The French Connection" was patterned, has signed for a featured role in Paramount's "Badge 373."

'Messiah' Sunday At Christ Church

James C. Thunder Jr., director of music at Christ Church of Des Plaines, will direct the music department's presentation of Handel's "Messiah" Sunday at 7:30 p.m. in the church sanctuary at Cora and Henry streets.

The Chancel Choir, together with members of the Northwest Choral Society, will comprise the chorus for Handel's most successful and best known oratorio. The orchestral personnel include John Rose, Palatine, at the organ and Mrs. Mary Ann Cowles, Arlington Heights, harpisichordist. Rose is a member of Christ Church and a student at Palatine High School. Strings and timpani complete the instrumental picture.

FEATURED AS SOLOISTS will be Mrs. Louis H. Volberding of Des Plaines, soprano; Mrs. Lois Dudyeh, also of Des Plaines, contralto; Tom Daniels of Park Ridge, baritone, and William Smith, tenor. Smith, a recent graduate of Illinois Wesleyan University, will make his premier performance in this area although he has sung with the Peoria Symphony

Chorus and has done extensive solo work throughout central Illinois.

Mrs. Volberding, Mrs. Dudyeh and Daniels, have done solo work in this area and were last heard in the Northwest Choral Society's presentation of "Judas Maccabeus" in November.

Thunder needs little introduction to audiences throughout this area. He is choral director of the Northwest Choral Society and the Universal Oil Choraliers in addition to conducting the complete music program at Christ Church. Thunder has conducted a wide repertoire of masterworks which have been brought down to present-day musicians.

The community is invited to join the members of the church for this presentation of Handel's "Messiah" at Christ Church.

Lerner-Loewe Collaborate On New Version Of 'Gigi'

by JACK GAVIER

NEW YORK (UPI) —It is good news that Alan Jay Lerner and Frederick Loewe have resumed relations to create a new stage version of their motion picture, "Gigi," which will be produced next spring by Edwin Lester for his Civic Light Opera organization that provides about 14 weeks of money-in-the-bank playing time between Los Angeles and San Francisco; pre-sold subscription.

Obviously, its eventual destination is New York. This is indicated by the fact that Saint Subber, prominent Broadway producer, is associated with the enterprise.

A number of times, Lester has sponsored, in association with New York producers, musicals aimed at Broadway. Some made it successfully, some died on the West Coast.

THE LAST Lerner-Loewe stage collaboration was the successful "Camelot" in 1960. They had five previous shows, including the highly successful "Brigadoon" and "My Fair Lady." There also was the in-between "Paint Your Wagon," which deserved better from the public than it got, and which some consider to have contained their best songs.

They split up for a time after "Paint Your Wagon." After "Camelot," Loewe, who had a heart attack, decided he wouldn't compose any more. The "Gigi" film came between "My Fair Lady" and "Camelot."

While the reunion is welcome, and while I may love the stage version of "Gigi" when I see it, I could wish that the pair had something fresher to present than this overly warmed-over property.

"GIGI" ORIGINATED with celebrated French novelist Colette, who wrote about a gangling French girl tutored into seductive womanhood by sophisticated mother and grandmother, who knew how to, shall we say, handle men.

Antia Loos adapted the tale into a successful Broadway play in 1951 that introduced the delectable Audrey Hepburn to America. Then came the motion picture version with its Lerner-Loewe score.

The stage musical will, of course, have new facets supplied by librettist-lyricist Lerner, and some new songs. But there will be retained from the movie such numbers as "Thank Heaven for Little Girls," "The Night They Invented Champagne," "I Remember It Well" and "Gigi."

I suppose that that can't be bad; many thousands love those songs. On the other hand, can it be good? This is supposed to be a new musical.

'Seesaw' Stars

The stars of the forthcoming "Seesaw," a musical version of William Gibson's hit comedy, "Two for the Seesaw," will be Lainie Kazan and Ken Howard.

Miss Kazan has been a night club singer of note for several years and succeeded Barbra Streisand in the Broadway production of "Funny Girl." Howard created the Thomas Jefferson role in the stage production of "1776" and repeated in the movie version that has just been put in distribution.

Detroit tryout opens Jan. 8; three weeks in Washington, D.C., beginning Feb. 12; New York previews begin March 5

Pipecleaner Snowflake

Materials: white pipecleaners miniature marshmallows white glue silver glitter

Even preschoolers can make these easy snowflakes. Twist three pipecleaners together at the center to form a star. Press a marshmallow flat. Dip it in glue. Then press it down on the pipecleaner for a few seconds until it is stuck. Do the same thing with several other marshmallows.

When the glue is dry, spread a little glue on the snowflake. Sprinkle on silver glitter. (An easy way is to shake it out of an old salt shaker.)

Twist a pipecleaner end around a ribbon loop to hang your snowflake in the window or on your Christmas tree.

Christmas Cards And Lib Don't Mix

by PATRICIA MCCORMACK
NEW YORK (UPI) — Christmas cards and some of the holiday slogans are in trouble with the women's liberation movement.
A lot about the holly-jolly season, it seems, discriminates against women by virtue of its male orientation. The problem is brought into focus by the cover on the December issue of MS magazine. This publication was sired by the women's liberation movement and counts Gloria Steinem among its pillars. The cover makes its point by saying in big letters: "Peace on Earth, Good Will to People."
The usual message is "Good Will to Men" — an obvious discrimination against women.
If Christmas slogans and some songs are to be corrected for alleged discrimination against women, it will take some conditioning on the part of men, women and children to feel comfortable with the liberated versions.

CONSIDER:
— The Three Wise Men will never do. They must become The Three Wise Persons.
— The song "The Little Drummer Boy" must be changed to "The Little Drummer Boy and Girl." If you'd like it better, another acceptable version could be "The Little Drummer Person."
— "We Three Kings of Orient Are" presents a triple choice. It could be "We Three Royal Persons of Orient Are" or "Six Kings and Queens of Orient Are." Six? Yes. Unless you want "We Three Kings and Queens" — which comes out to one-and-a-half of each.
— "God Rest Ye Merry Gentlemen" could be either "God Rest Ye Merry Gentlepersons" or "God Rest Ye Merry Humans" or "God Rest Ye Merry Men, Women and Children."

— "I Saw Mommy Kissing Santa Claus" poses problems. Should it be — "I Saw Mommy and Daddy Kissing Santa Persons?" Or — "I Saw Mommy Kissing Santa" and a sequel, "I Saw Daddy Kissing Mrs. Santa Claus." Or should it be — "I Saw My Parents Kissing The Santa Person."
— THE SHEPHERDS who watched their flocks are in for trouble, too. They've got to become sheep-herding persons or people. Or else they've got to move over and make room for an equal number of shepherdesses.
Some things are safe about Christmas, even in this era of women's lib.
"Deck the Halls with Boughs of Holly" seems like a safe Christmas carol. That is, unless the Holly refers to a girl's name instead of the bush.

Dear Dorothy: Is there a particular technique involved in building a successful fire in the fireplace? — Jessie Mann
I should let that certain fellow write this answer. He is in "seventh heaven," when starting a fire in the fireplace, at home or in homes of friends.
Assuming that the draft is working well and the fireplace has always performed well, his method always works. He opens a door or a window slightly so there will be sufficient oxygen to feed the fire.
He then crumples up a few newspapers under the andirons and lays a few pieces of kindling over them. Then a large log is placed on the andirons as far back as possible, but not touching the fireplace wall. In front of this is placed another log and then one log over the two, like a pyramid, making sure there is air space between the logs. The fire starts with a bang and continues to burn, with an occasional log fed on top when the others burn low.

Dear Dorothy: I've been using a ceramic cookie jar for years and the cookies kept perfectly. Suddenly, the cookies are no longer soft or crisp — whichever way they were when put in. Do you know why something like this should happen? — Lisa Bank
Yes. It occurs every so often with ceramic cookie jars. They become porous and so are no longer airtight. An airtight metal canister does the ideal job of keeping cookies the way you want them. An airtight such as a potato chip or popcorn container is a good substitute.

Contrary to what most freezer books say, a recent government manual on foods says shelled nuts retain top quality in a tightly closed container in the refrigerator for six months or longer, or in the freezer at zero for two years.
(Mrs. Ritz welcomes questions and hints. If a personal reply is required, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Write to her in care of Suburban Living, Paddock Publications, Box 200, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.)

Christmas Keeps The American Economy Viable

by DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Granted that your Malthuses, our Keyneses and your other economic theorists make good dinner conversation. But what it really all boils down to is:

The only thing that keeps the American economy viable is Christmas.

Close down all the stores that would go broke if it weren't for Christmas business and there wouldn't be anything left except a couple of aluminum siding and storm door companies.

And as soon as somebody figures out a way to gift wrap a storm door so folks can't guess what's inside, those firms will be dependent on Yule trade, too.

The Lighter Side

But don't just take my word for this. These figures have been verified by Dr. John Maynard Hangstocking, dean of the Treelood School of Business Administration.

"There's no doubt about it," Hangstocking told me. "Communism, capitalism, socialism and other economic systems have been surpassed by Xmasism."

"APART FROM its religious significance, Xmasism is the most dynamic commercial force ever fructified in the temporal world."

I said, "And that takes a heap o' fructifying."

Hangstocking feels the commercial side of Christmas has become so vital to economic survival it should no longer be left entirely in the collective hands of individual shoppers.

"All too often," he said, "gift lists are compiled through whim, caprice or desperation rather than what's best for the Gross National Product."

"That the trouble with Christmas," I said angrily, "There's too much unpatriotic shopping."

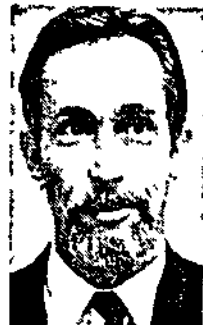

Hangstocking nodded. "There is always a danger that on some future Christmas a preponderance of shoppers will settle on inexpensive trinkets rather than the fur coats, 10-speed bikes, stereo systems and other substantial gift items that keep our economy strong."

"Anytime a majority of Christmas shoppers fail to spend more than they can afford, this country will see a recession that will curl your hair."

I said "A $50 electric haircurling set makes a nice gift."

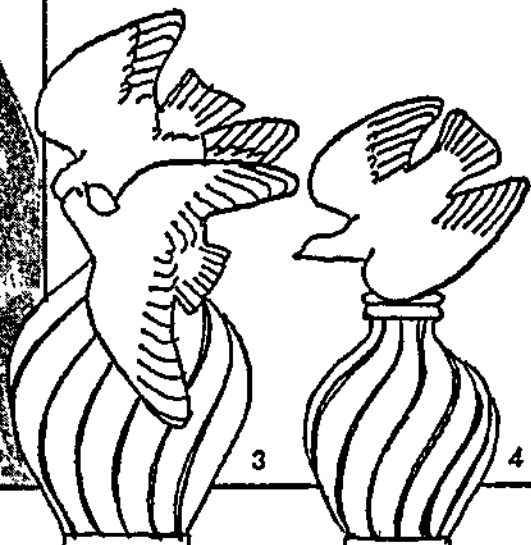

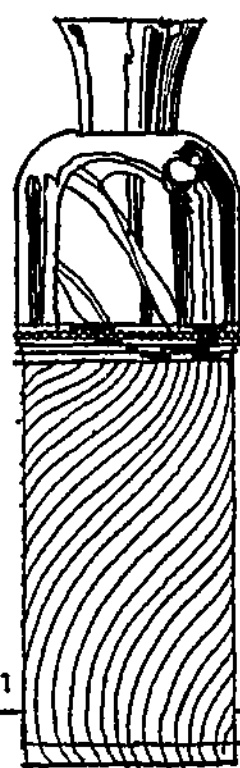

"While President Nixon is reorganizing the government, he should appoint a Director of Xmasism," Hangstocking continued. "Using Veriform TFX Computers, he would compile a master gift list for the entire population. That way, America would avoid the risk inherent in personalized shopping."

Insofar as I can tell, there is only one thing wrong with Hangstocking's proposal. When they came to "the man who has everything," the computers would blow a fuse

Engineer Perfects Artificial Heart

2— Section 5

Friday, December 15, 1972

THE HERALD

by MURRAY OLDERMAN

SAN FRANCISCO—In the annals of the University of California School of Medicine, Cardiothoracic Surgery, Dolly has a special place.

Dolly was a calf.

Seven days after giving up her natural heart, literally, to medical science, Dolly pranced around a meadow next to the university surgical center, on a San Francisco hill. Her actions are preserved on little frames of 16-mm movie film.

On her back was a strange pack which pumped air into a cylindrical, piston-driven device implanted in Dolly, which in turn pumped blood through Dolly's arteries. It took the place of the calf's heart.

In the end, Dolly died of a blood infection.

But from this and subsequent experiments, an engineer named Paul K. Davis is convinced he is on the right track in developing a mechanical heart for mankind.

So is Dr. Benson Roe, chief cardiothoracic surgeon at the University of California, a man who has successfully transplanted a human heart.

"You have succeeded," wrote Dr. Roe to Davis last December, "in developing the best potential pumping device with prospects of human application."

In three years, its inventor feels, it will be ready for the ultimate use.

It's really fantastic how Paul Davis, a tall, thin-faced man with light red hair, devised and manufactured a mechanical heart. He had no medical background. He has sunk $200,000 of his own time and money into a personal project which was considered impossible.

"LOGICALLY," says Dr. Roe, "somebody else should have done it. But nobody has anything else that approaches the virtues of the Davis pump."

Paul Davis first got the idea five years ago on a hospital visit. A friend, Elgo Sabbatini, had suffered a very severe heart attack.

This was shortly after a South African salesman named Louis Washansky had survived 18 days with the first recorded human heart transplant, by Dr. Christiaan Barnard, who achieved world wide fame.

"I thought to myself," recalls Davis, "that making an artificial heart ought to be a simple thing to do. My first impression of the heart was that it's essentially a machine that pumps blood. 'This can't be too difficult a thing to do,' I thought to myself, 'to replace a pump.'"

"My next door neighbor in Alameda is a doctor. When I got the basic fundamentals of the heart down from an encyclopedia, I went to him and asked for the best textbook on the physiological functions of the heart. He recommended 'The Physiological Basis of Medical Practice.'"

Next, Davis converted the basement of his home into a workshop, complete with machine tools and testing apparatus.

He is the design engineer for his own firm. The Pacific Roller Die Company lies in an industrial tract in Hayward, Calif., on the east side of San Francisco bay. It builds pipe mills and heavy machinery. Davis, the company president, is a successful businessman. And pragmatic.

"As an engineer," he says, "I wanted to go off on a tangent. I spent the first year making all types of mistakes in learning. You can't completely duplicate the heart."

"It's a living machine and operates for 70 years without any service work (unless you need some open heart surgery such as a valve repair). In general, it pumps literally millions of gallons of blood without any service work other than normal cell repair, which is done by the body. But it has pumping characteristics which are mechanically unheard of in its size and shape. It will pump as little as two liters a minute and as high as 10 to 15 liters a minute, depending on stress conditions. It's totally automatic and adjusts its own rate."

BY THE MIDDLE of 1969, Davis had built a couple of model hearts and ran them through a simulator, in his home laboratory. He then wrote letters to a dozen prominent medical centers, led by the greatest doctors in heart research, such as Michael DeBakey, Adrian Kantrowitz, Norman Shumway. A couple agreed to take the pump and look at it.

"One did a poor job of implanting it surgically," says Davis. "Another put it in a dog, but backwards. They did essentially nothing."

"Then I got a call from Dr. Roe. My letter to California had finally filtered down to him. He asked me to bring a pump over and then proceeded to tell me what was wrong with it. He wanted me to revise it to duplicate the natural heart, converting it to the Starling device."

Ernest Henry Starling, a British physiologist, demonstrated that each beat of the heart pumps the amount of blood which comes to it, in variable volume.

"I'm sure," continues Davis, "Dr. Roe thought he'd never see me again."

"I answered his letter," says Dr. Roe, a noted cardiac surgeon. "Because I was interested peripherally in the matter of mechanical devices. But I really thought, 'The government's put $30 million in this same type of work. It's just preposterous for this guy to get into it this late in the game without any real educational background.'"

"FRANKLY, I NEVER expected to see him again. But in a very short period of time he came back with a pump that performed and with carefully prepared bench-testing performance curves."

"He's an extraordinary person who's acquired a tremendous amount of very sound knowledge in a short time. He's very savvy and he knows what he doesn't know."

What Davis didn't know was that at the time he became interested in the subject there were 60 programs in the United States funded by the National Institutes of Health for the development of an artificial heart.

Dr. Clarence Dennis, who is in charge of the artificial devices program for the NIH in Washington, has examined the Davis pump and says, "I really think it's a fine piece of work. Very impressive. I regard Mr. Davis warmly. He's a remarkable person."

The Davis pump is fundamentally different all the others. It's mechanical and piston-driven. The others operate with a sack or balloon that's collapsed to squeeze the blood out of it.

The heart has two chambers. Since the left ventricle, which pumps blood to the body, is generally the one which fails in heart disease, Dr. Roe first asked Davis to perfect a single-chamber pump.

Davis said, "Sure, I'll make anything you want to try."

A group of volunteers was assembled at the University of California Medical School and began to work on implanting the mechanical heart in calves. Various thoracic surgeons operated when they had the time. Dr. W. C. Small, a resident surgeon, worked on the project for two years. Davis himself assisted in the operations. There have been 23.

THE GREATEST success was achieved last March with Dolly.

Davis has now gone back to his original two-chamber pump, highly modified, which completely replaces the heart. They've progressed to such sophisticated measures as culturing and incubating cells in the pump so there's a lining to accommodate the blood.

The work has begun to attract outside attention.

"I've been offered involvement with the University of Utah," he says, "by Dr. Willem Kolff, the father of the dialysis machine and, I would say, the leading researcher on artificial organs in the world."

The idea of a mechanical heart still boggles the mind.

"It's difficult," admits Davis, "to assess the psychological implications of the application of a mechanical heart to anybody. There are 14,000 new kidney patients a year who need dialysis treatments. About half elect to die because they don't want to be slaves to a machine."

"This heart pump wouldn't be the most convenient thing. You have to be connected to an air source all the time, which restricts you to a home or auto. The pump is driven by compressed air (Dolly carried cylinders on her back pack). Eventually, it's hoped, there will be implantable atomic power sources."

DAVIS PREDICTS that in three years his mechanical heart will be ready for human use. Dr. Roe ducks the question.

"Nobody in his right mind would have predicted in 1960 we'd have a man on the moon in 1968," he exostulates, "or that we could have mastered the obstacles to produce an atomic bomb in World War II. After all, it took 25 years to perfect the heart-lung machine for open heart surgery."

"I will say that the performance of the Davis pump is far better than I ever dreamt it would be. The virtue is that it's simple. There are no complicated things that can go wrong. It's virtually fool-proof."

But will it replace human transplants for terminally ill heart patients? At Stanford Medical Center that type of treatment is still endorsed. Dr. Roe performed just one heart transplant, and the recipient, a retired bookbinder named William E. Paul, is still alive more than three years later.

"Most of the medical profession, however," contends Dr. Roe, "now shares my opinion that the most promising possibilities for heart transplantation lie in the development of a pumping mechanism."

"We know the human transplant works and it fits. It's easy to do. But no one has made really important progress on rejection. People are encumbered by a lifetime of hazardous management and the serious consequence of immunosuppressive treatment. Homotransplants don't always match and they're not easy to find. We can't find enough young people who die in auto accidents to match the need."

SO PAUL DAVIS, who is regarded as something of a genius by his engineering peers, pushes on with his development of an artificial heart. He spends 70 to 80 per cent of his time on it.

He is 43 and has six children and works a 16-hour-day to fulfill the demands of his engineering business.

"It's just been the last couple of years," he says, "in which I've appreciated the finessence of the human heart. We've come a long way. I wouldn't quit on the project now."

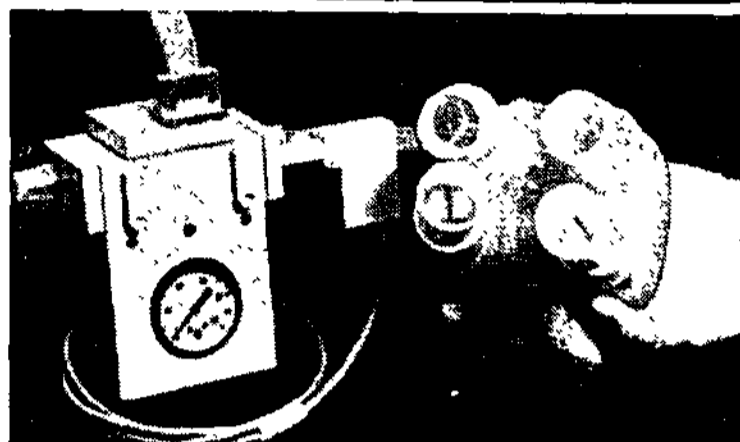

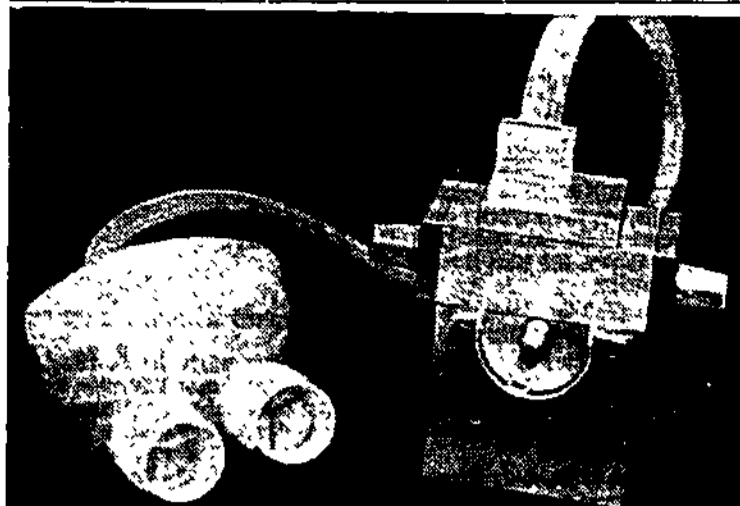

"I'm interested in leaving something that's better than when I came here."

"I'm also interested in the manufacture and selling of artificial hearts."

Would he be his own customer?

"If I had no choice, if it was living or dying — yes, I would live with an artificial heart."

(Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

Heart Transplants Have Worked — Hundreds Of Times

STANFORD, Calif. (UPI) — Five years ago the world was astonished by the report that a surgeon had cut the heart out of a dead person and successfully transplanted it in the chest of a living person. "My God! It's going to work," one of the attending surgeons gasped at the climax of that first operation at Groote Schuur Hospital, Cape Town, South Africa, on Dec. 3, 1967.

Dr. Christian N. Barnard had just transferred the heart from the body of Denise Ann Darvall into Louis Washkansky, a grocer dying of heart disease.

Since that day — Washkansky lived for 18 days, dying on Dec. 21 — there have been several hundred heart transplants. The Stanford University Medical Center team headed by Dr. Norman Shumway, performed its 50th such operation recently.

Shumway did most of the advance studies for human heart transplant, and

The Stanford University Medical Center has devoted large amounts of attention and money to develop heart transplant surgery into a fairly routine operation.

It was his technique that Barnard used in South Africa.

While many hospitals rushed to have heart transplant operations when they were a novelty, only Stanford has, for the past five years, devoted the large amount of attention, money and facilities required to develop heart transplant surgery into the fairly routine operation it now is.

ALTHOUGH VERY few heart transplant patients have lived more than two or three years, the Stanford team believes the operation has progressed from the strictly experimental to "appropriate therapy" for some patients.

Transplants, Dr. Eugene Dong said, speaking for the Stanford team, have "resulted in a group of pain-free, mobile, socially and vocationally rehabilitated patients."

He noted that these heart patients had been very near death when they received their new hearts and were later sent back to their home and jobs.

Of Shumway's 50 patients in the past five years, 18 are still alive. In his presentation, Dong said recent improvements in the technique are not yet reflected in the statistics. He said they indicate that if a patient survives for the first three months after the operation, the odds are better than 50-50 he will survive at least two years.

This, Dong noted, contrasts with the life expectancy of 30 days which these people had before the operation.

Since 1967, much of the furor over heart transplants has dissipated.

A new definition of death based on the absence of brain waves has been widely accepted, replacing the concept that a human being is alive until his heart has stopped completely.

The legal, ethical and physical process of donating parts of the body for transplant has been greatly clarified. Reluctance to donate one's body or to consent on the part of relatives has declined.

The Stanford physicians emphasize that a transplant is not the answer to everyone with serious heart trouble. Only a fraction of heart patients ever would be considered, and then only if their death was imminent. One man who came from France for the operation was turned away recently because he was not critically ill.

critical rejection period comes three months after the surgery.

The doctors are still searching for a drug that will prevent the body from casting off the new organ without taking away its ability to reject disease and infection.

A researcher at the Medical Center recently came up with a promising drug for this. It is made from chicken blood, and the researcher says it has worked in experiments with white rats.

But even with the remaining problems, the Stanford team is urging that heart transplants be used more widely as "therapy" for heart patients who are otherwise doomed to an even shorter and less pleasant life.

Dr. Dong, the spokesman, said the alternative, a mechanical heart, is at least 10 years away.

"On the other hand," he said, "heart transplantation is available now, and the need for its wider and appropriate application is urgent."

Thermometer Isn't The Whole Story With Temperature

URBANA — The first zero and near-zero temperatures of the season sent Illinois residents scurrying for extra blankets and warmer coats and scarves.

But the temperature on the thermometer doesn't tell the whole story.

Winter winds can make the temperature seem much lower than what the thermometer shows.

For example, when the thermometer stands at zero and there's a 10-mile-per-hour wind blowing, the chill-index temperature to exposed skin is 21 degrees below zero. If the wind is blowing 15 miles an hour, the chill index temperature is 34 below. At 20 miles per hour, it's 39 below.

University of Illinois Extension Safety Specialist Orville Hogsett says the chill-index temperature combines the thermometer reading with the wind velocity factor and results in a measure that is closer to the temperature the body feels.

On a relatively "warm" winter day — when the thermometer reaches 20 degrees F. — a 20-mile-per-hour wind lowers the chill-index temperature to minus 10 degrees F.

It's no wonder people often complain, "It feels colder than that" — whatever the thermometer shows.

Hogsett's advice is to dress according to the chill-index temperature rather than the thermometer reading. You'll be more comfortable if you do.

From Omega, a wonderful Christmas time

Pardon the pun. But if there was ever a time for the gift of an Omega, this Christmas is it. Sure, a diamond bracelet watch is an opulent Christmas gift. But when the watch is Omega, such opulence gains elegance and permanency.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is LONGFELLOW

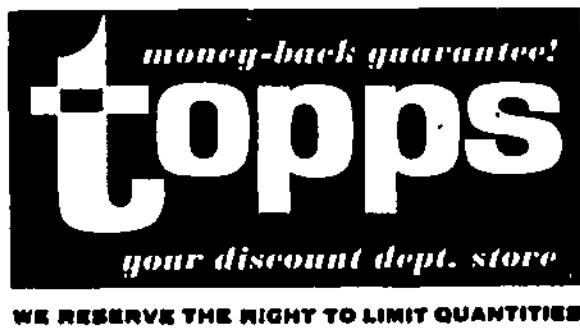

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Tutoring Is Favorite Assignment

Tutoring — the one to one relationship with someone who needs help in learning to read or in understanding math concepts — is a favorite volunteer assignment in the northwest suburban area served by the Volunteer Service Bureau, Northwest Cook County.

For a couple of hours a week the volunteer gives of his time and patience guiding another human being through the process of making sense out of all those markings on pieces of paper. Those markings, written language of a society, are a major source of communication among peoples; right behind the importance of the spoken language of a society.

In School District 26, serving parts of Mount Prospect, there is a request on the board for a male tutor, preferably young, to work with a fifth grader in reading skills and language arts. The assignment is to work with this boy from a half hour up to an hour each day. The Mount Prospect branch office handles this request — office hours Wednesday 10-2 phone 392-6332; or you can call the central office, Monday through Thursday 9-2 phone 398-1320 for assistance in this assignment.

In District 15, serving Palatine and Rolling Meadows, there is a request for several math tutors to give two or three hours a week in an elementary school. The Lois Moore office at the Palatine Township Hall in Palatine serves this school district with office hours, Monday and Thursday 9-1, phone 359-9363. The Lois Moore office also has requests for a volunteer to put on a marionette show; a request for an entomologist to speak to a group of sixth graders; a request for a geologist; and a request for a coin collector.

DISTRICT 23 Arlington Heights, District 23 Prospect Heights, and District 57 Mount Prospect all have Learning Disabilities classes utilizing volunteers. The teacher is in charge of the program and the volunteer follows the instructions of the teacher. District 23 has a tutoring program utilizing volunteers and a reading lab where volunteers help the students operate "reading" machines which teach reading skills.

School District 25 in Arlington Heights maintains resource centers where such machine innovations are available. Volunteers assist in these centers as volunteers assist in the one-to-one tutor relationship; and the bureau emphasizes that the teacher is in charge and the volunteer assignment is usually two or three hours a week. Each school building in the district must have a volunteer coordinator to facilitate the volunteer program.

This procedure is appreciated by both the teacher and the volunteer. Facilitating the procedure involves scheduling, greeting the volunteer on the first day of the assignment, and sending "thank you's" at the conclusion of the assignment. The Arlington Heights office is located at the District 25 Administration Center, phone 392-6051, but the central office can serve you if their office hours aren't convenient for you. The central office hours are Monday through Thursday 9 to 2, 398-1320.

Tutors are also working in the area of adult literacy programs. The Laubach method of "each one teach one" is presented in two communities in this area. One is in Mount Prospect and one in Palatine. The training program consists of 10 hours of training, broken into several sessions, materials to be used are distributed; and the volunteer and the adult to be assisted set up their own lesson times. High School students are welcome in this program, too. Call the central office for the phone numbers of the Mount Prospect and the Palatine programs.

THE RIGHT TO read program originating in Washington, D.C. has trained some tutors in the Northwest area, and some of the concepts of the program are used in individual tutor programs such as the Title I program in District 15 in Palatine. The right to read program includes a training for the parents of the children and is especially appropriate for the Title I program where English is taught as a second language. Helen Gustafson, branch director of the Lois Moore office, has been a trained tutor with the right to read program and has worked with Virginia Tolk of District 15 in implementing their program.

One more request — a timely one — is for volunteers who can share the Christmas customs of other lands. Elementary schools in keeping with the Christmas season welcome volunteers who can speak on the customs of other countries, and hopefully show artifacts and slides. This is a one-shot assignment for one or two hours a year. Call if you can share something such as this.

Clean Living

That's what you get in Weathersfield Commons
in Schaumburg by Campanelli, Inc.

Until a few years ago, Weathersfield in Schaumburg was farmland. Following careful plans, the picturesque community grew. Gently rolling hills, trees and wooded glens — the area's natural beauty was preserved. Winding paved roads were laid out over the land's natural contours. Home-sites were well spaced to avoid crowding. Utilities were sent underground to keep the landscape unspoiled.

To this setting now comes the clean, crisp architectural lines of the Quadro-Homes. Elegance and privacy are emphasized in each two-bedroom unit — with unshared entrance, individual garage with direct entry, solid masonry walls between units plus the private use of our new luxurious club house and large heated outdoor swimming pool. These added features make Campanelli Quadro-Homes your best buy:

- Walking distance to shopping and schools.
- Weathersfield is a complete community.
- Near Expressway and Milwaukee Road for commuting.
- Tax deductible interest.
- Mortgage payments lower than rent.
- Mowing, snow shoveling, exterior painting all provided.
- Completely equipped wood cabinet kitchen.
- Continuous cleaning oven, range, hood.
- Large ice-maker refrigerator, dishwasher, disposer.
- Trash compactor, washer, dryer.
- Carpeting throughout and much more.

WHEN THE WEDDING IS OVER . . .

Let your friends read about it in the HERALD

But remember our deadlines . . .

For detailed wedding story (including gown descriptions and a listing of attendants) wedding information is due in Herald office within three weeks following wedding date. Information received in Herald office after three weeks and up to five weeks following wedding date will be used for a brief story only, or caption.

For publication the Herald requests a 5x7 black and white glossy close-up photo (bouquet and up) of bridal pair or bride alone. Depending on color tones, contrast and clarity, color photos may possibly be used at the discretion of the editors. Small snapshots are not acceptable.

Ask Your Photographer To Make the Selection

We suggest the bride or some member of the family select a photo for the newspaper immediately upon receiving photographer's proofs. Better yet, ask the photographer to make the selection to avoid delay.

If your photographer cannot comply with deadlines, write-up will be published without a photo providing information is in the Herald office before the deadline.

Wedding forms are available in the Herald offices. There is no charge for publishing wedding stories or photos.

AND ABOUT ENGAGEMENTS:

Just write up the information (include your phone number) or fill out one of the forms available at the Herald offices and bring or mail, along with a wallet-size photo. Larger photos are also acceptable. Glossy photos are preferable although a dull finish is often usable. Color photos are used at the discretion of the editors.

Photos accompanied by stamped, self-addressed envelopes will be returned.

There is no charge for engagement pictures and announcements. They will be printed within a week after reaching our office.

I was wondering if you could give me the address of Jan Brady on the BRADY BUNCH. Please tell me a little about her and could you send me a picture of her? I would appreciate it very much.

Bob Agnoffo
Wheeling

Eve Plumb

Jan is played by the pert, blonde Eve Plumb. She is the second generation of a show-business family—her father record producer; mother, former actress and ballet dancer, sister, actress. Her brother is in a food program for poor of Brazil. Eve started her acting career at the age of six when she interviewed for a commercial. That was over 40 TV commercials ago. She has also appeared in several TV series and two movies, "In Name Only" and "House on Green Apple Road".

She began a music career concurrently with acting, cutting two albums with the Jimmy Joyce children's chorus. A year ago she cut another album with the other Bradys and a single, "The Fortune Cookie Song". The 14 year-old Eve is studying ballet. She took judo and karate lessons for two and a half years. For hobbies she enjoys sculpting in copper wire, painting and drawing. She swims, ice skates, rides horses and belongs to several book clubs. Since we cannot send out pictures, we'll print one of her for you, Bob. Write to her in care of ABC-TV, 1330 Avenue of the Americas, New York, N.Y. 10019.

This isn't a matter of life or death, but could you please hurry? Would you tell me about Barry Williams, the oldest boy on THE BRADY BUNCH? When and where was he born and could you please print a picture? Where could I write to him?

Buffalo Grove

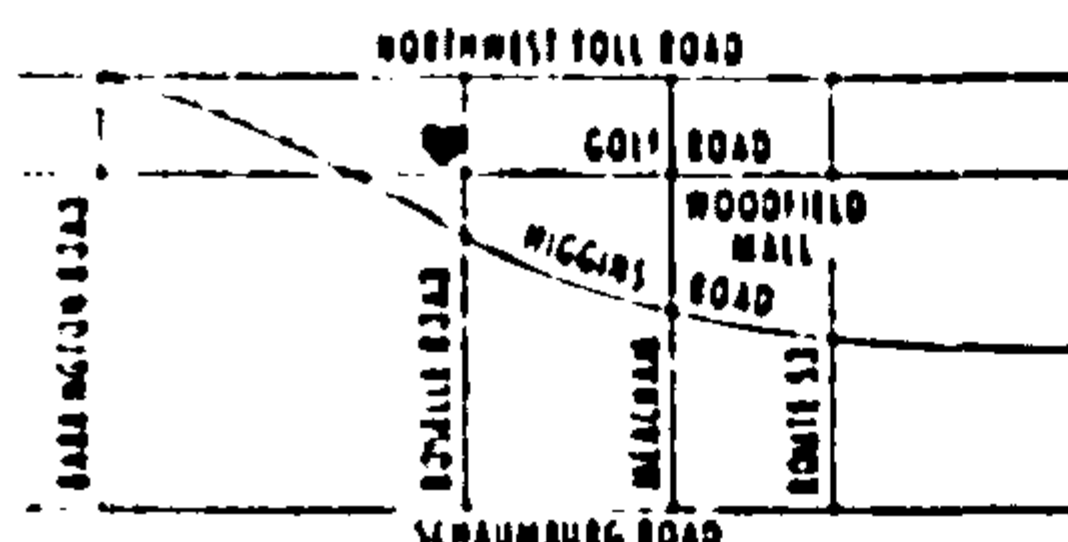

Barry Williams

Barry plays the oldest Brady boy, but at home he is the youngest of three children—all boys. He made his movie debut in "Wild in the Streets". His credits include some 17 commercials and 15 TV roles, among them MARCUS WELBY, M.D., MISSION:

IMPOSSIBLE, GENERAL HOSPITAL.

The musical endeavors of the 18 year-old Barry began when he sang "I'm Just Too Young to Know" in one of the series episodes. Since that time, he has released a couple of records with the other Brady kids and a solo released in June of this year, "Cheyenne".

Williams lives with his parents. His pets include a dog and two cats. The young star excels in swimming, water skiing, and surfing. He also plays baseball, tennis, football, and golf. Recently he took up skiing. Because of his surfing ability, one of the Hawaiian episodes showed Barry competing. Did you see him?

Write to Barry in care of ABC-TV, 1330 Avenue of the Americas, New York, N.Y. 10019.

I saw the movie "No Place to Run". I would like to know the name of the boy who starred with Herschel Bernardi and where I could write to him. Could you print a picture of him?

L.L.

Scott Jacoby

The boy who played in the movie made for TV, "No Place to Run", was Scott Jacoby. You may write to him in care of ABC-TV, 1330 Avenue of the Americas, New York, N.Y. 10019. We don't have information about him at this time, but we can print a picture of him for you. He was also in the movie "That Certain Summer" which was recently seen on TV.

My friend and I are writing a report on Karen and Richard Carpenter. Please tell where we may reach them and print a picture of the two together.

B.B.

Karen and Richard Carpenter

We certainly hope this information gets to you intine for the report. Write to the brother-sister hitmakers in care of A&M Records, 1416 North La Brea Avenue, Hollywood, Calif. 90028.

Could you possibly send me a poster of Rudolph Valentino? I would appreciate it very much.

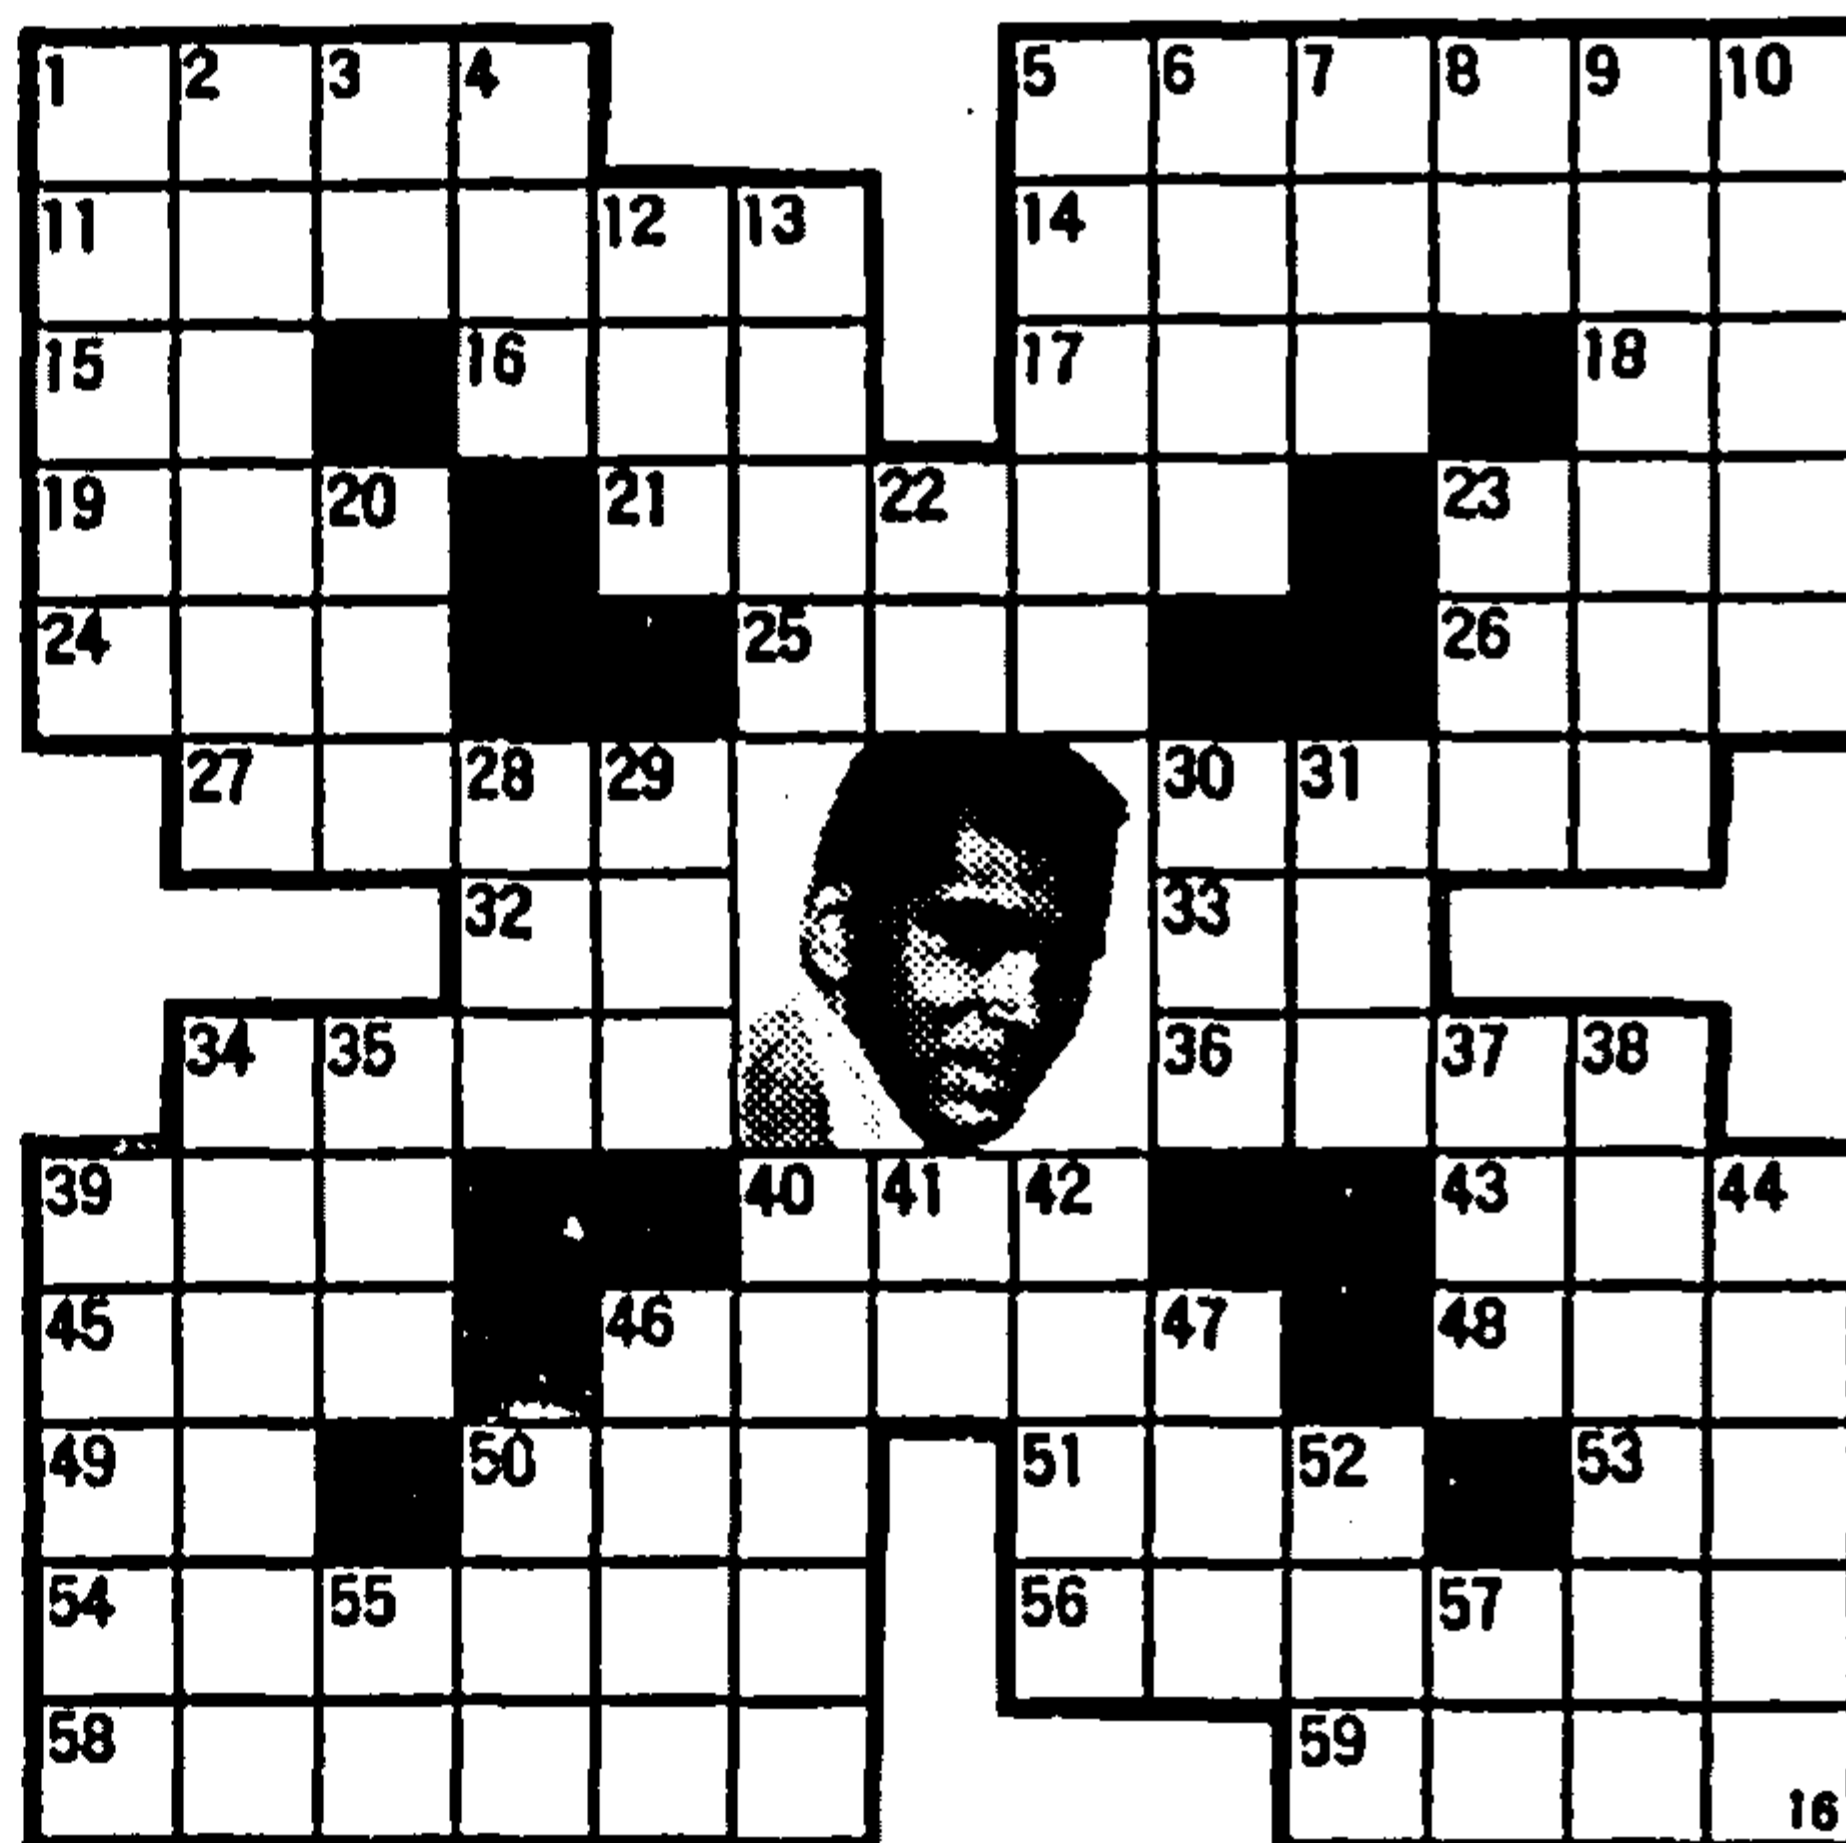

Joseph Homo
Arlington Heights.

Sorry, Joseph, but we do not send out posters or pictures. We suggest that you send to Theatre Poster Exchange, P.O. Box 845, Memphis, Tenn. 38101

The 'lover of all times' was relatively young when he died. His life spanned the years 1895-1926. Rudolph was married two times: the first time to Jean Acker; and the second to Winifred Hudnut. Winifred was an actress known as Natacha Ramboza.

Valentino's death took place on August 23, 1926 as a result of a case of appendicitis. For as short a time as he made films, he certainly became a big star. Even yet he is still well-known for his love scenes.

Huey Long was the most successful demagogue in the history of American politics. His controversial career took him from the backwoods of Louisiana to the halls of Congress in Washington. He was heralded as the champion of the common man. Their hopes he claimed were his hopes. Their roots he boasted were his roots. Ruthless, ambitious, whatever he might have been called, Huey Long was paid his final respects, by over 100 thousand people, who had made him what he was.

Christmas is alive in Tom and his show

Tom Jones

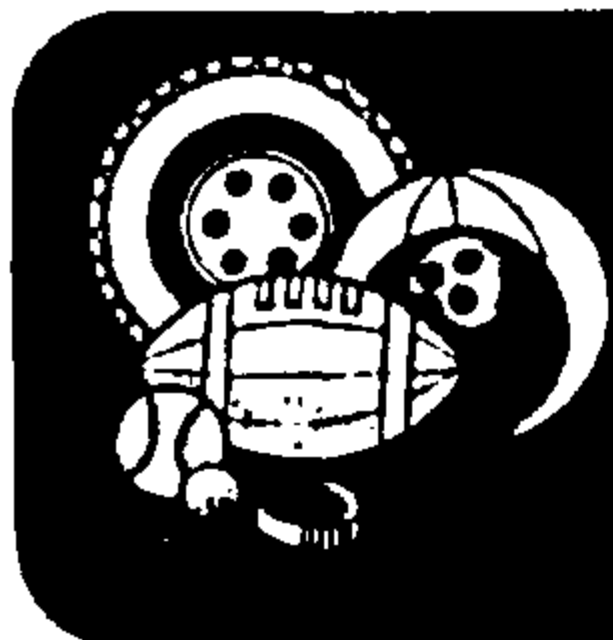

The spirit of Christmas comes alive in a "This Is Tom Jones" holiday "Tuesday Evening Special" on WGN Television, December 19.

Guest stars for the festivities include Judy Collins, David Frye, Millicent Martin and the 102 Welsh Treorchy Male Voice Choir.

The Choir, which begins the program with "All Through The Night," later joins Jones in a Christmas medley of seven favorite carols. Tom not only joins in the singing but also reads some works of Dylan Thomas.

Judy Collins solos "My Father" and "Chelsea Morning" and Millicent Martin's numbers include "And When I Die" and "Conversations." Impressionist David Frye keeps the seasonal mood happy with a monologue about the night before Christmas.

Tom's solos include "I'm Not Responsible," "Scarlet Ribbons," "Gonna Build a Mountain," "Brother, Can You Spare a Dime" and "Tutti Frutti."

Saturday's 'Film Festival'

Two rival hockey teams are the subject on CBS

The universal tale of a boy's dream of glory—in this case winning an ice hockey game—forms the basis for "The Goalkeeper Also Lives on Our Street," a Czechoslovakian motion picture to be rebroadcast on "The CBS Children's Film Festival" Saturday, Dec. 16, in color on the CBS Television Network.

Two teams of young Prague schoolboys, The Little Lions and The Devil Street Boys, are ice hockey rivals, and some of the Lions players are so preoccupied with the impending "big game" that their schoolwork suffers, bringing teacher and parent reaction.

Matters are further complicated when the goalkeeper of the Czechoslovakian National Hockey Team moves into the neighborhood. The goalie's son, basking in his father's glory, is asked to replace a member of the Lions team, prompting the usual boyish rivalries and battles.

Burr Tillstrom's Kukla, Fran and Ollie, with Fran Allison, are hosts of "The CBS Children's Film Festival."

Nureyev comes to television

Six television cameras were used to record 50 miles of video tape during the production of "The Sleeping Beauty," starring Rudolf Nureyev with the National Ballet of Canada. Nothing like it has been done on television before.

According to Emmy award-winning director Norman Campbell, the Christmas holiday television event will give every viewer at home "the best seat in the house" for this new staging of the famed Tchaikovsky classic.

The 90-minute television special will have its premiere on the Public Broadcasting Service December 17, with an encore performance on Christmas Day, December 25.

To preserve the drama and authenticity of Nureyev's staging, Campbell taped the production on the stage of Toronto's O'Keefe Centre rather than in a television studio. Campbell, who won his Emmy for direction of the televised ballet version of "Cinderella," has also directed "All in the Family."

Campbell's philosophy is that every dance in a ballet is best viewed from a different part of the audience.

The six television cameras, each with its own video tape recorder, were therefore installed in strategic locations throughout the theatre. A 30-foot tower was erected at each side of the auditorium from which two cameras would get a "Dress Circle" view. Three cameras were mounted over the first few rows, and another was placed at stage level near the footlights.

Instead of editing a final tape from the six cameras as he went along, as is the case with most television productions, Campbell recorded everything each camera saw so that the most perfect camera angle for every step of the ballet could be chosen in the final editing.

The result was 72 reels of tape.

"Ballet is the most visual of the performing arts," Campbell says, "and is ideally suited for television."

Albert Finney and Yvette Mimieux star in "The Picasso Summer," a surrealistic film dealing with the vitality of Picasso's art as seen through the eyes of a young couple who worship the painter, on "The CBS Late Movie" Tuesday, Dec. 19, on the CBS Television Network.

After a swinging party in an art gallery, George and Alice Smith (Finney and Miss Mimieux) retire to their San Francisco apartment. It, like everything else in their lives, is dominated by their idol, Picasso.

To secure a better understanding of Picasso's technique, they decide to visit him in the south of France. But their letters and telegrams, begging an audience, go unanswered.

Their frustration results in a quarrel, and George runs off to Spain on a strange quest, during which he believes he has encountered the real Picasso.

Four means "finis"

E.G. Marshall

This column written by Managing Editor Karen Johnson.

The number 4 once again plays a part in the life of actor E.G. Marshall with the news that the NBC Network has dropped "The Bold Ones" from its list beginning January 23.

Marshall, who starred as Dr. David Craig, on the four-year-old series, was the recipient of two Emmy Awards for his role on "The Defenders"...which also met its end at the four-year mark.

What are the actor's thoughts on the subject? With a "that's life" attitude he told us, "David (Hartman) and I are 'still in the office.' We're filming the last of the segments."

Seeming anything but displeased with the news he commented, "We weren't surprised, nor unexpectedly unhappy. It had a longer run than most."

The decision to drop the show E.G. lays at the feet of the public. "People are very selective about what they view. After all, 'I' watch what 'I' like. Of course, this is reflected in the ratings. I have no argument with the people...or the ratings. The networks are responsive to the people through the ratings and that's the way it should be."

E.G. may be dropping his identity as Dr. Craig but he's so engrossed in other elements of the show-time world that he's anything but out of work...or ideas.

At the moment he's caught up in the educational-travel type shows that he says, "are my thing."

"There's always room for that type of programming. It gives the total picture balance," he said. Taking a "for instance" he mentioned the General Electric Monogram Special: "Getting There First: The American Experience which airs soon across the country.

"It's about Americans. We've always wanted to be the fastest...the biggest...the first to the moon. It's wonderful to be an American and be positive about it. There are so many good things about the 'we' are." And then, on a personal note, "When I'm in Washington I always make it a point to go to the Smithsonian Institute and see what's new."

Getting back to the "ever-present" in his life, Marshall switched his conversation to the theatre...its problems...and his attitude towards them.

"Thirty years ago I attended a conference on building up 'regional theatre.' People had gotten...and still have...the idea that they have to go to New York or California to get involved in the theatre. That's not...or shouldn't be...true. There should be more regional theatres across the country. Actors 'must go home' and get involved there."

"The theatre has been losing the younger generation," Marshall admitted. And he's got some views on the "whys" of the situation.

"As soon as the budget gets examined in our educational facilities the arts get cut." This trend he feels has got to change and E.G. is only too happy to do his part to see that it does.

"I'm on my way to Richmond, Virginia where they've started a regional theatre," he said. "During the run we've scheduled a show for 10:30 a.m. everyday so the young people can attend. They'll see the show as a part of their educational curriculum." E.G.'s voice took on a nostalgic note. "I remember seeing "Julius Caesar" when I was young. It made a great impression on me. It's time to get 'this' younger generation interested in the theatre."

Perhaps four years from now...E.G. will have that "interest" on its way...that's been the pattern.

Richard the Romantic

This week's column was written by Managing Editor Karen Johnson following an interview with Richard Chamberlain at Chicago's Arlington Park Theatre where he will star in "The Fantasticks" from Dec. 14-Jan. 14.

"It's an incredible love story. No one has ever given up a throne." Richard Chamberlain's voice took on a gentle, romantic aura as he thought back to the filming of "The Woman I Love," the ABC Special that airs December 17, in which he stars as Edward VIII and Faye Dunaway portrays Wallis Warfield Simpson, the American divorcee for whom the King abdicated the throne of England in 1936.

Chamberlain spoke slowly, as if testing the words to be sure that they carried the importance of what he was saying in the right manner. "I didn't realize before the filming began that the Duke and Duchess hadn't been consulted. Universal took the position that their story was a historical event. I think that's valid. "Apparently, he seemed to add as a footnote, "they weren't too pleased. I think they would have been if they'd known how we were doing it. It's a respectful, sympathetic piece."

As he became involved in the conversation, Richard, shared his opinion of how it might have been.

"From what I've learned the Duke was dissatisfied with his position as King. He loved the people...wanted to do something for them...but he was powerless. The Monarchy is above law and law making. "Like the time he visited the Welch miners and then publicly stated that something should be done for them." Chamberlain shook his head, "the government was scandalized. It seemed that he was putting down the relationship that the empire had with the working men. It should have been put down. Conditions were horrifying. He cared deeply," the actor shrugged, "and could do nothing. If he had had the freedom to be an instrument of the government...I don't think he would have abdicated for any reason, I believe." Chamberlain said leaning forward, "That his feeling of being powerless and his terrific love for her worked together to bring him to the gigantic decision."

Chamberlain's line of thought moved from the event to the production of the special. "I didn't know there was a taboo against doing anything about a member of the royalty during their lifetime. Of course, the Duke was alive when we made the film. When it was announced there was considerable press coverage. They seemed slightly disdainful of the bunch of Americans who were going to do this. Even the English subjects would probably have preferred that the story be done by Englishmen. I doubt," he added, "if it will ever be shown in England."

"The filming took 14 days and involves mainly the three months leading up to the abdication," the actor told me. In preparation Chamberlain watched hours of newsreels and read biographies of the subjects. "There's a wonderful picture book," he said. "It's called, 'The Windsor Years.' It helped me to see the photographs. Newspaper pictures of the Duke were always so somber...so serious. But, he wasn't always like that. He had a great smile."

Centering on Richard Chamberlain, the person, I suggested that he was a romantic. At first there was a slight hesitation. A 'some things don't look good in print' kind of thing. But, slowly a grin crossed the 35-year-old actor's face and he said, "Yes, I'm a romantic, that's probably the reason I liked the film so much."

Will Richard marry? Will the Knight find a lady? "Marry?" A kind of pensive, "How do I know?" look appeared. "Whether you marry...or you don't," he said, quietly, "You're always missing something. No matter what you choose in life...you leave something behind."

Former Village Clerk To Seek Past Office

Two Announce Candidacies For Clerk, Trustee Posts

Former Elk Grove Village Clerk Leo Turner said yesterday she will seek to regain her past office, and Trustee Ted Staddler announced his candidacy for a two-year term as trustee in the coming April village elections.

"I was village clerk for 10 years, and I found the job interesting and village government fascinating," Mrs. Turner, of 660-A Versailles Circle, said.

Contradicting rumors that she and former village Pres. James Gibson may run as a team, she said she would be running as an independent and did not have any plans to be on a slate. Mrs. Turner said many people she knew had indicated support for her, but there was no organized group behind her.

Mrs. Turner, manager of the new accounts department at the Bank of Elk Grove, has lived in the village since 1975, except for a one-year absence. "Elk Grove Village is a town that has meant a lot to me, especially moving in as one of the first families," she said. "I have grown up with the town, and its welfare is of great concern to me."

"The growth of the area is so much a part of me that it is second nature to be involved with the village," she said.

MRS. TURNER was village clerk from 1961-70 and served with presidents Gibson and Jack Pahl. She and Gibson ran on the same slate in 1961 along with three trustees and one police magistrate candidate, but she ran as an independent in 1963 and 1969.

Staddler has served on the board of trustees for the past seven months and says he will seek a two-year trustee term earlier this year.

He chose to run, saying, "I feel I have something to offer the village and now I have some experience too." He added he also has served on the village Plan Commission.

Staddler, of 1032 Brantwood Ave., his wife, Marsha, and three sons have lived in the village since 1959, except from 1963-69 when he was transferred to Milwaukee. He is the education manager in the field engineering division of International Business Machines in Chicago.

Other activities include Lions Club and the Citizens' Reorganization Study Committee exploring the possibility of forming a unit school district in the Dist. 59 area with grade and high schools under the same administration.

Staddler said he would be making further announcements on his positions in the campaign.

THIS YEAR village board offices up for election are president, clerk, one 2-year trustee term and four 4-year trustee terms. Candidates must collect

Ted Staddler

Leo

between 155 and 247 signatures of eligible voters in the village to be turned in from Jan. 8 to Feb. 12.

So far six other candidates have announced plans to run for trustee terms, and two are seeking the presidency. Mrs. Turner is the only announced candidate for village clerk.

Incumbent Charles Zettek and Robert "Bud" Lindahl have announced their candidacy for president within the past week. Lindahl, of 69 A Versailles Circle, is a member of the Elk Grove Village Community Service board of directors. He also is a member of the Knights of Columbus and the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Zettek, 44 Woodcrest Ln., has served 10 years as a trustee and two years as president. He was selected by the board of trustees to replace former Pres. Jack Pahl when he resigned.

Other announced candidates for trustee are incumbents Nanci Vanderweel, 215 Fleetwood Ln., and George Spees, 140 Crest Ave.; and hopefuls Kevin McCarthy, 917 Ridge Ct.; Melvin Bytnar, 236 Wellington Ave.; Eugene Keith, 48 Lonsdale Rd., and Suzanne Walsh, 41 Keswick Rd.

THIS WEEK THE weather was fit for neither man nor beast, and this little pooch, out for a walk with its mistress, knew it. Snow, sleet and freezing rain teamed up to make driving — and walking — less than fun.

Former Policeman Here Ordained As Deacon

A former Elk Grove Village resident, Harry Walsh, was one of 98 persons ordained permanent deacons of the Catholic Church last Sunday. Walsh, who had been an Elk Grove Village police lieutenant, is now the police chief in Buffalo Grove.

The men who participated in the ceremonies at St. Ferdinand Church will be assigned to parish staffs where they may preach, baptize, assist at the Eucharist and sometimes witness marriages, among other duties.

Currently Walsh is assigned to Queen

Harry

nity, aiding those who directed the church in liturgical ways, giving catechism instruction, and aiding needy members of the parish.

Although the permanent diaconate, after it was first established, lasted for several centuries, the need for the office had become questionable by the Middle Ages. For all practical purposes it became what it was until 1968 — a preparatory stage for the priesthood.

The main argument for restoring the diaconate was as a solution to the shortage of priests in many areas. In addition to their other duties, today's deacons function more actively as social workers and missionaries in many problem areas.

The Chicago Archdiocese conducts one of the largest training programs for the diaconal candidates in the country. Generally, full-time training lasts about two years. There are also part-time programs, including weekend and summer institutes and correspondence courses for those who cannot attend a full-time program. Exceptions are also made where an individual already has the background required for ordination.

Santa To Be At Mall

Santa Claus is coming to Elk Grove Village at 10:30 a.m., tomorrow, at the Park 'N Shop Mall, Arlington Heights and Higgins roads.

Santa will be at the mall until 5 p.m. tomorrow, from 1-5 p.m., Sunday, and 7-8:30 p.m., Monday and Tuesday.

There will be a Santa mailbox and a "good book" for children to sign.

Girl Scouts, Brownies, Blue Birds and Camp Fire Girls will sing Christmas carols.

Santa Claus is being brought to the village by the Elk Grove Village Junior Woman's Club.

Last Saturday, the woman's club treated 10 children from Aid to Dependent Children families to a shopping trip. The club gave each child $5 to spend on presents for their families.

of the Rosary Church in Elk Grove Village, his hometown before coming to Buffalo Grove. He is also in charge of pastoral care at Alexian Brothers Medical Center there.

Walsh is scheduled to assist at the midnight Christmas mass at St. Mary's Church in Buffalo Grove and to join the staff there after Easter. He will continue his duties at Alexian Brothers hospital.

THE PERMANENT diaconate, the highest lay office of the church, was reinstituted in 1968 by the Second Vatican Council after an absence of 1700 years.

The purpose of the permanent diaconate has been described as a "ministry of service." In the early church this meant as it still does today, serving as a link between the church and the commu-

Fire Chief Gives Tree Safety Tips

"Persons should buy live Christmas trees as close to Christmas as possible and keep them in the house for a minimum amount of time for safety's sake," Elk Grove Village Fire Chief Allen Hulett said yesterday.

"There are no village regulations concerning live trees, but when live trees dry out, they are extremely dangerous," he said. "I recommend that the tree be taken inside the house as close to Christmas as possible and that the tree be cut at an angle so it will have a greater surface to absorb water and will dry out slower."

Hulett said wax candles should never be used to decorate the tree, and all lights should be of the low-voltage type. He added that the electric bulbs should have the Underwriters Laboratory label, showing they have been tested and approved.

"Never leave a tree unattended with the lights on," he warned. "Gift wrappings should not be left so they could provide fuel for a fire, and trees should not be placed near a stove, fireplace or radiator."

Persons who purchase plastic trees also must guard against fire, he said. "Plastic trees usually burn slower, but they contain more poisonous gases than live trees, including deadly carbon monoxide."

Hulett said everything he warned people about Christmas safety is the result of his experience as a firefighter. However he added that last year in Elk Grove Village there were minor fires, but nothing that caused any serious destruction, injuries or death.

"Christmas is a time of merriment, but it can become a season of tragedy if people are not aware of the safety precautions they should take," Hulett said.

Granted Continuance

A hearing was continued to Jan. 10 in the Elk Grove Village branch of circuit court Wednesday for Johnnie Stephens, 24, of Chicago on charges of theft. Stephens was arrested in October after village police said they saw him taking six tires from a stockpile in Centex Industrial Park.

Convicted Of Theft

Horace Cherry, 21, of Chicago, was found guilty of theft Wednesday in the Elk Grove Village branch of circuit court and placed on probation for two years. He was charged in connection with theft of 49 tires worth $3,500 from General Tire Co., 900 Chase Ave.

Mount Prospect To Fight Tax Freeze

A resolution opposing any statewide plan to freeze local property tax levies is being prepared for passage by the Mount Prospect Village Board.

At least three members of the board have already publicly voiced opposition to the freeze plan, proposed by Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie last October. Ogilvie's plan would freeze the total dollar amount of tax revenue — not tax rates — a taxing district can get through real estate and personal property taxes. The freeze would be based on levies used to calculate the 1973 tax bills.

Trustee Patrick J. Link said he was against the freeze and had already helped pass a resolution against it as president of the River Trails Park District.

Another trustee against it, Daniel J. Ahern, said, "It started off as a political gimmick." He said a freeze would just lead to taxation in a different form, one which may not be as clear to residents.

MAYOR ROBERT D. TEICHERT, who has been a vocal critic of the proposed freeze, is against the plan because he considers it part of an overall attack on the local government's taxing power.

He told the board members that the freeze cannot be thought of as an isolated piece of proposed legislation but had to be considered along with other proposals now before the state legislature, one of which would distribute equally among all communities the one per cent sales tax rebate. The latter, if passed, would mean a great loss in revenue for Mount Prospect as it would minimize their sales tax returns from the Randhurst Shopping Center.

Teichert said he fears that were these proposals to become law, the local communities "may get boxed in" and end up with nowhere to turn to for revenue to provide necessary services.

He indicated the whole tax freeze proposal was a politically motivated gambit that is not likely to pass anyway. "It sounded great during the campaign period," he said.

A frequently mentioned tax alternative open to the village is the levying of a utility tax. However, Teichert would rather see such a tax used to resolve the inequities in the property tax rather than to make up revenues taken from the community by state legislation.

Scott's Actions Satisfy Officials At Race Track

by DAVID MAHSMAN

See related story Section 2, Page 10
Arlington Park Race Track officials have expressed satisfaction at Illinois Atty. Gen. William Scott's move to seek a court decision on the validity of the 1973 racing dates awarded three weeks ago by the Illinois Racing Board.

"I think this is the best way to go," said Thomas Rivera, Arlington Park information officer, of Scott's quest for a final decision in the racing schedule controversy.

The racing board Thursday unanimously denied a petition from Arlington Park - Washington Park Race Tracks Corp. for a new racing schedule, but race track owners' hopes for a better schedule were kept alive by Scott's announcement that his office will take the matter to court Monday.

Scott made the announcement in a surprise appearance at Thursday's racing board hearing on Arlington-Washington's request for reconsideration of the 1973 racing schedule. Track officials said they had not expected the courts to become involved in the controversy at this point.

THE RACING board voted unanimously to support Scott in seeking an early court ruling on the racing schedule.

Scott told the board and those present at the hearing that he is of the opinion that racing dates awarded to corporations headed by William S. Miller should be thrown out. Miller is a former racing board chairman under indictment — with former Gov. Otto Kerner — on charges of bribery and income tax evasion in connection with an alleged race track stock scandal.

The Illinois Racing Act provides that the racing board shall award racing dates based on maximizing state revenue and only to persons of good moral character. Scott said that Miller's indictment places him in the realm of "moral turpitude" and disqualifies him from receiving a racing license.

But Scott's opinions are not binding, so he decided to take the issue to court.

"We've had to go to court in the past to support our opinions, and we will go to court in the future," Scott said, adding that the courts have backed his opinions in the past. He called his case against Miller "important to the people of the state and the integrity of the state."

ACTING RACING Board chairman Joseph Lamendella said he hopes the court will consider the opinions of all racing commissioners in ruling on the racing dates. He was referring to three separate reports that were filed by commissioners following a 4-3 board approval of the 1973 racing schedule. Besides the majority report upholding the decision, Lamendella filed a dissenting report, as did former board chairman Alexander MacArthur and Commissioner Gerald F. Fitzgerald, asking for a change in dates. MacArthur resigned in protest over the schedule that was awarded.

"I certainly welcome the opportunity to finally have this (racing schedule) matter cleared," said Commissioner Edward J. Long after voting for board support of Scott. Long was one of the commissioners who voted in favor of the 1973 schedule.

Prior to Scott's appearance before the racing board, the commissioners unanimously approved Lamendella's motion to deny the race track's petition for a new schedule. Long seconded that motion.

Frank Riley, attorney for Arlington-Washington, told the board he based the petition on the fact that Arlington Park was granted a single 77-day racing license for 1973, rather than two licenses — one each for the Arlington Park and Washington Park Jockey Club meets. Technically, Riley said he was not seeking a new schedule, but another racing license.

Riley argued that state law prohibits a single meet of more than 60 days, which he said he feels was the effect of the board's decision to grant only one license. But an assistant attorney-general assigned to the racing board said the single 77-day license is valid because Arlington-Washington owns two race tracks.

ARLINGTON-Washington Pres. John F. Loomis spoke only briefly in defense of a longer racing season for Arlington Park. He said his testimony during the Nov. 17 board hearing — that a longer season for Arlington Park is in the best interest of Illinois racing — still stands.

Arlington Park was awarded 77 days of continuous racing to run from April 25 to July 24, preceded by six days of racing for the Sun-Times/Daily News charity meet. The track had requested 120 days of racing, the maximum allowed by law.

After the racing board voted Thursday to deny Arlington-Washington's request for a new schedule, Lamendella explained that he had earlier conferred with Scott, who had raised some question as to whether or not the board could change the schedule at this time. Scott based his opinion that such a move would be improper on two points:

— Arlington-Washington's petition did not ask for a change in dates, but only for another racing license.

— The racing board does not have the authority to change racing dates at this time.

Zoning Change Requested For Condominium

Owners of a 3.9-acre site at Elk Grove Boulevard and Ridge Avenue in Elk Grove Village are requesting a change in zoning to pave the way for a five-story condominium to be built on the site. The request asks for a change from single family to multi-family dwelling.

In a letter to the village board, Richard Houpt, attorney for Phoenix Construction Co., owners of the property, said an L-shaped condominium structure with 62 units was being planned by developers.

The building would have 62 parking spaces in an underground garage plus 62 more spaces on the surface. A sun terrace and swimming pool also are planned.

Plans for developing the site were first presented to village trustees at a dinner meeting this summer. In October Bob Schwartz, architect for the developer, appeared at a village board committee meeting to present revised plans for the project.

At that time Schwartz said the proposed condominiums were not near any single-family homes and the site was a good location for such a structure.

Mount Prospect May Lose Park Site

The Mount Prospect Park District is in danger of losing the greenhouse property at Friendship Park in Des Plaines for failure to pay 1969 taxes on the property. The park district started condemnation proceedings on the eight-acre property to acquire it for park land in October, 1968. Because the property was under condemnation, the former owner, Martin Goergen, did not feel he was obliged to pay the 1969 taxes. If condemnation proceedings had gone through, the park district could have filed for a tax exemption with the county treasurer's office.

But before condemnation became final, Goergen decided to sell the land to the park district with the stipulation that he be allowed to rent the property until his children finished school. The park district agreed and condemnation proceedings were stopped. Yet in the sale agreement, through some oversight, the park district failed to make any provision with Goergen for payment of the 1969 taxes so that title to the land could be cleared. According to Marshall Theroux, Wheeling Township assessor, past delinquent taxes are usually allocated between the seller and the buyer when the land deal is closed.

In March, 1971, the Cook County treasurer's office gave notice that the taxes on the land had not been paid. At that time, Ben Lejar, a private citizen, bought the tax certificate on the land.

According to James Rooney, an attorney in the Cook County assessor's office, if the park district does not pay the taxes, with interest and penalties to the county before March, 1973, Lejar will be able to buy the land for the price of the delinquent taxes $2,224.16. Lejar said yesterday that if he doesn't hear from William Ward, the park district's attorney by Monday, he will file suit for the deed to the property.

Despite Rooney's opinion, Board Pres. Robert Jackson said that Ward told him Tuesday that the whole problem "appears to be a misunderstanding."

"At the time condemnation proceedings were filed, the taxes were held in abeyance," Jackson said. "Because of condemnation, we didn't own the property at that time. There's no liability on the park's part. In effect, the county shouldn't have sold the tax certificate," Jackson said.

Jackson said Ward told him he planned to contact Lejar about the property as soon as possible. "He told me he'd be happy to meet with him anytime and go down to the assessor's office to straighten it out," Jackson said.

Ward himself was in court yesterday and could not be reached for comment.

"Hey, Jesus Christ, Welcome to this World," an original rock oratorio, will be presented on Christmas Eve. It was performed last year by the same group, the Countryside Unitarian Fellowship of Palatine.

Three sons have been added to the show, which is scheduled for production at 7 p.m. Dec. 24 at the Plum Grove Club, 400 Park Dr., Palatine Township.

The oratorio will be followed by a brief worship service, Christmas carols and refreshments. All area residents can attend.

The rock oratorio began last year as a rock opera consisting of three songs, and evolved into a full-scale 30-minute production. After three performances last year, a recording was made.

The music was composed by Darlene LeMieux of Wood Dale and the lyrics by Jeanne Peters of Arlington Heights.

County Soil, Water District 'Uninformed'

Developers May Be Asked To Give Soil, Water Data

Wheeling Village Mgr. George Passolt soon will begin asking developers to attend meetings of the North Cook County Soil and Water Conservation District.

Passolt explained that the natural resource reports issued by the district on proposed developments are often sketchy because the district does not have complete knowledge of a developer's plans.

He said the reports often contain statements such as, "The method of detaining storm water runoff and providing compensatory flood water storage is not known."

"IT WOULD SEEM to me that rendering an opinion without knowing what the developer plans to do would be most difficult," Passolt said.

As a result, he is requesting that the agenda of the district's meetings be sent to the village. Passolt will then notify developers of the scheduled reviews of their projects.

He said the quality of the natural resource reports would improve if the developers were present to provide full information on their projects and answer any questions about their plans.

The conservation district first began issuing natural resource reports this summer when a new state law went into effect. Village officials, however, have not been happy with the reports and say that they do not tell them anything they don't already know.

REPORTS ARE issued on any parcel of undeveloped land larger than two acres that is being subdivided or rezoned. The report is paid for by the developer, and fees start at $125.

The district writes the reports for advisory purposes and has no powers to enforce their recommendations. Village zoning board and plan commission members review the recommendations, but in most cases have not found anything to enforce.

Passolt said that while the reports were presently not very useful, they could be quite valuable if based on full information on the proposed development.

He added that while he had no way to force developers to attend the conservation district meetings, his views of a developer might be affected if he did not attend and the district issued an unfavorable report on his project.

Mr., Mrs. Claus

At Commerce Park

Mr. and Mrs. Santa Claus have set up housekeeping this week at Wheeling's Chamber of Commerce Park.

With the help of the Wheeling Historical Society and the Wheeling Park District, they have converted the park's community building into a Lollipop Lane Starting tonight at 6:30 p.m. they will welcome village children who wish to chat with Santa.

Mrs. Claus has been baking homemade cookies, which she will sell to visitors. Proceeds from the cookie sale will go to the historical society. The cookies are sold with the historical society commemorative plates.

The couple expect more than 2,000 children to visit their home and admire the nine Christmas trees that have been decorated for the holiday season. They said parents who would like pictures of their children should bring cameras.

Lollipop Lane will be open from 1 to 5 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday and from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. Monday through Friday of next week. Several civic organizations in the village have made donations to help decorate the community building.

Officials Here To Testify In Landfill Case

Wheeling Village officials will testify in court Monday at a hearing on an apparent landfill operation at the Wedgewood Riding Academy on Milwaukee Avenue north of the village.

The hearing was scheduled earlier this week when the court granted an injunction halting all landfill operations at the site.

Assistant State's Atty. Jerome Schain filed for the injunction when the case against the riding academy was dismissed on a legal technicality last week.

The riding academy, being built by Leonard Pecos, was issued citations in October charging building without the proper permits and illegal landfill operations.

SINCE THE citations were issued by the county, Pecos has obtained the proper county building permits for above-ground construction. He does not, however, have the special use permit required by the county for landfill operations.

Pecos is now charged with filling in an old sand quarry on the construction site.

Pecos said there is no landfill taking place at the riding academy. He said the alleged landfill was merely part of the grading and landscaping being done to beautify the site.

However, William Bieber, Wheeling's director of building and zoning, claims landfill is going on at the site. "He has been filling. I've got the pictures to prove it," he said.

Bieber said he is concerned that the landfill at the site will affect the area's flood plain by filling in a needed water retention area. At the direction of the Wheeling Village Board, Bieber and Village Atty. Paul Hamer have offered to testify against Pecos, and Schain has accepted their offer.

Some Adults Use Children To Help Shoplift

by JULIA BAUER

Christmas may be the season for peace and good will, but it also causes one of the biggest headaches known to retailers—more shoplifters.

With the advent of self-service discount stores, shoplifters of all ages and techniques have been making off with literally millions of dollars in merchandise each year.

A local Zayre store, for instance, loses approximately 5 per cent of its inventory yearly. "And that's quite a lot in terms of dollars," security head Elaine Weaver said.

She leads a three-member security team in catching and preventing shoplifters in the store. Mrs. Weaver and her staff may be some of the most polished thieves in the area because their training includes studying the clothing and articles most frequently associated with the "art" of shoplifting.

Pockets and sleeves are the most popular hiding spots for successful shoplifters, especially during the peak Christmas season.

the old trick of piling on three or four dresses under the shopper's own clothes and wearing them all out of the store.

SOME PEOPLE WEAR their old, worn out shoes into the store and leave them on the shoe rack in exchange for a new pair. Or someone walks in without a coat and walks out sporting a brand new winter coat—unpaid for, of course.

"The thing that irritates me most is the parents who condone shoplifting and even use their kids in the theft," Mrs. Weaver said. She described the situation of a mother taking her preschooler, trying a sweatshirt or coat on him, and intentionally letting the child wear the clothes out of the store.

Fewer employees and the self-service system may be two reasons for high incidents of shoplifting in the large discount stores. A good security agent will recover as much as $5,000 worth of merchandise a year, according to Mrs. Weaver.

SOME OF THE larger chain stores will watch the "shrink rate" of individual outlets, or the amount lost to theft out of the total inventory. When the amount gets above a certain level, perhaps 3 to 6 per cent, more security agents may be sent into the store to step up the shoplifter patrol.

At peak times during the holidays, Mrs. Weaver says she requests an extra agent or two to help stem the flow of unpurchased goods.

Shoplifting in the self-service stores seems to come from individuals or pairs of people, Mrs. Weaver said. With two people, one can watch for a sales clerk while the other is hiding the merchandise. But so far, there has been little evidence of an organized theft ring operating in the area.

The situation may be different at the larger shopping centers.

Five Chicagoans were arrested in late November by Schaumburg police on multiple counts of grand theft at Woodfield Mall. Police suspect that the five were part of a "steal to order" shoplifting ring operating at the new shopping center.

SUCH PROFESSIONAL rings may be less common at the older shopping centers, such as Randhurst in Mount Prospect. Security officers at the 10-year-old center are more likely to recognize the professionals, many of whom have built up long records from past arrests.

Among the amateurs, teenagers and adults share the spotlight as suspects for shoplifting.

"The majority of them are teens, but we find adults, too," Palatine police Sgt. Gordon Mosby said. He added that the stolen items may range from a beef steak lifted from the grocery counter to a packet of film or card of batteries.

Photographic equipment, costume jewelry and cosmetics are the most frequently stolen items at Zayres, according to Mrs. Weaver. At Randhurst, clothing, cosmetics, costume jewelry and stereo tapes top the list.

Different stores handle their shoplifters in their own way. Some may prefer to talk to the person who is caught stealing a very minor item. They may have the shoplifter sign an admission form for the theft, then let him go without pressing charges.

OTHERS CHOOSE to prosecute nearly every case. Penalty for a first offense will usually be from six months to a year supervision, when the shoplifter is placed on good behavior and reviewed by the judge. A second incident may mean a fine, a short jail sentence or both.

"I don't really like to send them to the (police) station," Mrs. Weaver said. "We're really interested in preventing them from doing it again."

Prevention techniques aren't obvious in the store, except for mirrors. Uniformed guards don't stand in the aisles to intimidate would-be shoplifters. Instead, the staff members at Zayres work unidentified, wearing an overcoat, pushing a cart and browsing at items like most of the other shoppers.

When she does spot a shoplifter, the security officer must wait until the person has walked out of the store to make the arrest.

The most frustrating part of stopping a shoplifter may be realizing there is really no reason for the person to be stealing the goods, according to Mrs. Weaver.

"Usually half of the people that steal have the money in their pockets," she said.

HEAVY COATS, pockets and sleeves are favorite hiding spots for successful shoplifters, especially during the peak Christmas season.

Christmas Trees From The Roots Up

by KAREN BLECHA

More than 25 years ago John Kass decided to switch from raising cows to raising Christmas trees. Today he's not one bit sorry.

"I love the life," smiled the 63-year-old farmer who lives atop a high hill overlooking his 80-acre Christmas tree farm in Howard City, Mich. He's been selling the trees he raises on his seven farms for the past eight "or is it nine?" years on lots near Edward Street and Northwest Highway in Mount Prospect.

"I guess it was about 1945 or '46 that I started monkeying around with 'em," recalled Kass, who used to be a dairy farmer. It all started when a fellow asked Kass, who has a reputation for designing machines, to devise a Christmas tree planter. He accepted the challenge and designed a machine that with only two men can plant 2,000 trees an hour.

"That got me started. Then I did a lot of studying on the subject," Kass explained.

SINCE THEN, Kass has learned about the Christmas tree industry from the roots up. He once owned a nursery that raised about one million seedlings that were sold to Christmas tree farmers to begin their crop. He's become an expert in tree insect and disease control and still acts as a consultant. In the 1950's he was asked to write the Christmas tree grading (premium, choice, etc.) law for Michigan. And at one time, he headed a tree corporation that sold 100,000 trees all over the United States.

And he says, he's learning more every day just by "working with the trees." Besides raising "a couple hundred thousand" trees on his own farms, Kass also is an area supervisor for the M. Walter Co. of Chicago, which has been wholesaling trees since 1912.

Raising Christmas trees can be a tricky business, according to Kass. "Raising the trees used to be a hobby, done by the people with money — doctors, lawyers," Kass explained. "Now it's changing. There's a lot involved. You've got to match the trees with the site and the soil. You've also got to consider drainage."

The trees are planted in the spring. "A tree grows only once a year," Kass explained. "Usually it's in the last half of May and early June. It depends on the weather — trees don't read the calendar."

ONCE THE TREE is safely in the ground, it's left alone for three to four years except for insect inspection and occasional pruning. In the Kass family, it's the Mrs. that takes care of all the pruning. "She just goes out there and does it. I guess she covers about 30,000 trees a year," said Kass.

When it's time for cutting, Kass and his wife personally preselect the trees. "We look at them to make sure they are symmetrical, reasonably dense and have straight stems," he said. "You know two people never see the same tree. So we fight over it."

Once the trees are chosen, Kass hires boys to cut them down with chain saws. They are then bundled in netting, which "doesn't hurt the trees like rope does," and loaded onto trucks for delivery. Of the 20,000 trees Kass cuts a year about 800 go to Mount Prospect and the rest are wholesaled. The 10 to 12 per cent that turn out to be bad trees, are culled to make room for the new seedling.

Kass has Douglas fir, Scotch pine and spruce for sale on his lot. All were cut after Thanksgiving — some of them on Dec. 1 — to keep them fresh as long as possible.

"DOUGLAS FIR — that's the 'Lincoln Continental' of all trees," said Kass. "It's the best by shape, the aroma and the ease of handling. And it won't dry out fast."

The Scotch pines on the lot will probably never dry out. They've been sprayed with a sealer to keep the green color and for fire-proofing. "I could take a cigarette lighter out there and put it under a branch and it wouldn't burn," he said. Later Kass did just that to prove his point.

The few spruces on the lot are there for a special reason this year. "We're running a needle retention test on the trees," he said. "If the customer will agree to send us a report on how the tree held its needles, we'll knock $2 off the price."

Needle retention. Drying out. People who buy artificial Christmas trees don't have to worry about it. Kass admits that the artificial tree business has hurt his industry some.

"But people don't realize that most real trees are a lot more fireproof than the drapes of your home. It's the things on the tree and the papers under it that burn," Kass said. "I don't think the artificial tree can ever replace the real tree. There'll always be a Christmas and people who want fresh trees."

IN ABOUT TWO weeks the Kass' will pack up the trees that are left and head for home to decorate their own tree. Then comes a vacation. January, February and March are slack months in the industry.

"I'm been trying to retire to get back to my huntin' and fishin'," Kass said. But, his wife quickly added, "He's been saying that for a few years now."

State Unit To Finalize School Plans

A task force from the Office of the Illinois Superintendent of Public Instruction will visit River Trails Dist. 26 Monday to finalize educational specifications for the new school facility to house students at Maryville Academy in Des Plaines.

Dist. 26 submitted its educational specifications to both the office of public instruction and the Illinois Office of the Capital Development Board last week.

On Monday, members of the task force will review the specifications with Dist. 26.

"We will meet with them Monday afternoon and incorporate their recommendations. If we don't agree, we'll modify them," said Assistant Supt. James Retzlaff. The specifications are important because "the building we build is to some degree going to be based on the type of programs in that building," Retzlaff said.

ALTHOUGH A list of four possible sites for the new school building has already been submitted to the Capital Development Board, Dist. 26 has refused to reveal the location of the sites until decision is made. According to Ray Morris, project coordinator, however, the capital development board expects to come to "some conclusion as to site" sometime next week.

As of Thursday, Morris said he did not have the release from the governor yet authorizing allocation of funds for the new building, but "I expect it momentarily," he said. Dist. 26 has requested funds for the new building under a law passed by the legislature last year. The law provides that a school district can request state funds for school buildings when a nonpublic school closes resulting in an increased enrollment of five per cent or more to a public school district.

Such an emergency occurred in Dist. 26 in 1968 when Catholic Charities announced it could no longer afford to educate the Maryville children, who are wards of the state.

Bids for the third phase of flood control improvements were not opened because the first bid did not include cost estimate figures. The two other bids received for the project will be held until figures are received for the blank bid form.

The board directed the village attorney to draw up the necessary papers for a zoning change for a planned development south of Manchester Drive and east of Wolf Road.

The township received a revenue sharing check for $48,158 this week. That amount is for the first half of 1972. The township is expected to receive a check the first week of January for a similar amount, its payment for the second six months of 1972.

Township Supervisor Ethel Koterus has said that the board has made no plans for spending the money to date, because it had no idea how much to expect. She said the check is to be placed in an interest-bearing account until a decision is made as to its use.

3 Board Members Named To Act As Negotiators

Prospect Heights Dist. 23 Board members Carl Poch, Ronald Sowatzke and Alan Krinsky will serve on the district's 1973-1974 negotiations team.

The team was selected Wednesday night at a board meeting. Poch and Sowatzke, both of Prospect Heights, were elected to the board last April and served on this year's bargaining team.

Krinsky, of Arlington Heights, was appointed to the board in October to replace Donald McKay, who resigned. Krinsky who was chosen as an alternate for the team, has not indicated if he will seek election to the board next April. He ran for a board post last April, but was defeated.

TEACHER NEGOTIATIONS are scheduled to begin Feb. 15. At that time, according to Supt. Edward Grodsky, the two teams will decide if bargaining will be conducted in open session.

Unlike this year, Larry Halter of the Illinois Education Association (IEA), will not negotiate for the Prospect Heights Education Association (PHEA) next year, according to Dave Kessler, chairman of the negotiations team. Kessler is a teacher at MacArthur Junior High School.

"It was a joint decision between Larry and us to have us do our own negotiating this year," Kessler said. "We thought we should start doing our own." He said a spokesman for the teacher's team will be selected sometime in January.

Talks for a 1972-73 contract were open to the public in Dist. 23 for the first time this year. After 13 sessions, the two sides agreed to seek mediation because they could not reach an agreement. After four hours of mediation, the teams agreed to a contract including a 2.6 per cent cost of living raise for all returning teachers and $21,825 in merit pay funds.

The Wheeling Village Board this week approved the final plat of the Lake of the Winds planned development to be built between Waterman Lane and Cornell Avenue south of the VIP apartments.

Track Satisfied With Scott's Action

by DAVID MAHISMAN

See related story Section 2, Page 10

Arlington Park Race Track officials have expressed satisfaction at Illinois Atty. Gen. William Scott's move to seek a court decision on the validity of the 1973 racing dates awarded three weeks ago by the Illinois Racing Board.

"I think this is the best way to go," said Thomas Rivera, Arlington Park information officer, of Scott's quest for a final decision in the racing schedule controversy.

The racing board Thursday unanimously denied a petition from Arlington Park - Washington Park Race Tracks Corp. for a new racing schedule, but race track owners' hopes for a better schedule were kept alive by Scott's announcement that his office will take the matter to court Monday.

Scott made the announcement in a surprise appearance at Thursday's racing board hearing on Arlington-Washington's request for reconsideration of the 1973 racing schedule. Track officials said they had not expected the courts to become involved in the controversy at this point.

THE RACING board voted unanimously to support Scott in seeking an early court ruling on the racing schedule.

Scott told the board and those present at the hearing that he is of the opinion that racing dates awarded to corporations headed by William S. Miller should be thrown out. Miller is a former racing board chairman under indictment — with former Gov. Otto Kerner — on charges of bribery and income tax evasion in connection with an alleged race track stock scandal.

The Illinois Racing Act provides that the racing board shall award racing dates based on maximizing state revenue and only to persons of good moral character. Scott said that Miller's indictment places him in the realm of "moral turpitude" and disqualifies him from receiving a racing license.

But Scott's opinions are not binding, so he decided to take the issue to court.

"We've had to go to court in the past to support our opinions, and we will go to court in the future," Scott said, adding that the courts have backed his opinions in the past. He called his case against Miller "important to the people of the state and the integrity of the state. . ."

ACTING RACING Board chairman Joseph Lamendella said he hopes the court will consider the opinions of all racing commissioners in ruling on the racing dates. He was referring to three separate reports that were filed by commissioners following a 4-3 board approval of the 1973 racing schedule. Besides the majority report upholding the decision, Lamendella filed a dissenting report, as did former board chairman Alexander MacArthur and Commissioner Gerald F. Fitzgerald, asking for a change in dates. MacArthur resigned in protest over the schedule that was awarded.

"I certainly welcome the opportunity to finally have this (racing schedule) matter cleared," said Commissioner Edward J. Long after voting for board support of Scott. Long was one of the commissioners who voted in favor of the 1973 schedule.

Prior to Scott's appearance before the racing board, the commissioners unanimously approved Lamendella's motion to deny the race track's petition for a new schedule. Long seconded that motion.

Frank Riley, attorney for Arlington-Washington, told the board he based the petition on the fact that Arlington Park was granted a single 77-day racing license for 1973, rather than two licenses

— one each for the Arlington Park and Washington Park-Jockey Club meets. Technically, Riley said he was not seeking a new schedule, but another racing license.

Riley argued that state law prohibits a single meet of more than 60 days, which he said he feels was the effect of the board's decision to grant only one license. But an assistant attorney-general assigned to the racing board said the single 77-day license is valid because Arlington-Washington owns two race tracks.

ARLINGTON-Washington Pres. John F. Loomis spoke only briefly in defense of a longer racing season for Arlington Park. He said his testimony during the Nov. 17 board hearing — that a longer season for Arlington Park is in the best interest of Illinois racing — still stands.

Arlington Park was awarded 77 days of continuous racing to run from April 25 to July 24, preceded by six days of racing for the Sun-Times/Daily News charity meet. The track had requested 120 days of racing, the maximum allowed by law.

After the racing board voted Thursday to deny Arlington-Washington's request for a new schedule, Lamendella explained that he had earlier conferred with Scott, who had raised some question as to whether or not the board could change the schedule at this time. Scott based his opinion that such a move would be improper on two points:

—Arlington-Washington's petition did not ask for a change in dates, but only for another racing license.

—The racing board does not have the authority to change racing dates at this time.

20 Attend Hearing On Luxury Project

Residents Object To Development

by JILL BETTNER

All of the familiar objections to proposed multi-family developments in Buffalo Grove were voiced Wednesday night at a public hearing on plans for a 40-acre project at the southeast corner of Arlington Heights and Checker roads.

Arthur Swanson & Associates and the Donald Scholz Co. are seeking annexation and zoning for the luxury development that will include 384 units, about evenly divided between rental apartments and townhouse condominiums.

Village board action on the annexation and zoning request will probably be delayed at least a month because of the current moratorium on building that is in force until a master plan is adopted. The trustees are scheduled to conduct their public hearing on the Swanson project after Levitt & Sons, Inc., presents its plans for two developments north of Mundelein Road.

Several of the group of about 20 residents who attended Wednesday's meeting, conducted by the plan commission, were residents of Lake County Strathmore subdivision, just across Checker Road from the proposed Swanson project.

AFTER A FEW citizens interrupted Paul Swanson's presentation, Carl Genrich, plan commission chairman, said he would stick to the normal procedure of directing a public hearing and allow questions from the audience only at the end of the meeting. About half the group stayed to discuss the plans for the development until nearly 1 a.m.

The residents objected to Swanson's plans for several three-story apartment buildings on the north side of Buffalo Creek, which runs through the middle of the project. The apartments will range in rent from about $250 for an efficiency to $450 for a three-bedroom unit.

Swanson said it would be feasible to put the apartments on the other side of the creek with the condominiums, or possibly to construct cluster homes there instead.

Several citizens also voiced opposition to plans for a small convenience shopping center planned north of the creek at Arlington Heights and Checker roads. According to Swanson, this area would be the last portion of the development to be completed.

THE FEAR WAS also expressed that the Swanson project might increase the frequency with which a drainage ditch in the area overflows. Village Eng. Arnold Seaberg said if engineering for the development is done correctly, the problem would not be increased.

Some members of the plan commission echoed the concern of residents that approximately half the building area of the Swanson development lies in the flood plain. Swanson intends to alter the flood plain and provide for storm water retention by deepening the area adjacent to the creek on each side and using that fill to build up the low region.

Tom Hamilton, representing the Des Plaines River Basin Steering Committee, that is designing a master plan for flood control in the river watershed, recommended that no building be allowed in the local flood plain until after their plan is finished—probably in about two or three years.

Hamilton feels plans for possible retention facilities and developments upstream may have an effect on the Swanson property.

INCREASED TRAFFIC was another concern of citizens attending the meeting. Swanson plans to provide two entrances to the development at Knighthill Court and Burnt Ember Lane, both on Checker Drive. He intends to keep all the streets within the project private.

Recreation facilities included in the development are a children's playground, three tennis courts, an outdoor swimming pool and a recreation building.

A Montessori school and a playground will also be built as part of the project.

Swanson has previously discussed the possibility of donating or selling approximately 300 feet of public open space on either side of the creek to the park district. No plans have been finalized with park officials.

Comr. Evan Fader again expressed his feeling Wednesday that this area should remain open and available to the public.

The plan commission did not decide what recommendation on the project they will make to the village board. Swanson said he would consider the objections raised by residents and he may present modified plans later. Genrich said the plan commission will probably conduct several more workshop sessions on the Swanson proposals.

Village Fire Department Ordering New Ambulance

by RICH HONACK

The Buffalo Grove Fire Department is in the process of ordering a new ambulance. The new vehicle is expected to be in the village by late spring or early summer.

Fire Chief Wayne Winter said the emergency vehicle, considered to be one of the most modern, will be paid for with matching funds from the State Highway Safety Act. "Cost of the vehicle will come to about $17,000 and we asked that the state pay the maximum 50 per cent," said Winter.

He added that a state official informed the department yesterday the request for funds had been approved and believed it was for the full amount requested.

The remainder of the cost will be shared by the fire department, which has already included it in its 1973 budget proposal.

THE NEW VEHICLE is the latest in ambulance design. It is a modular truck, which means the cab and chassis can be separated from the patient compartment. It is built this way to help the fire departments save money in future years.

"In three years," Winter said, "rather than buying a whole new ambulance, as we normally would, we have the compartment detached and buy only the chassis and cab. The total cost for that will usually run around $3,500 as compared to $12,000 or more."

The patient compartment on the new ambulance is also bigger than most contemporary vehicles. "A paramedic can stand straight up in this truck and move around without having to be cramped for space. Also, if there is a disaster we can take as many as five patients, comfortably, to the hospital," explained the chief.

The new rescue truck will also break another tradition in Buffalo Grove fire equipment—the color code. The ambulance will be painted white with a wide orange stripe around it. It will also have the word "ambulance" printed backwards across the front of the hood.

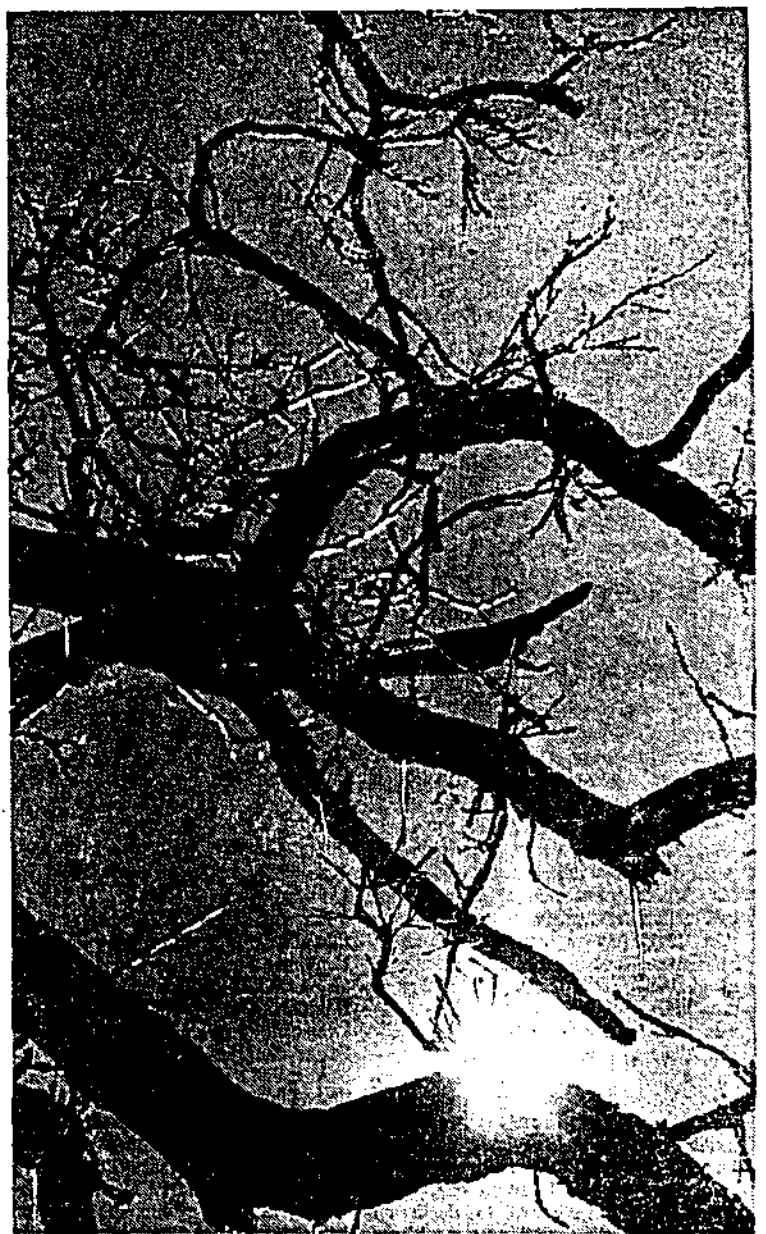

"FIRST OF ALL, the color code for the new vehicle is set by the federal government. Anyone buying an ambulance with the use of federal funds must have it painted white and orange," said Winter.

"The purpose of the word ambulance being spelled backwards is so drivers can read it in their rear view mirrors and move to the side of the road. That is also the primary reason for the coloring, which will eventually apply to every ambulance in the country," he added.

The current Buffalo Grove Ambulance, considered an A-1 ambulance by federal guidelines, will be switched to a stand-by position when the new vehicle arrives.

"This will give us two primary ambulances and will give the people in our service area greater service," said Winter. He explained that the current backup ambulance—a station wagon—will likely be turned over to the fire prevention bureau in the village.

The new ambulance, like all the equipment in the Buffalo Grove Fire Department, will only serve residents of the village who live south of the center line of Checker Road.

ICY FINGERS reach down from leafless trees as subfreezing temperatures reign. The winter sun melts the snow on the branches, but the water freezes in a sparkling glaze before it can drip to the ground.

WHAT MANY FIRE officials call the most modern ambulance ever developed will be coming to Buffalo Grove in about six months. The fire department is ordering the vehicle after learning that an application for a federal grant was accepted, and half the cost will be shared by the government. The new rescue unit will be white with an orange stripe. The rear compartment detaches from the cab and chassis and is expected to last at least 15 years.

Christmas Trees From The Roots Up

by KAREN BLECHA

More than 23 years ago John Kass decided to switch from raising cows to raising Christmas trees. Today he's not one bit sorry.

"I love the life," smiled the 63-year-old farmer who lives atop a high hill overlooking his 80-acre Christmas tree farm in Howard City, Mich. He's been selling the trees he raises on his seven farms for the past eight "or is it nine?" years on lots near Edward Street and Northwest Highway in Mount Prospect.

"I guess it was about 1945 or '46 that I started monkeying around with 'em," recalled Kass, who used to be a dairy farmer. It all started when a fellow asked Kass, who has a reputation for designing machines, to devise a Christmas tree planter. He accepted the challenge and designed a machine that with only two men can plant 2,000 trees an hour.

"That got me started. Then I did a lot of studying on the subject," Kass explained.

SINCE THEN, Kass has learned about the Christmas tree industry from the roots up. He once owned a nursery that raised about one million seedlings that were sold to Christmas tree farmers to begin their crop. He's become an expert in tree insect and disease control and still acts as a consultant. In the 1950's he was asked to write the Christmas tree grading (premium, choice, etc.) law for Michigan. And at one time, he headed a tree corporation that sold 100,000 trees all over the United States.

And he says, he's learning more every day just by "working with the trees." Besides raising "a couple hundred thousand" trees on his own farms, Kass also is an area supervisor for the M. Walker Co. of Chicago, which has been wholesaling trees since 1912.

Raising Christmas trees can be a tricky business, according to Kass. "Raising the trees used to be a hobby, done by the people with money — doctors, lawyers," Kass explained. "Now it's changing. There's a lot involved. You've got to match the trees with the site and the soil. You've also got to consider drainage."

The trees are planted in the spring. "A tree grows only once a year," Kass explained. "Usually it's in the last half of May and early June. It depends on the weather — trees don't read the calendar."

ONCE THE TREE is safely in the ground, it's left alone for three to four years except for insect inspection and occasional pruning. In the Kass family, it's the Mrs. that takes care of all the pruning. "She just goes out there and does it. I guess she covers about 30,000 trees a year," said Kass.

When it's time for cutting, Kass and his wife personally preselect the trees. "We look at them to make sure they are symmetrical, reasonably dense and have straight stems," he said. "You know two people never see the same tree. So we fight over it."

Once the trees are chosen, Kass hires boys to cut them down with chain saws. They are then bunched in netting, which "doesn't hurt the trees like rope does," and loaded onto trucks for delivery. Of the 20,000 trees Kass cuts a year about 800 go to Mount Prospect and the rest are wholesaled. The 10 to 12 per cent that turn out to be bad trees, are culled to make room for the new seedling.

Kass has Douglas fir, Scotch pine and spruce for sale on his lot. All were cut after Thanksgiving — some of them on Dec. 1 — to keep them fresh as long as possible.

"DOUGLAS FIR — that's the 'Lincoln Continental' of all trees," said Kass. "It's the best by shape, the aroma and the ease of handling. And it won't dry out fast."

The Scotch pines on the lot will probably never dry out. They've been sprayed with a sealer to keep the green color and for fire-proofing. "I could take a cigarette lighter out there and put it under a branch and it wouldn't burn," he said. Later Kass did just that to prove his point.

The few spruces on the lot are there for a special reason this year. "We're running a needle retention test on the trees," he said. "If the customer will agree to send us a report on how the tree held its needles, we'll knock $2 off the price."

Needle retention. Drying out. People who buy artificial Christmas trees don't have to worry about it. Kass admits that the artificial tree business has hurt his industry some.

"But people don't realize that most real trees are a lot more fireproof than the drapes of your home. It's the things on the tree and the papers under it that burn," Kass said. "I don't think the artificial tree can ever replace the real tree. There'll always be a Christmas and people who want fresh trees."

IN ABOUT TWO weeks the Kass' will pack up the trees that are left and head for home to decorate their own tree. Then comes a vacation. January, February and March are slack months in the industry.

"I been trying to retire to get back to my huntin' and fishin'," Kass said. But, his wife quickly added, "He's been saying that for a few years now."

State Unit To Finalize School Plans

A task force from the Office of the Illinois Superintendent of Public Instruction will visit River Trails Dist. 26 Monday to finalize educational specifications for the new school facility to house students at Maryville Academy in Des Plaines.

Dist. 26 submitted its educational specifications to both the office of public instruction and the Illinois Office of the Capital Development Board last week. On Monday, members of the task force will review the specifications with Dist. 26.

"We will meet with them Monday afternoon and incorporate their recommendations. If we don't agree, we'll modify them," said Assistant Supt. James Retzlaff. The specifications are important because "the building we build is to some degree going to be based on the type of programs in that building," Retzlaff said.

ALTHOUGH A list of four possible sites for the new school building has already been submitted to the Capital Development Board, Dist. 26 has refused to reveal the location of the sites until decision is made. According to Ray Morris, project coordinator, however, the capital development board expects to come to "some conclusion as to site" sometime next week.

As of Thursday, Morris said he did not have the release from the governor yet authorizing allocation of funds for the new building, but "I expect it momentarily," he said. Dist. 26 has requested funds for the new building under a law passed by the legislature last year. The law provides that a school district can request state funds for school buildings when a nonpublic school closes resulting in an increased enrollment of five per cent or more to a public school district.

Such an emergency occurred in Dist. 26 in 1968 when Catholic Charities announced it could no longer afford to educate the Maryville children, who are wards of the state.

Swim-Sauna Night Offered At Pool

The Wheeling Park District is offering a swim-and-sauna night on Wednesdays and Fridays from 7-10 p.m. at Neptune's Pool.

The program is designed to increase use of the pool and sauna facilities by reducing their cost. People without pool passes can use both facilities for a $1 fee, which is a savings of 50 cents. Passholders will be able to use the sauna for a 25-cent fee on those nights.

During the past few months, the park district has been increasing the hours of sauna use. It is now open during all general swim hours, or approximately 20 hours a week.

Auditors To Meet On Federal Funds Uses

The Wheeling Township Board of Auditors will meet at 8 p.m. Monday at township hall, 1818 E. Northwest Hwy., Arlington Heights, to discuss possible uses of the $96,000 in revenue sharing funds they are to receive for 1972.

The township received a revenue sharing check for $48,158 this week. That amount is for the first half of 1972. The township is expected to receive a check the first week of January for a similar amount, its payment for the second six months of 1972.

Township Supervisor Ethel Kolerus has said that the board has made no plans for spending the money to date, because it had no idea how much to expect. She said the check is to be placed in an interest-bearing account until a decision is made as to its use.

Board OKs Final Plan For 'Lake Of Winds' Development

The Wheeling Village Board this week approved the final plat of the Lake of the Winds planned development to be built between Waterman Lane and Cornell Avenue south of the VIP apartments.

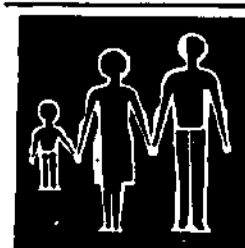

The plat was approved subject to the village authorities receiving approval of the plans from the engineering department. The plans must then be sent to a state agency for further approval.

In other business, the board approved partial payment to the M-W Construction Co. for the Anthony Road sewer line. The trustees also approved partial payment to the Rock Road Construction Co. for the Twelfth Street extension.

Bids for the third phase of flood control improvements were not opened because the first bid did not include cost estimate figures. The two other bids received for the project will be held until figures are received for the blank bid form.

The board directed the village attorney to draw up the necessary papers for a zoning change for a planned development south of Manchester Drive and east of Wolf Road.

3 Board Members Named To Act As Negotiators

Prospect Heights Dist. 23 Board members Carl Poch, Ronald Sowatzke and Alan Krinsky will serve on the district's 1973-1974 negotiations team.

The team was selected Wednesday night at a board meeting. Poch and Sowatzke, both of Prospect Heights, were elected to the board last April and served on this year's bargaining team.

Krinsky, of Arlington Heights, was appointed to the board in October to replace Donald McKay, who resigned. Krinsky who was chosen as an alternate for the team, has not indicated if he will seek election to the board next April. He ran for a board post last April, but was defeated.

TEACHER NEGOTIATIONS are scheduled to begin Feb. 15. At that time, according to Supt. Edward Grogdsky, the two teams will decide if bargaining will be conducted in open session.

Unlike this year, Larry Halter of the Illinois Education Association (IEA), will not negotiate for the Prospect Heights Education Association (PHEA) next year, according to Dave Kessler, chairman of the negotiations team. Kessler is a teacher at MacArthur Junior High School.

"It was a joint decision between Larry and us to have us do our own negotiating this year," Kessler said. "We thought we should start doing our own." He said a spokesman for the teacher's team will be selected sometime in January.

Talks for a 1972-73 contract were open to the public in Dist. 23 for the first time this year. After 13 sessions, the two sides agreed to seek mediation because they could not reach an agreement. After four hours of mediation, the teams agreed to a contract including a 2.6 per cent cost of living raise for all returning teachers and $21,825 in merit pay funds.

Blood Drive Begins Here; Goal Is Set At 1,200 Pints

The first village-wide blood drive in Palatine was officially started this week.

The goal: 1,200 pints of blood. The figure represents 4 per cent of the population of Palatine, and if 1,200 persons donate a pint of blood each, everyone in the village can receive an unlimited supply of blood at no expense for one year.

The blood drive is being coordinated in conjunction with the American Red Cross.

Letters were mailed this week to Palatine residents informing them of the campaign and seeking pledges to donate blood.

THE FIRST blood drawing is scheduled for Jan. 13 at the Palatine High School cafeteria.

Wayne Browning, chairman of the blood drive steering committee, said yesterday the group is hoping to have 290 potential donors signed up, with the expectation that some will be disqualified because of illness or other reasons.

Four other drawings have been scheduled during the next 11 months.

Browning said several local organizations will be involved in recruiting donors from among their membership and acquaintances.

Working on finding donors for the first drawing are the Palatine Kiwanis, Palatine League of Women Voters, Very Interested Parents of Palatine High School students, several Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 PTA chapters, the faculty of Palatine High School and the Palatine Rotary Club.

BROWNING SAID he is "very confident" the 4 per cent goal can be reached. "The people we've talked to so far in these groups have been very enthusiastic," he said.

An added bonus are blood donations obtained in smaller drives in Palatine, which can be counted toward the village-wide goal.

For example, some 1,000 pints were raised in a recent blood drive sponsored by St. Thomas of Villanova Church. The number of donations from Palatine residents among the church members can be included in the village total.

The village health department is making available a short film about blood donation that can be shown to various civic or church groups. A speaker can also be provided.

Any resident in good health between 18 and 65 years of age can pledge to donate blood by calling the health department at 359-7555 between 8:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. Mondays through Fridays.

Atcher Defends Village Role

by WANDALYN RICE

Schaumburg Mayor Robert O. Atcher recalled for the High School District 211 Board of Education last night that he arrived in the office of a city planner in London, England, a year ago and was greeted with the question, "How's Woodfield?"

Atcher used the example to point out that the village of Schaumburg is "internationally known for our planning and momentum in commercial development."

In a nearly hour-long presentation to the board, Atcher attacked a recent report by the Citizens Action Program

(CAP) and Illinois Education Association (IEA).

The two groups recently charged that underassessment of property in Schaumburg Township is costing taxing bodies $4.7 million in property taxes.

ATCHER DETAILED the history of development in Schaumburg, and attacked a CAP-IEA recommendation that vacant land be assessed for taxes based on a market value of $1 per square foot.

That formula, Atcher said, "is confiscatory in my opinion. It would make it impossible for me to ever convince a developer to buy another piece of property in Schaumburg."

The Schaumburg mayor only briefly alluded near the end of his presentation to a suggestion he made earlier this month that the village of Schaumburg break away from District 211 and Elementary District 54 to form its own unit school district.

He did, however, indirectly attack Dist. 54 Business Manager Marvin Lapicola, who had said he believed that tax breaks had been offered to companies to persuade them to locate in Schaumburg. Atcher said "some of the suggestions that have been made that some people have been offered low assessments to come here have become rather an irritation to me. Municipalities in this state have nothing to do with tax assessments."

TUESDAY ATCHER had cited Lapicola's statements as one reason Schaumburg should consider forming the unit district.

Dist. 211 board members who had been urged by their teachers' association, an affiliate of IEA, to sue the county assessor to get tax assessments raised had little discussion of Atcher's statement. Board president Robert Creek, executive vice president of Union Oil Corp., one of the companies cited in the CAP-IEA study, thanked Atcher for his presentation and said "I think you have given us some perspective."

Transfers To Parochial Schools Cut Enrollments

The transfer of Dist. 15 students to parochial schools contributed to a decrease in student enrollment in Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 this fall, according to a study released this week by school officials.

The enrollment dropped by 150 students during a six-month period from May 16 to Oct. 16. Enrollment was 12,367 students on May 16 and 12,217 students on Oct. 16.

This was the first time since Dist. 15 was formed 26 years ago that the enrollment has dropped. Joseph Kiszka, deputy superintendent, said the district growth had been as high as 1,000 students in past years and averaged 500 students a year.

District officials do not believe the decline reflects a permanent trend.

KISZKA, WHO conducted the survey, cited two main reasons for the decline. First, more than 300 students transferred to parochial schools. Second, there was a lag in building development and not enough new students were coming in to compensate for those lost to parochial schools. He explained single-family developments had been completed and occupied but the larger multiple-unit developments were still under construction and not ready for occupancy. We were caught in an interim period, he said.

The three main reasons given for student transfers out of the district were job transfers, employment opportunities and broken homes.

Kiszka said there are no records available on student transfers to compare this year with past years. This type of survey was never made in the past because the number of students we gained was always greater than the number of students we lost, he explained.

The district plans to conduct transfer surveys each year in the future so it doesn't run into the problem of overbuilding, said Kiszka. He said enrollment figures would be very important in planning the construction of two new elementary schools approved by voters last fall.

DURING THE six-month period covered by the transfer survey, 1,241 students transferred out of the district. These students represent 10.2 per cent of the student enrollment.

The students transferred to 35 states, excluding Illinois, and six countries.

A total of 392 students transferred to other states. States that received more than 15 students from Dist. 15 were: Wisconsin, 41; Texas, 40; California, 39; Florida, 38; Colorado, 29; Michigan, 21; New Jersey, 20; Georgia, 17; and Ohio, 17. Another 190 students moved within Illinois.

Scott Action Satisfies Race Track

by DAVID MAHSMAN

See related story Section 2, Page 10
Arlington Park Race Track officials have expressed satisfaction at Illinois Atty. Gen. William Scott's move to seek a court decision on the validity of the 1973 racing dates awarded three weeks ago by the Illinois Racing Board.

"I think this is the best way to go," said Thomas Rivera, Arlington Park information officer, of Scott's quest for a final decision in the racing schedule controversy.

The racing board Thursday unanimously denied a petition from Arlington Park - Washington Park Race Tracks Corp. for a new racing schedule, but race track owners' hopes for a better schedule were kept alive by Scott's announcement that his office will take the matter to court Monday.

Scott made the announcement in a surprise appearance at Thursday's racing board hearing on Arlington-Washington's request for reconsideration of the 1973 racing schedule. Track officials said they had not expected the courts to become involved in the controversy at this point.

THE RACING board voted unanimously to support Scott in seeking an early court ruling on the racing schedule.

Scott told the board and those present at the hearing that he is of the opinion that racing dates awarded to corporations headed by William S. Miller, should be thrown out. Miller is a former racing board chairman under indictment — with former Gov. Otto Kerner — on charges of bribery and income tax evasion in connection with an alleged race track stock scandal.

The Illinois Racing Act provides that the racing board shall award racing dates based on maximizing state revenue and only to persons of good moral character. Scott said that Miller's indictment places him in the realm of "moral turpitude" and disqualifies him from receiving a racing license.

But Scott's opinions are not binding, so he decided to take the issue to court.

"We've had to go to court in the past to support our opinions, and we will go to court in the future," Scott said, adding that the courts have backed his opinions in the past. He called his case against Miller "important to the people of the state and the integrity of the state."

ACTING RACING Board chairman Joseph Lamendella said he hopes the court will consider the opinions of all racing commissioners in ruling on the racing dates. He was referring to three separate reports that were filed by commissioners following a 4-3 board approval of the 1973 racing schedule. Besides the majority report upholding the decision, Lamendella filed a dissenting report, as did former board chairman Alexander MacArthur and Commissioner Gerald F. Fitzgerald, asking for a change in dates. MacArthur resigned in protest over the schedule that was awarded.

"I certainly welcome the opportunity to finally have this (racing schedule) matter cleared," said Commissioner Edward J. Long after voting for board support of Scott. Long was one of the commissioners who voted in favor of the 1973 schedule.

Prior to Scott's appearance before the racing board, the commissioners unanimously approved Lamendella's motion to deny the race track's petition for a new (Continued on page 3)

Village To Weigh Library Site Sale

A contract to purchase land for a new library on Benton Street south of Northwest Highway will come before the village board Monday night.

Palatine Library board members have decided to seek the village go-ahead on the purchase after several months of deliberation. The proposed 1.5-acre site is part of a recently-rezoned parcel being planned for a bank, offices and a shopping center on Northwest Highway between Plum Grove Road and Benton Street.

Final approval for the purchase must come from the village board of trustees. In one previous proposal for 1.8 acres at 215 Smith St., village officials turned down the site because they said it was too expensive. The Benton Street site is reportedly substantially lower in cost. Developers have offered the site at cost, one source said recently.

A potential problem with the current site is the distance from the downtown business district. Several trustees believe the library should stay in the downtown area. But library board members contend that the Benton Street site is just six blocks north of the library's current location at 149 N. Brockway St. Some trustees who would prefer a site closer to the downtown business district have also said they will support the library's recommendation.

ALTHOUGH library board members are elected officials, a local library board must get municipal government approval of a land purchase, according to state library law.

Library board members are satisfied that the Benton Street site fulfills their needs. In recent years, the search for a reasonably-priced downtown site has proved fruitless. Either the site has been too small or too expensive, as in the Smith Street case.

Population growth in northern Palatine and the spread of businesses along Northwest Highway justify the northern location, board members say.

A brief library board session to get final approval of the resolution and contract being sent to the village board will precede the village presentation. An appraisal of the property is expected to be completed before the Monday meeting.

Library officials contend one advantage to the Benton Street site is an agreement to use the bank's parking facilities, approximately 300 spaces, for the new library.

TWO OTHER sites were brought to library board members at their Wednesday night meeting, but were tabled pending the Benton site approval.

A representative of the local Knights of Columbus asked the board to consider purchasing a 3 or 4 acre site on Smith Street north of Northwest Highway.

The site was purchased for construction of a youth center several years ago, but has been idle since that time. Purchasing price offered for the land was $100,000. Library members apparently feel that the site is too far away from the rest of Palatine to build the library there. The property is currently in unincorporated Palatine Township.

Another site, two acres outside the downtown area, was discussed, but details were not disclosed. For now, library board members are most interested in the Benton Street site. And they'd like it to be approved soon.

The present facility is a remodeled brick home, which has become more and more cramped since it was purchased in 1956.

JEANNE PETERS of Arlington Heights, takes center stage as Mary in the rock oratorio, "Hey, Jesus Christ, Welcome to this World." The show will be presented at 7 p.m. Dec. 24 at the Plum Grove Club in Palatine.

Fellowship Perform 'Jesus Christ' Oratorio

"Hey, Jesus Christ, Welcome to this World," an original rock oratorio, will be presented on Christmas Eve. It was performed last year by the same group, the Countryside Unitarian Fellowship of Palatine.

Three sons have been added to the show, which is scheduled for production at 7 p.m. Dec. 24 at the Plum Grove Club, 400 Park Dr., Palatine Township. The oratorio will be followed by a brief worship service, Christmas carols and refreshments. All area residents can attend.

The rock oratorio began last year as a rock opera consisting of three sons, and evolved into a full-scale 30-minute production. After three performances last year, a recording was made.

The music was composed by Darlene LeMieux of Wood Dale and the lyrics by Jeanne Peters of Arlington Heights.

schedule. Long seconded that motion.

Frank Riley, attorney for Arlington-Washington, told the board he based the petition on the fact that Arlington Park was granted a single 77-day racing license for 1973, rather than two licenses — one each for the Arlington Park and Washington Park Jockey Club meets. Technically, Riley said he was not seeking a new schedule, but another racing license.

Riley argued that state law prohibits a single meet of more than 60 days, which he said he feels was the effect of the board's decision to grant only one license. But an assistant attorney-general assigned to the racing board said the single 77-day license is valid because Arlington-Washington owns two race tracks.

ARLINGTON-WASHINGTON Pres. John F. Loomer spoke only briefly in defense of a longer racing season for Arlington Park. He said his testimony during the Nov. 17 board hearing — that a longer season for Arlington Park is in the best interest of Illinois racing — still stands.

Arlington Park was awarded 77 days of continuous racing to run from April 25 to July 24, preceded by six days of racing for the Sun-Times/Daily News charity meet. The track had requested 120 days of racing, the maximum allowed by law.

After the racing board voted Thursday to deny Arlington-Washington's request for a new schedule, Lamendella explained that he had earlier conferred with Scott, who had raised some question as to whether or not the board could change the schedule at this time. Scott based his opinion that such a move would be improper on two points:

—Arlington-Washington's petition did not ask for a change in dates, but only for another racing license.

—The racing board does not have the authority to change racing dates at this time.

Fatal Crash Survivor 'Fair'

A 46-year-old Mount Prospect man was listed in fair condition yesterday at Northwest Community Hospital following a head-on auto collision in which one man died in northwest Palatine Township Wednesday afternoon.

Wayne Tite, of 710 W. Busse Rd., Mount Prospect, suffered multiple scrapes, cuts and a broken elbow. A Barrington man, 23-year-old Daniel J. Larson, died in the crash on Northwest Highway just north of Dundee Road.

State police said Larson apparently crossed the center line as he was driving southeast on Northwest Highway and collided with the Tite auto.

nine students; England, three; Israel, two; West Germany, two; Spain, one; and China, one.

Of the students transferring, 133 stayed within the Chicago area. Arlington Heights Dist. 25 received 49 students from Dist. 15 and Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 received 40 students.

A TOTAL OF 303 students satyed within the Dist. 15 boundaries but transferred to parochial schools. The largest transfer was 154 students to St. Colette School in Rolling Meadows. This is attributed to the opening of first and second grades at the school this year. Other transfers to parochial schools were: Immanuel Lutheran School in Palatine, four; St. Theresa School in Palatine, 24; and St. Thomas of Villanova School in Palatine, 51.

The destination of 203 students who transferred out of the district during the six-month period was unknown.

The number of students transferring were highest in the primary grades. Transfers in first grade were 234, second grade 193 and third grade 171. The number of students transferring decreased as the grade level increased.

LINCOLN AND Gray M. Sanborn schools in Palatine and Willow Bend School in Rolling Meadows all had between 94 and 126 students transfer.

New student registration in Dist. 15 between June 9 and Oct. 31 was 1,156. This included summer kindergarten registration.

Last year 1,268 students graduated from the district and 1,330 new kindergarten students registered this fall.

The survey made no attempt to equate the number of children who enrolled with the number of children who transferred.

Abatements Will Slightly Reduce City Tax Rate

Rolling Meadows residents will be paying slightly lower taxes next year as a result of city council action to abate the police pension and mental health levies.

The action, approved Tuesday, leaves only the library levy to be collected by the city. That levy is currently about 12 cents per $100 assessed valuation, according to City Mgr. James Watson.

Elimination of collection for the $25,000 police pension fund and the $7,000 public services mental health fund means citizens "won't have anything to appear on their tax bills for local government support," Watson said. The library levy is collected for the library by the city, Watson explained, but the board is completely autonomous in determining its budget.

Since the rates for the two abated categories were small, however, (about 1 cent per $100 for the mental health fund and about 12 cents per $100 for the police pension fund) City Treasurer Robert Cole said most tax bills will show "only a small decrease."

Decreases might not appear at all for some, Cole added, if, for example, the valuation of a home is increased. He said estimates of what average decreases might be could not be calculated because of factors like this.

The city began abating taxes in 1971 when city officials decided certain levies were not needed since the areas funded by those taxes could be supported by surplus sales taxes.

Sale tax receipts for Rolling Meadows last month were $142,449.08.

Scott's Actions Satisfy Officials At Race Track

by DAVID MAHSMAN

See related story Section 2, Page 10
Arlington Park Race Track officials have expressed satisfaction at Illinois Atty. Gen. William Scott's move to seek a court decision on the validity of the 1973 racing dates awarded three weeks ago by the Illinois Racing Board.

"I think this is the best way to go," said Thomas Rivera, Arlington Park Information Officer, of Scott's quest for a final decision in the racing schedule controversy.

The racing board Thursday unanimously denied a petition from Arlington Park - Washington Park Race Tracks Corp. for a new racing schedule, but race track owners' hopes for a better schedule were kept alive by Scott's announcement that his office will take the matter to court Monday.

Scott made the announcement in a surprise appearance at Thursday's racing board hearing on Arlington-Washington's request for reconsideration of the 1973 racing schedule. Track officials said they had not expected the courts to become involved in the controversy at this point.

THE RACING board voted unanimously to support Scott in seeking an early court ruling on the racing schedule.

Scott told the board and those present at the hearing that he is of the opinion that racing dates awarded to corporations headed by William S. Miller should be thrown out. Miller is a former racing board chairman under indictment — with former Gov. Otto Korn — on charges of bribery and income tax evasion in connection with an alleged race track stock scandal.

The Illinois Racing Act provides that the racing board shall award racing dates based on maximizing state revenue and only to persons of good moral character. Scott said that Miller's indictment places him in the realm of "moral turpitude" and disqualifies him from receiving a racing license.

But Scott's opinions are not binding, so he decided to take the issue to court.

"We've had to go to court in the past to support our opinions, and we will go to court in the future," Scott said, adding that the courts have backed his opinions in the past. He called his case against Miller "important to the people of the state and the integrity of the state."

ACTING RACING Board chairman Joseph Lamendella said he hopes the court will consider the opinions of all racing commissioners in ruling on the racing dates. He was referring to three separate reports that were filed by commissioners following a 4-3 board approval of the 1973 racing schedule. Besides the majority report upholding the decision, Lamendella filed a dissenting report, as did former board chairman Alexander MacArthur and Commissioner Gerald F. Fitzgerald.

'TIS THE SEASON TO BE SHARING REVENUE... With the arrival of revenue sharing checks to local municipalities this week, most local officials have begun thinking about projects on which the money might be spent. Efforts like flood control seem to have high priority, and Mayor Roland Meyer says he is also working on a plan to use some of the funds for a local scholarship program. But he suggested another use for some of the money Tuesday at a city council meeting. When City Mgr. James Watson reminded aldermen to pay their $20 ticket fee for the city's Christmas party, Meyer quipped "I thought revenue sharing money could be used for that!"

"NIGHT BEFORE CHRISTMAS" will be one of the featured numbers performed by Orchestria, the Sacred Heart of Mary High School dance club, at the annual Christmas presentation on Sunday at 8 p.m. in the school gymnasium. ## Switch To Parochials Cuts Rolls

The transfer of Dist. 15 students to parochial schools contributed to a decrease in student enrollment in Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 this fall, according to a study released this week by school officials.

The enrollment dropped by 150 students during a six-month period from May 16 to Oct. 16. Enrollment was 12,367 students on May 16 and 12,217 students on Oct. 16.

This was the first time since Dist. 15 was formed 26 years ago that the enrollment has dropped. Joseph Kiszka, deputy superintendent, said the district growth had been as high as 1,000 students in past years and averaged 500 students a year.

District officials do not believe the decline reflects a permanent trend.

KISZKA, who conducted the survey, cited two main reasons for the decline. First, more than 300 students transferred to parochial schools. Second, there was a lag in building development and not enough new students were coming in to compensate for those lost to parochial schools. He explained single-family developments had been completed and occupied but the larger multiple-unit developments were still under construction and not ready for occupancy. We were caught in an interim period, he said.

The three main reasons given for student transfers out of the district were job transfers, employment opportunities and broken homes.

Kiszka said there are no records available on student transfers to compare this year with past years. This type of survey was never made in the past because the number of students we gained was always greater than the number of students we lost, he explained.

The district plans to conduct transfer surveys each year in the future so it doesn't run into the problem of overbuilding, said Kiszka. He said enrollment figures would be very important in planning the construction of two new elementary schools approved by voters last fall.

DURING THE six-month period covered by the transfer survey, 1,241 students transferred out of the district. These students represent 10.2 per cent of the student enrollment.

The students transferred to 35 states, excluding Illinois, and six countries.

A total of 392 students transferred to other states. States that received more than 15 students from Dist. 15 were: Wisconsin, 41; Texas, 40; California, 39; Florida, 38; Colorado, 29; Michigan, 21; New Jersey, 20; Georgia, 17; and Ohio, 17. Another 190 students moved within Illinois.

Eighteen students moved to other countries. The countries were Canada, nine students; England, three; Israel, two; West Germany, two; Spain, one; and China, one.

Of the students transferring, 135 stayed within the Chicago area. Arlington Heights Dist. 25 received 49 students from Dist. 15 and Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 received 40 students.

A TOTAL OF 303 students satyed within the Dist. 15 boundaries but transferred to parochial schools. The largest transfer was 154 students to St. Colette School in Rolling Meadows. This is attributed to the opening of first and second grades at the school this year. Other transfers to parochial schools were: Immanuel Lutheran School in Palatine, four; St. Theresa School in Palatine, 94; and St. Thomas of Villanova School in Palatine, 51.

The destination of 203 students who transferred out of the district during the six-month period was unknown.

The number of students transferring were highest in the primary grades. Transfers in first grade were 234, second grade 193 and third grade 171. The number of students transferring decreased as the grade level increased.

LINCOLN AND Gray M. Sanborn schools in Palatine and Willow Bend School in Rolling Meadows all had between 94 and 126 students transfer.

New student registration in Dist. 15 between June 9 and Oct. 31 was 1,156. This included summer kindergarten registration.

Last year 1,268 students graduated from the district and 1,330 new kindergarten students registered this fall.

Board OKs Application For $230,000 In Title II Funds

An application for $230,000 in Title III Elementary Secondary Education Act funds has been approved by the Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 Board of Education.

The district would use $112,000 for a target growth in reading program, if the funding is approved. This is a program designed to help students requiring extra help in reading.

Each of the 19 schools in the district would have an opportunity to write an individual proposal on how the reading funds would be used in their school.

The remaining $118,000 would be used for project culture. This is a project designed to bring artists, musicians, performers and dancers into the community. Every student would have an opportunity to attend five performances during the school year and an additional performance at night with their parents.

It was explained Title III programs are 100 per cent reimbursable. Title III funds are designed to give local school districts an opportunity to create and implement innovative programs.

6 Arrested In Narcotics Raid

Six persons were arrested on a variety of narcotics charges, including sale and possession of heroin, after Hoffman Estates police and agents from the Metropolitan Enforcement Group raided an apartment in the Hermitage Trace apartment complex, 137 Valley Ln., Hoffman Estates.

Hoffman Estates police said they raided the apartment at about 7:30 p.m. with a warrant for James Rodgers, 21, of the Valley Lane address. Five other persons were in the apartment at the time of the raid, police said.

Also arrested in the incident were Michelle Mateling, 20, of 137 Valley Ln.; James Austin, 23, of 137 Valley Ln.; Raymond LeBlanc, 23, of Gahanna, Ohio; Fred H. Jones, 24, of 2408 Algonquin Park, Rolling Meadows, and Marjorie Green, 20, of 1262 W. Pratt, Chicago.

All six were charged with possession of controlled substances and possession of hypodermic needles. Quantities of other narcotics in addition to heroin were found in the apartment at the time of the arrest, police said.

Both MEG agents and Hoffman Estates detectives have been investigating the apartment for some time. Police termed the arrests "very significant." Miss Green was released on a $27,500 bond. Rodgers is being held at the Cook County jail in lieu of $27,500 bond, and Austin was released on a $3,000 bond. All three are to appear in Cook County Circuit Court, Niles, on Tuesday.

Bond information on the others was not available yesterday.

2 Developers Pledge Cash Contributions To Schools

Two developers have pledged financial contributions to Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 contingent on approval of their proposed developments.

Celsel-McGuire Industries, Inc., developer of the proposed Country Village, has agreed to contribute $25 for each two-bedroom apartment and $100 for apartments with more than two bedrooms.

Bernard J. Clark and Associates, developer of the proposed Cobblestone Court, have pledged a $150 contribution for every three-bedroom unit developed.

In both cases, the monies would be paid upon issuance of occupancy permits.

Neither development has received final approval. The Palatine Plan Commission will discuss and possibly make a recommendation on the Cobblestone Court development on Tuesday. The Country Village proposal is currently pending before the Cook County Zoning Board of Appeals.

THE PROPOSED Country Village development would be located on 40 acres, commonly known as the Koop property, on Quentin Road between Dundee Road and Northwest Highway. The site had been considered by the state for a driver testing station, but later was abandoned.

The developers are proposing a planned unit development of 398 units with a mixture of one, two-and three-bedroom apartments on the east part of the site and 400 one-bedroom apartments in four buildings on the south boundary of the site. The 400 one-bedroom units would be designed for the elderly. The proposed density is approximately 20 units per acre.

The Palatine Village Board filed an objection to the proposed development with the Cook County Board because of the density.

The Cobblestone Court development is located on 4.8 acres, known as the Talbot property, on Northwest Highway, immediately west of Palatine Hills Golf Course.

The developers are proposing 42 three-bedroom condominiums which would be priced between $45,000 and $50,000 per unit. The density of the proposed development would be less than nine units per acre.

Scott's Actions Satisfy Officials At Race Track

asking for a change in dates. MacArthur resigned in protest over the schedule that was awarded.

"I certainly welcome the opportunity to finally have this (racing schedule) matter cleared," said Commissioner Edward J. Long after voting for board support of Scott. Long was one of the commissioners who voted in favor of the 1973 schedule.

Prior to Scott's appearance before the racing board, the commissioners unanimously approved Lamendella's motion to deny the race track's petition for a new schedule. Long seconded that motion.

Frank Riley, attorney for Arlington-Washington, told the board he based the petition on the fact that Arlington Park was granted a single 77-day racing license for 1973, rather than two licenses — one each for the Arlington Park and Washington Park Jockey Club meets.

Technically, Riley said he was not seeking a new schedule, but another racing license.

Riley argued that state law prohibits a single meet of more than 60 days, which he said he feels was the effect of the board's decision to grant only one license. But an assistant attorney-general assigned to the racing board said the single 77-day license is valid because Arlington-Washington owns two race tracks.

ARLINGTON-WASHINGTON Pres. John F. Loomer spoke only briefly in defense of a longer racing season for Arlington Park. He said his testimony during the Nov. 17 board hearing — that a longer season for Arlington Park is in the best interest of Illinois racing — still stands.

Homeowners' Victory; Owner To Install Rail

Plum Grove Village residents who have sought to stop the Plum Grove Shopping Center from using their adjoining alley as a loading berth have won a victory of sorts. Rolling Meadows Ald. Tom Waldron announced shopping center owner Ben Trapani has agreed to pay for the installation of a 477-foot guard rail along the alley.

Waldron, chairman of the committee appointed to find a settlement to the dispute, said Tuesday the guard rail would meet state highway standards and should prevent further damage to residential fences along the alley.

The residents had charged that trucks using the 22-foot alley as a loading zone violated zoning codes and caused repeated damage to their fences.

The residents' spokesman, Harold Grissenden, said the length of the proposed guard rail did not completely satisfy the villagers. Since the rail would only reach the length of the stores along the alley, Grissenden said property beyond the stores could still be damaged.

THE RESIDENTS were still concerned about snow piles shoveled against their property that would not be protected if the rail was not extended, he said.

Mayor Roland Meyer chided Brissenden for the new demand, saying extension of the rail would not prevent snow from being packed against the fences anyway. He said Waldron's committee had accomplished a great deal by convincing Trapani to install the rail. City Atty. Donald Rose also accused Brissenden of "jumping from one problem to another" in the dispute.

Brissenden denied this, saying he was only interested in resolving the matter thoroughly. He thanked Waldron and the council for their efforts but said there were still unanswered questions about the use of the alley as a loading berth as well as the matter of the guard rail.

Zoning violations exist in the shopping center, Brissenden said, because the center is zoned for C-1 use yet contains a gas station and liquor store that are not permitted in that classification. "It bothers us very much," he said. "We feel very insecure as citizens. What will go up there next?"

"I DON'T think a citizen should have to go over this zoning code as if he was a law clerk," he added.

Waldron answered that according to a pre-annexation agreement from 1962, the center is allowed to have the liquor store and station under a special use permit. Rose and Meyer also said they did not agree with Brissenden's interpretation of the zoning code.

The discussion ended with Brissenden asking for a meeting with Rose to attempt to clarify the interpretation.

Tuesday's appearance by Brissenden was the third time in three months in which Brissenden has personally appealed for city council action on the alley issue. Two of those three times he has been accompanied by 40 to 50 residents from the village.

Trustee Furst Says He'll Seek Another Term

Mount Prospect Village Trustee Donald B. Furst will seek reelection to the village board this spring.

Furst said yesterday he has decided to seek a second four-year term on the board. However, all campaign activity will start after the holidays. He said no decision has been made yet as to whether he will be part of any slate of candidates in the April 17 election.

Furst was elected in 1969 along with Trustees Daniel J. Ahern, Robert Soderman and George Reiter and Village Clerk Donald Goodman as part of then Mayor Dan Congreve's United Economy Party. All five were unopposed. However, Congreve in that same election was defeated by Robert D. Teichert, the current mayor.

AT THE time of his election, Furst, 632 S. Albert St., was serving as acting chairman of the zoning board of appeals. Furst is currently chairman of the judiciary committee, which reviews rezoning requests, and has served as chairman of the Finance Committee.

In all, four trustee posts, the majority and the village clerk's seat are at stake in the upcoming election.

Furst is the first trustee to indicate he will seek reelection. As for the others, Trustee Daniel J. Ahern has announced he will not run again. Trustee Patrick J. Link has said he is undecided, and Trustee Bud Richardson and Goodman has not announced their plans.

About this time last year, Teichert announced he would seek a second term as mayor. In August, Albert J. Molsch, 600 W. Sha-Boneo Tr., announced plans to oppose Teichert.

ALL CANDIDATES for village board, mayor and clerk must file statements of candidacy and nominating petitions containing signatures of "no less than 5 per cent nor more than 8 per cent" the number of persons who voted in the last election. That was two years ago when 3,343 residents voted. Nominating petitions can be picked up at the village clerk's office, 112 E. Northwest Hwy. Petitions must be filed Jan. 8-12.

Two positions on the Mount Prospect Public Library Board are also up for election April 15. Board member Gil Liebenow's term expires as does the seat vacated recently by Thomas Grady. (The library board is in the process of appointing someone to fill Grady's post.)

According to the village clerk's office, only 50 signatures are required on nominating petitions for library board member.

SA '71 Bills Being Mailed

Although bills for Special Assessment '71 (formerly SA '70) have not yet gone out, property owners who are being assessed have only until Feb. 2 to pay the bills without interest being tacked on.

According to Richard Jesse, village finance director, the laws governing special assessments require the bills to be paid within 60 days of approval by the local governing body — if interest is to be avoided. Jesse is also treasurer of the board of local improvements.

The voucher for construction work was approved by the board of local improvements Dec. 4. Construction work on the storm sewer project, designed to alleviate serious flooding problems in the Hatlen Heights subdivision and the southwest portion of the village, is being done by Rosetti Construction Co. and is scheduled for completion early next spring.

JESSE SAID the bills will "be coming out shortly." Some delay is being caused by the fact that the assessment roll must be made up by hand and incorporate the changes in the assessments made by the court last May. Of the approximately 370 assessed properties, assessments on 112 parcels were reduced through court action by their owner.

The project will cost about $450,000, of which $157,000 has been pledged by the village as the public benefit share.

Those who objected to the project in court had contended first that the project was not designed for just local benefit and that their individual assessments were too high. They won their battle on the second point, while losing on the first. If they had won on the first point, the whole project would have been thrown out.

'No Guidebook We Can Go By'

CAP's Future: Reorganize, Rebuild

(EDITORS NOTE: Today in the last of Community Action Plan, CAP leaders discuss what's ahead for the troubled organization.)

by KAREN BLECHIA

Where does the Mount Prospect Community Plan (CAP) go from here?

"There is no guidebook we can go to and find out what should be happening with CAP," says Mount Prospect Mayor Robert Teichert, who believes CAP is successful and should continue. "And it shouldn't disturb anyone if he doesn't know what is going to happen next week or next month. The program will always be in the state of flux because tomorrow's activity is never on schedule — nor can you expect it to be."

But Teichert, present CAP Director Bob Day and Village Mgr. Robert Eppley realize the program could run smoother. They know the current structure of the program should be improved. They know the community is less interested in CAP than it was two years ago and it's harder now to raise money. And they know conflicts between ICE and Pump House volunteers must be ironed out.

Teichert, at the request of Day, officially stepped back into the CAP program in July, and under his direction steps have been taken to improve the program. Representatives of some 30 local civic organizations are now being asked to join an advisory board that would meet once or twice a year to make policy decisions. So far 13 club officials have agreed to participate and Day hopes to hold the first council meeting in January.

"WE'VE STILL got to work out exactly how they will operate," Day said. CAP officials have indicated the group would select a CAP executive board to carry out the month-to-month operation of CAP. CAP officials believe the council would arouse community support to help raise much-needed funds.

Teichert, who hopes to step out of the program again as soon as it is on a steadier course, is also involved in what he calls "a revitalization" of the Pump House. Earlier this month he called a meeting of students from Prospect and Forest View high schools to ask them to help out the hotline, which was in danger of closing because of lack of volunteers. So far about 20 teens have indicated they would like to begin training as hotline volunteers.

To close the gap between volunteers from the ICE House and Pump House, Eppley plans to move both groups to the second floor of a building recently purchased by the village.

Eppley said he hopes to move the Pump House by Feb. 1. But he's not sure when the ICE House, currently located at 201 W. Prospect Ave., will be moved.

"I am definitely going to move the Pump House. As for the other I have some internal problems there that I don't care to go into," Eppley said. He added that the village will first have to settle the lease at the current ICE House headquarters.

LAST MAY the village signed the 12-month lease with Conrad Mazeski, with the rent set at $300 a month for the quarters. Mazeski is a member of the village's community service and mental health commission, a group that recommended the village board approve the 1972 CAP budget which included the lease payments.

Eppley said the ICE House move would probably be made soon "If I can (Continued on page 4)

Two Board Members Will Not Run

Two Mount Prospect Dist. 57 school board members whose terms expire in April have announced they do not plan to run for reelection. They are George Foster and Peter Dudrow.

However, Peter Oleson, who was appointed to the board in May to fill the seat of former Board Pres. Harrison Hanson, said he plans to run this year.

When Foster was first elected to the board in 1970, he received the second largest number of votes after Hanson. Dudrow came in third, with three posts open that year.

IN ANNOUNCING that he did not plan to run again, Foster said that "basically" he enjoyed the school board work. He said he made his decision not to run last spring when the board was involved in a controversy over school finances. "I find I'm not really the type of temperament that can deal with the public. I'm too thin-skinned," he explained.

Dudrow said he decided not to run because the job was "extremely time-consuming. I think I'd like to give someone else a chance," he said.

According to Robert Fasick, chairman of the nominating committee for the Dist. 57 General Caucus, letters were sent out last week to caucus organizations in each of the schools asking representatives to seek out possible candidates. Fasick said that anyone interested in running should contact him at Westbrook School, where he is a teacher.

The nominating committee plans to interview school board candidates "toward the end of January," Fasick said. They will then present their recommendations to the whole caucus. Soon after, the caucus will announce its endorsements for the school board posts.

3-Week Delay For Busse Road Sewer Work

The date for the closing of Busse Road in Mount Prospect to install a storm sewer line has been set back three weeks because of the recent bad weather.

A spokesman for Rosetti Construction Co. this week said the road will be closed to through traffic from Golf to Central roads beginning at 7 a.m. Jan. 8. The work is expected to take three days. The road closing had been scheduled to start Monday.

The storm sewer is part of Special Assessment '71 (formerly SA '70), which is designed to alleviate serious flooding problems in the southwest and west portions of the village. This area includes Hatlen Heights and the intersection of Lincoln and Meier roads, two of the areas more heavily affected by floods.

For through traffic, a detour will be set up directing traffic along Golf Road to Ill. Rte. 83 and then north to Central Road. Local traffic only will be permitted to go up Busse Road to Lonquist Boulevard.

Once again the folks over on the 400 block of North Wille Street will celebrate an old fashioned Williamsburg Christmas. At dusk Sunday, Towne Crier Bob Lampe will call at each home, signaling that it's time to illuminate the Christmas lights.

Then everyone will gather at the home of Jane Rolff and Marge Morrison for a holiday open house. Decorations on the block stress the natural look you'd find in colonial Williamsburg: sprays of wheat and other dried materials, fruit, nuts, and greens.

MORE THAN 400 cupcakes and brownies were baked this week by youngsters in Joy Lutsch's fourth grade class at Lions Park School. Proceeds from their bake sale will go to the Neediest Children's Christmas Fund and perhaps local needy families, too.

A JUMBO Christmas card designed by Art Truelson is displayed at Our Redeemer Lutheran Church this season. Instead of sending each other Christmas cards, church members are adding stars to the card scene. Each star, purchased with the amount they would have spent on cards and postage, carries the name of the contributing family. Contributions will go toward mission projects.

FIVE QUEENS will be chosen tomorrow night by Prospect High School students at their annual Christmas ball, "Mistletoe Memories." In addition to the queen of the ball, one queen will be selected for each class. Music will be provided by "The Music Group."

Queen candidates are freshmen Karen Cederberg, Lori Greve, Wendy Pociask, Deborah Richardson, sophomores, Cindy

Christensen, Kay Linskey, Patty Marshall, Cheryl Streik; juniors, Dayle Gillock, Clarice Hanson, Lisa Rother, Beth Voegel; and seniors, Mary Anderson, Cheryl Collins, Cheryl Hardy, Chris Kemman, and Melinda Loeffel.

"THE SHEPHERD'S Story," a musical chalk talk by N. R. Swartwout, will be presented Sunday evening at Prospect Heights Baptist Church. Sunday school children will also give their annual Christmas program.

DURING THE holiday season, many groups show their concern for others in special ways. Teenagers from South Church are showing their concern in a continuing way.

This Sunday they will spend the afternoon playing games and visiting with retarded children at Little City in Palatine. They plan to continue this project, which began last month, on an every-other-week basis.

More volunteers, especially boys, are needed. If you'd like to help out with this long-term project, call Kathy Hanna at CL 5-7233.

IF YOU live in the South Pine-Wille Street area, you may be in for a special Christmas treat. Instead of the usual carolers, though, you may hear music provided by flutes, trumpets, baritone, saxophones, a clarinet, and a tuba.

Last year this neighborhood group enjoyed bringing Christmas music to their neighbors and decided to do it again. Carolers include Dr. Louis, Bill, and Margaret Leone; John Kuttner; Robert, Mike, and Laura Musser; Scott Segin; Glenn Johnson; and Howie Boll.

Track Satisfied With Scott's Action

by DAVID MAHISMAN
See related story Section 2, Page 10
Arlington Park Race Track officials have expressed satisfaction at Illinois Atty. Gen. William Scott's move to seek a court decision on the validity of the 1973 racing dates awarded three weeks ago by the Illinois Racing Board.

"I think this is the best way to go," said Thomas Rivera, Arlington Park information officer, of Scott's quest for a final decision in the racing schedule controversy.

The racing board Thursday unanimously denied a petition from Arlington Park - Washington Park Race Tracks Corp. for a new racing schedule, but race track owners' hopes for a better schedule were kept alive by Scott's announcement that his office will take the matter to court Monday.

Scott made the announcement in a surprise appearance at Thursday's racing board hearing on Arlington-Washington's request for reconsideration of the 1973 racing schedule. Track officials said they had not expected the courts to become involved in the controversy at this point.

THE RACING board voted unanimously to support Scott in seeking an early court ruling on the racing schedule.

Scott told the board and those present at the hearing that he is of the opinion that racing dates awarded to corporations headed by William S. Miller should be thrown out. Miller is a former racing board chairman under indictment - with former Gov. Otto Kerner - on charges of bribery and income tax evasion in connection with an alleged race track stock scandal.

The Illinois Racing Act provides that the racing board shall award racing dates based on maximizing state revenue and only to persons of good moral character. Scott said that Miller's indictment places him in the realm of "moral turpitude" and disqualifies him from receiving a racing license.

But Scott's opinions are not binding, so he decided to take the issue to court.

"We've had to go to court in the past to support our opinions, and we will go to court in the future," Scott said, adding that the courts have backed his opinions in the past. He called his case against Miller "important to the people of the state and the integrity of the state."

ACTING RACING Board chairman Joseph Lamendella said he hopes the court will consider the opinions of all racing commissioners in ruling on the racing dates. He was referring to three separate reports that were filed by commissioners following a 4-3 board approval of the 1973 racing schedule. Besides the majority report upholding the decision, Lamendella filed a dissenting report, as did former board chairman Alexander MacArthur and Commissioner Gerald F. Fitzgerald, asking for a change in dates. MacArthur resigned in protest over the schedule that was awarded.

"I certainly welcome the opportunity to finally have this (racing schedule) matter cleared," said Commissioner Edward J. Long after voting for board support of Scott. Long was one of the commissioners who voted in favor of the 1973 schedule.

Prior to Scott's appearance before the racing board, the commissioners unanimously approved Lamendella's motion to deny the race track's petition for a new schedule. Long seconded that motion.

Frank Riley, attorney for Arlington-Washington, told the board he based the petition on the fact that Arlington Park was granted a single 77-day racing license for 1973, rather than two licenses - one each for the Arlington Park and Washington Park Jockey Club meets. Technically, Riley said he was not seeking a new schedule, but another racing license.

Riley argued that state law prohibits a single meet of more than 60 days, which he said he feels was the effect of the board's decision to grant only one license. But an assistant attorney-general assigned to the racing board said the single 77-day license is valid because Arlington-Washington owns two race tracks.

ARLINGTON-Washington Pres John F. Loomis spoke only briefly in defense of a longer racing season for Arlington Park. He said his testimony during the Nov. 17 board hearing - that a longer season for Arlington Park is in the best interest of Illinois racing - still stands. Arlington Park was awarded 77 days of continuous racing to run from April 25 to July 24, preceded by six days of racing for the Sun-Times/Daily News charity meet. The track had requested 120 days of racing, the maximum allowed by law.

After the racing board voted Thursday to deny Arlington-Washington's request for a new schedule, Lamendella explained that he had earlier conferred with Scott, who had raised some question as to whether or not the board could change the schedule at this time. Scott based his opinion that such a move would be improper on two points:

-Arlington-Washington's petition did not ask for a change in dates, but only for another racing license.

-The racing board does not have the authority to change racing dates at this time.

Ron Bradley Retiring After 20 Years

Ronald Bradley, 70, of 1755 S. Arlington Heights Rd., near Arlington Heights, has announced plans to retire at the first of the year as Elk Grove Township highway commissioner.

Bradley has been highway commissioner for 20 years. He succeeded his father, Fred Bradley, who was highway commissioner for 11 years.

No replacement has been named for Bradley.

Ronald Bradley

As highway commissioner, Bradley is responsible for the construction, maintenance, repair, snow removal and salting of over 22 miles of road in unincorporated Elk Grove Township.

Bradley has lived in the township since 1912. He attended Arlington High School. He is past president of the Northern Illinois Steam Power Club and a member of the Will County Thrasher Association, two steam engine clubs.

Township officials recently honored Bradley at a retirement dinner. Auditor Bernard Lee presented a plaque to Bradley.

Tickets Available For 'Night After Xmas'

Tickets are still on sale for "Twas the Night After Christmas - Scrooge and Company," a play to raise money for the ICE House counseling center in Mount Prospect.

The play, which will be performed tonight and Saturday, depicts what goes on at the ICE House, which is operated by the Mount Prospect Community Action Plan (CAP). The play will begin at 8 p.m. at the Mount Prospect Country Club, 600 See Gwin Ave.

Kuhns Says He'll Seek Park Seat

William Kuhns has announced he will seek reelection to the Prospect Heights Park District Board of Commissioners.

Kuhns, 44, is a past president and member of the board since the park district's inception six years ago. Kuhns, 9 N. Parkway, said he decided to run for two reasons.

"The main one is that the park board just hasn't finished with things I helped start and I want to see them through," said Kuhns, pointing out the purchase of the Hillcrest Slough as an example.

"The other reason is a sad one. As far as I know no one else has picked up petitions to run for the board. If I had any doubts about running - and I don't know if I ever really did - that fact would influence me," he said.

AS OF YESTERDAY, no one else had picked up a petition to run for reelection. Wendell Sampson, appointed to the park board last year, is undecided about his candidacy.

Kuhns said "the ridiculous filing time" was probably one of the reasons more people haven't picked up petitions to run for the park board.

This year nominating petitions for the April 3 park district election must be filed by Dec. 30 because of a new law passed earlier this year. Petitions can be picked up at the park district office, 9 N. Elmhurst Rd., Prospect Heights. Candidates must have at least 25 signatures of park district residents on their petitions.

Yoga Classes Offered

Yoga classes for men and women will start Jan. 10 at Anne Sullivan School in Prospect Heights. The classes are being sponsored by the Prospect Heights Park District.

The classes will be held for eight weeks from 8 p.m. to 9 p.m. on Wednesdays at the school, 700 N. Schoenbeck Rd. Fee is $12. Instructor is Lori Dillman, who has had seven years of experience in yoga and is a graduate of the Northwest Yoga Center Teacher Training Program.

Dover Inn Package License Refused

A request for a package liquor license for the Dover Inn Restaurant, 1702 Algonquin Rd., Mount Prospect, is apparently dead.

The restaurant still has a license to serve alcohol, however.

Village trustee Bud Richardson said he told the owners, "It is out of the question right now" for the village board to grant such a license as a package liquor license holder, S & H Liquor Store, operates within a block. There had been some question about whether S & H was still in business, Richardson said, but an inquiry revealed the store was only closed temporarily.

CAP's Future: Reorganize, Rebuild

renegotiate the lease and save a couple months rent." In the past he has said, "The two groups need each other and we need them. I think they get along better now and the move will help tie them even more together."

Yet, others closely connected to CAP would demand more. Jackie Kruse, social therapist at the ICE House, has called for Day's resignation. She said Day has hurt CAP and would like to replace him with a professional director.

"Day has been an ineffective leader and never gives us straight answers," Mrs. Kruse said. "We don't really have a director for this program, and have never had one."

DAY SAID he considered Mrs. Kruse's charges "one-sided." He said: "We've done an awful lot and think CAP has come a long way." He refused to comment further, but pointed out he had worked "many nights" to put the 1972 CAP budget together and get village funding.

Mrs. Kruse said she would like the village to take over CAP completely. "That way we could get the funds, supervision and access to professional people and hopefully a consulting psychiatrist to insure we have back-up," she said.

Mike Meehan, hotline supervisor, would also like to see a professional CAP director "full-time" who has a continual knowledge of new therapy so he can do the training. Meehan would like CAP to have a large staff in one location so that volunteers could be trained in both crisis intervention and counseling.

A director skilled administration and raising funds would be the answer, according to Larry Jenness, a former CAP board member and principal at Forest View High School in Arlington Heights.

KEN SCHOLTEN, former CAP director, believes more emphasis should be placed on fund-raising but he thinks the CAP board should do it. "They could hold a door-to-door campaign each year by using the youth to cover the village. They could also use the political structure and call out the block captains to cover their precincts." Scholten, a village trustee, believes CAP could also get money from the annual Combined Appeal and continue to get funds from the village.

But Richard Bachhuber, CAP board member, rejects Scholten's proposal because he thinks the CAP board should not have to raise funds. The community won't contribute, he says, and the new advisory board isn't going to help. "That's nonsense, just another dream of Telchert's," he said.

Bachhuber's solution is to turn the CAP board's attention to implementing the programs that don't cost money. The ICE House and Pump House, he said, should be divorced from CAP and become departments of the village government, although he doubts the move could be justified.

"CAP has really become a village agency anyway because of the funding. And I, as a taxpayer, am wondering now if the village should even be paying for mental health," Bachhuber said. "Why not medical service as well?"

THERE IS NO one solution, no blueprint for success that would erase all of CAP's difficulties and arouse an apathetic community. Some would even argue that there is no solution.

Yet, those who have stuck with CAP for the past two years, think the program in some form or another can do some good for the residents in Mount Prospect.

3 Board Members Named To Act As Negotiators

Prospect Heights Dist. 23 Board members Carl Poch, Ronald Sowatzko and Alan Krinsky will serve on the district's 1973-1974 negotiations team.

The team was selected Wednesday night at a board meeting. Poch and Sowatzko, both of Prospect Heights, were elected to the board last April and served on this year's bargaining team.

Krinsky, of Arlington Heights, was appointed to the board in October to replace Donald McKay, who resigned. Krinsky who was chosen as an alternate for the team, has not indicated if he will seek election to the board next April. He ran for a board post last April, but was defeated.

TEACHER NEGOTIATIONS are scheduled to begin Feb. 15. At that time, according to Supt. Edward Grodzky, the two teams will decide if bargaining will be conducted in open session.

Unlike this year, Larry Hatter of the Illinois Education Association (IEA), will not negotiate for the Prospect Heights Education Association (PHEA) next year, according to Dave Kessler, chairman of the negotiations team. Kessler is a teacher at MacArthur Junior High School.

"It was a joint decision between Larry and us to have us do our own negotiating this year," Kessler said. "We thought we should start doing our own." He said a spokesman for the teacher's team will be selected sometime in January.

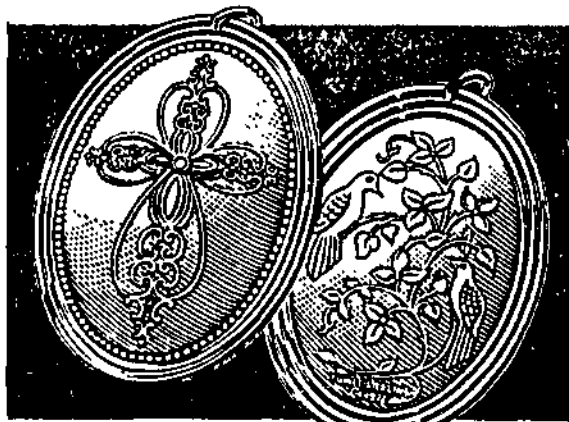

Talks for a 1972-73 contract were open to the public in Dist. 23 for the first time this year. After 13 sessions, the two sides agreed to seek mediation because they could not reach an agreement. After four hours of mediation, the teams agreed to a contract including a 2.6 per cent cost of living raise for all returning teachers and $21,825 in merit pay funds.

Court Action On Dates

Scott's Challenge Satisfies Arlington Park Officials

by DAVID MAHSMAN

See related story Section 2, Page 10
Arlington Park Race Track officials have expressed satisfaction at Illinois Atty. Gen. William Scott's move to seek a court decision on the validity of the 1973 racing dates awarded three weeks ago by the Illinois Racing Board.

"I think this is the best way to go," said Thomas Rivera, Arlington Park information officer, of Scott's quest for a final decision in the racing schedule controversy.

The racing board Thursday unanimously denied a petition from Arlington Park - Washington Park Race Tracks Corp. for a new racing schedule, but race track owners' hopes for a better schedule were kept alive by Scott's announcement that his office will take the matter to court Monday.

Scott made the announcement in a surprise appearance at Thursday's racing board hearing on Arlington-Washington's request for reconsideration of the 1973 racing schedule. Track officials said they had not expected the courts to become involved in the controversy at this point.

THE RACING board voted unanimously to support Scott in seeking an early court ruling on the racing schedule. Scott told the board and those present at the hearing that he is of the opinion that racing dates awarded to corporations headed by William S. Miller should be thrown out. Miller is a former racing board chairman under indictment — with former Gov. Otto Kerner — on charges of bribery and income tax evasion in connection with an alleged race track stock scandal.

The Illinois Racing Act provides that the racing board shall award racing dates based on maximizing state revenue and only to persons of good moral character. Scott said that Miller's indictment places him in the realm of "moral terpitude" and disqualifies him from receiving a racing license.

But Scott's opinions are not binding, so he decided to take the issue to court. "We've had to go to court in the past to support our opinions, and we will go to court in the future," Scott said, adding that the courts have backed his opinions in the past. He called his case against Miller "important to the people of the state and the integrity of the state."

ACTING RACING Board chairman Joseph Lamendella said he hopes the court will consider the opinions of all racing commissioners in ruling on the racing dates. He was referring to three separate reports that were filed by commissioners following a 4-3 board approval of the 1973 racing schedule. Besides the majority report upholding the decision, Lamendella filed a dissenting report, as did former board chairman Alexander MacArthur and Commissioner Gerald F. Fitzgerald, asking for a change in dates. MacArthur resigned in protest over the schedule that was awarded.

"I certainly welcome the opportunity to finally have this (racing schedule) matter cleared," said Commissioner Edward J. Long after voting for board support of Scott. Long was one of the commissioners who voted in favor of the 1973 schedule.

Prior to Scott's appearance before the racing board, the commissioners unanimously approved Lamendella's motion to deny the race track's petition for a new schedule. Long seconded that motion.

Frank Riley, attorney for Arlington-Washington, told the board he based the petition on the fact that Arlington Park was granted a single 77-day racing license for 1973, rather than two licenses — one each for the Arlington Park and Washington Park Jockey Club meets. Technically, Riley said he was not seeking a new schedule, but another racing license.

Riley argued that state law prohibits a single meet of more than 60 days, which he said he feels was the effect of the board's decision to grant only one license. But an assistant attorney-general assigned to the racing board said the single 77-day license is valid because Arlington-Washington owns two race tracks.

ARLINGTON-Washington Pres. John F. Loomer spoke only briefly in defense of a longer racing season for Arlington Park. He said his testimony during the Nov. 17 board hearing — that a longer season for Arlington Park is in the best interest of Illinois racing — still stands.

Arlington Park was awarded 77 days of continuous racing to run from April 25 to July 24, preceded by six days of racing for the Sun-Times/Daily News charity meet. The track had requested 120 days of racing, the maximum allowed by law.

After the racing board voted Thursday to deny Arlington-Washington's request for a new schedule, Lamendella explained that he had earlier questioned with Scott, who had raised some question as to whether or not the board could change the schedule at this time. Scott based his opinion that such a move would be improper on two points:

—Arlington-Washington's petition did not ask for a change in dates, but only for another racing license.

—The racing board does not have the authority to change racing dates at this time.

School Board Restricts 'Corporal Punishment'

A clarification of the Arlington Heights School Dist. 25 discipline policy was passed by a 5 to 2 vote last night. The vote has the effect of limiting the use of corporal punishment.

The discipline policy as previously stated allows corporal punishment "as a last resort."

The new policy specifically states that "striking students in the head or face or body (except for noninjurious spankings) is not permitted as punishment, nor is any act of physical violence."

The half-page policy also suggests other means of handling discipline problems including firm counseling, detention and withdrawal of privileges.

Prompt notification of parents is also specified in the new policy.

"ALL DISCIPLINARY plans and actions shall be reasonable and designed to fully weigh and consider both the needs and rights of each child and the needs and rights of others in an interdependent society," the policy states.

Voting against the policy were Board President H. Robert Powell and William Beck. Both board members said they favor the elimination of corporal discipline in the district.

"There are enough ways to handle students without the use of corporal discipline," said Beck. "I just don't think it is necessary to have the option of corporal punishment available."

The policy clarification came in the wake of the firing of John D. Fender, formerly a language arts teacher at Miller Junior High. Fender was fired by the board in June for "a continuing pattern of cruelty and violence in his relationships with students," which included hitting students about the head.

Fender is currently appealing the dismissal decision.

Vote Will Decide 2 Park, 2 Village Issues

Arlington Heights residents will be faced with four propositions at the polls tomorrow — two from the park district and two from the village.

The park district propositions are:
—A $2.5 million bond issue. A yes vote on the proposition will cost a taxpayer with an $800 tax bill $7.65 or a taxpayer with a $1,200 tax bill $11.47.

Improvements which will be made if the $2.5 million referendum passes are: $1,275,000 for an indoor ice skating facility; $625,000 for park improvements; $75,000 for a maintenance garage; $70,000 for the renovation of Recreation Park pool; $70,000 for the purchase of 3.9 acres of land; $137,875 for legal and architect fees and $297,125 in a contingency and insurance fund.

—A .025 hike in the corporate tax rate of the district. The raise, 2.5 cents per $100 assessed valuation, would generate about $70,000 which would be used for maintenance of new and existing facilities.

The hike would cost a taxpayer with an $800 tax bill $2.56 or a taxpayer with a $1,200 tax bill $3.85.

Also on the ballots will be two village questions which will include:

—Whether to increase the size of the board of trustees from six to eight members.

—Whether the village clerk should be appointed or elected. At the present time the clerk is elected, and a yes vote on the proposition would make the post appointive.

Child 'Serious' After Being Dragged By Car

A 3-year old Arlington Heights girl was planned beneath a car and dragged 60 feet along Pine Street in Arlington Heights yesterday after sledging down a hill and into the street.

The child, Kristin Viken, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald E. Viken, 323 S. Pine, was listed in serious condition in the intensive care unit of Northwest Community Hospital yesterday afternoon with head injuries.

The driver of the car aided the Arlington Heights Fire Department in rescuing the girl and was not charged in the mishap.

Potboilers

UNVANDALIZABLE — One of the major problems of the park district is vandalism, and park district officials are always trying to come up with ideas and equipment that are vandal-proof. The latest equipment to be dubbed vandal-proof will soon be installed in the parks as light poles. "If the kids vandalize these they'll really have to work at it — like drive a car into them," said Superintendent of Parks Angelo Capulli.

A LITTLE EXCESS 02 — The recreation department of the Arlington Heights Park District was trying to convince the board to purchase an air compressor for some $1,400 at a recent board meeting so that the scuba club and classes wouldn't have to go to Chicago every time it needs air. "If the club wants to come here every two weeks they could bottle all the air they want," said Board Pres. Charles Cronin. "I didn't know they could use hot air," quipped Board Member Kay Mul-

Great Books Talk Tonight At Library

Parent, teachers and anyone interested in youth discussion groups are invited to a junior great books discussion tonight at 8 p.m. in the Dunton Room of the Arlington Heights Memorial Library, 500 N. Dunton.

The discussion will include 12 sixth-grade students who will discuss how Robinson Crusoe dealt with his isolation. Vic Moeller, a staff member of the Great Books Foundation, will lead the discussion.

Junior great books discussions are held weekly at St. James School in Arlington Heights. Some of the discussion groups are also held in Dist. 25 schools by PTA groups as a supplementary program.

A training course for people interested in leading junior great books discussions will begin Jan. 10, and sign up for the program will be held following the discussion tonight.

Library Wants Slice Of Revenue Sharing

The Arlington Heights Memorial Library Board will soon send a letter to the village board asking to be considered for a share of the village's revenue sharing funds.

Although the letter does not ask for a specific amount of money, Library Board Treasurer Roland Ley told his board Tuesday night that he hopes the library will get as much as 20 per cent of the village's revenue sharing funds. This means that Ley is looking for some $30,000 of the village's total $200,000 in revenue sharing funds for 1972.

Ley bases his hopes on the fact that the library tax levy accounts for 20 per cent of the tax levied by the village.

But the final decision as to how much — if any — of the village's revenue sharing funds will be given to the library rests in the hands of the village board. Kenneth Bonder, village finance director, said Wednesday that he would not hazard a guess as to the board's action.

If the village board does not base its decision on Ley's figures, it could use another formula. One such formula would be to give the library a percentage of the revenue sharing funds equivalent to the library's percentage of a village taxpayer's total tax bill. If this is used, the library would get only two per cent of the revenue sharing funds.

THE TOTAL tax bill includes tax levies from the county, state, park district, township and school districts, as well as the levy from the village.

Ley said he hopes the village board does not take the latter course, but added that he is not trying to dictate to the village as to how the revenue sharing funds should be divided.

The Arlington Heights Park District would also like some of the revenue sharing money for land acquisition, according to Thomas Thornton, director of parks and recreation.

"We're planning to discuss the subject with the village board at a meeting in the near future," Thornton said.

Thornton said there is no specific dollar or land amount that the park district wants from the revenue sharing funds.

Put Some Light On The Subject

Never, never take ANY medicine in the dark. Always turn on a light so you can see what you're doing and check to make sure that you're taking the right medication. A lot of medicine bottles are similar in design and can be easily interchanged with one another if you're not paying attention to what you're doing.

It never makes sense to take unnecessary chances or avoidable risks. In fact, it's downright foolish. Today's drugs are potent compounds, and accidentally taking the wrong one instead of the right one can lead to serious, and perhaps fatal, consequences. You can't be too careful when it comes to using medicines, and we hope you will exercise the necessary precautions.

OK Negotiations For Bus Company Takeover Action

The city council last night unofficially authorized Des Plaines Mass Transit District to negotiate a purchase price for takeover of United Motor Coach Company.

Final action on the purchase may hinge on a suggested city referendum April 16.

The move to seek a firm purchase price came after council members tossed appraisals and estimated assets around a committee of the whole meeting for 90 minutes.

City officials indicated displeasure with a contracted appraisal that showed bus company physical assets of $344,500. The report estimated value of 69 buses, some purchased in 1946, at $232,800.

The appraisal, prepared by William Gilman and Company of Chicago, based the bus total on "service value"—a figure that considers street earning potential, not resale value.

An August study by consultants Ernst and Ernst reported a bus book value of $87,258.

"I don't feel the price we can offer them can be based on the service value," said Edward Tobin, a Mass Transit District board member.

A FINAL REPORT estimating real estate value of the bus firm was not available for Thursday's meeting, Mayor Herbert Behrel said. The land appraisal was "within the range" of a bus firm estimate of the firm in 1970, he said.

Officials peg the possible purchase price at $800,000. United's previous property appraisal was $793,000.

Purchase for about $800,000 would require a city share of about $300,000 after federal and state aid, according to the Ernst and Ernst report. The estimated figures are based on an additional purchase of 40 new buses for $1.68 million.

Not included in Thursday's figures was estimated value of United's new minibus project, which transports handicapped children. Purchase price of the 50 minibuses and equipment by mortgage was about $400,000, the bus firm's recent financial statement claims.

The minibus program, started in October, pushed the company $19,069 into the black for the first time this year. United lost about $98,000 between January and August, 1972.

The bus firm will ask the council Monday night for a $12,071 operations subsidy for 1973. "If they don't get it from us, I don't know where it's going to come from," Behrel said.

"NOBODY IS really for it. No one is really against it," Alderman Charles Bolek (3rd) said, suggesting a referendum during the city's spring election.

City Atty. Robert D. DiLeonardi said two referendum questions could be asked — 1. "Advisory, should the city acquire the bus company?" 2. "Should the mass transit district levy a tax to finance the purchase?"

Council members claimed that Des Plaines residents may face a tax to purchase the firm or may be taxed by School Districts 63 and 207 if United end service. A school bus tax could total $11 per $10,000 assessed valuation, Behrel said.

A purchase price and referendum decision is expected by the council's Jan. 15 meeting. Ninety days notice is required to place a referendum on the ballot.

Dry Cleaners Robbed

An undetermined amount of cash was stolen from a Des Plaines dry cleaning store Wednesday night.

Police said burglars broke into Burckhardt's Cleaners, 1375 Oakton St., by smashing a rear window.

According to reports, a youth was seen behind the store at about 10:30 p.m. Wednesday, however, police said they had no description of the youth, who is believed to be the burglar.

City Has Area's Top Crime Rate

Des Plaines has the highest crime rate and the most police officers in the Northwest suburbs, a study released earlier this week shows.

The comparison and ranking of towns by their crime rates, population, number of policemen and their rank in the state by number of crimes is part of the Chicago-Cook County Criminal Justice Commissions 1973 plan.

The comparison is drawn in an appendix to the plan which lists priorities for federal funding for law enforcement and criminal justice projects during the coming year.

The chart shows the 1970 population, the number of full-time and part-time police in 1972, the 1970 crime rate per 1,000 population, and the rank of the municipalities in crimes statewide.

Des Plaines ranks 97th in the state with a crime rate of 20.4 crimes per 1,000 residents. The city has a 1970 population of 57,239. It has 78 full-time and 35 part-time policemen.

Statistics for other Northwest suburban communities, in alphabetical order, include:

Arlington Heights — 64,684 population, 61 full-time policemen, 12.8 crimes per 1,000 population and ranked 209 in the state.

Buffalo Grove — 9,966 population in Cook County, 1,833 population in Lake County, 15 full-time policemen, four part-time policemen, five crimes per 1,000 population, and ranked 302 in the state.

Elk Grove Village — 24,505 population, 43 full-time policemen, 12.1 crimes per 1,000 population and ranked 221 in the state.

Hoffman Estates — 22,238 population, 31 full-time policemen, 11.4 crimes per 1,000 population and ranked 227 in the state.

Mount Prospect — 34,995 population, 36 full-time policemen, 17.3 crimes per 1,000 population and ranked 128 in the state.

Palatine — 25,904 population, 39 full-time policemen, 6.9 crimes per 1,000 population and ranked 283 in the state.

Rolling Meadows — 19,178 population, 27 full-time policemen, two part-time policemen, 19.6 crimes per 1,000 population and ranked 108 in the state.

Schaumburg — 18,531 population, 28 full-time policemen, 16 part-time policemen, 9.1 crimes per 1,000 population and ranked 255 in the state.

Wheeling — 14,746 population, 33 full-time policemen, 17.7 crimes per 1,000 population, and ranked 122 in the state.

Burglary Reported

Burglars escaped with more than $845 worth of valuables from a Des Plaines apartment during the weekend.

Steven A. Harp, of 900 S. River Rd. told police thieves broke the lock on his apartment door sometime Friday and entered his bedroom.

Police said the thieves removed a camera and three lenses valued at $800, three pieces of jewelry valued at $45 and an undetermined amount of coins from a plastic container.

Jewish Slate Chapel Service

Maine Township Jewish Congregation, 8700 Ballard Rd., Des Plaines, has announced a full schedule of religious services for next week-end. The Sabbath will be welcomed December 22 at 4 p.m. in a traditional Hebrew Chapel service. A Family English-Hebrew service at 8:30 p.m. will be led by Rabbi Jay Karmen and Cantor Harry Solowinichik.

Douglas Zelden, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Zelden, 9029 W. Emerson, Des Plaines, will observe his Bar Mitzvah Saturday, December 23, 9:30 a.m. The celebrant will chant the entire service and read from the Torah Scroll. The Sabbath will end with Mincha-Meariv at 4 p.m. that afternoon.

Oakton's Innovative Philosophy: Is It A Success?

Editor's note: Oakton Community College, in existence for almost four years, hasn't solved some of the problems that confronted it in 1969. College programs are still in the experimental stage, the college has no permanent campus and political differences in the college district continue to split the vote of Oakton's board of trustees. This series of articles take a look at those problems.

by KATHERINE BOYCE
Second of a Series

Can an upstart, free-wheeling, non-traditional two-year college find true happiness in the suburbs of Maline and Niles townships?

Oakton Community College, which was formed in 1969 and opened the doors of its temporary Morton Grove campus in 1970, is still trying to find out.

For the past two years, Oakton has been putting together a teaching program based on a special approach to education. It's innovative, unstructured, enthusiastic, yes, and even a little permissive. Does it work? Last month, a school accrediting association evaluated Oakton's educational program and came up with some severe criticism.

THE COLLEGE now is taking a second look at its programs and acting on some of the criticisms leveled by the North Central Association. The results will be part of a report to the association early next year.

To understand those criticisms, you have to know how Oakton operates.

Although established under the Illinois Junior College Act, Oakton makes a point of calling itself a "community" college. William Koehnline, college president, says the difference lies in the goal of the institution. Junior colleges are basically the first two years of a four-year educational program. Most students attending a junior college transfer to a four-year school.

A community college provides a number of different programs based on the needs and desires of the people it serves, says Koehnline. Some 70 per cent of Oakton's students go on to four-year colleges, the rest are enrolled in two-year vocational programs, adult evening school, or leisure time courses.

WHEN THE college first was formed, Oakton officials made an attitude survey of the community. More than 90 per cent of those interviewed said transfer programs were important. But 80 per cent said a community college should be more than a college — preparatory institution, and indicated technical and vocational courses are needed. Three-fourths said adult courses should be available at night.

Oakton now provides four programs for degrees that can be used to transfer to a four-year college. They are liberal arts, which meets general education requirements of most universities; general business, for students who plan careers in accounting, business administration, law or public service; general science, a two-year preparatory program for a degree in medicine, chemistry, mathematics or biology; and pre-engineering for specialized careers such as aerospace, civil, electrical, industrial or mechanical.

Two-year vocational programs include practical nursing, radiologic technology, office skills, marketing, data processing, fire science, mechanical design and a two-year program in child care services.

Adult education courses are offered in conjunction with the high school districts in the two townships. Most classes are held at night and include credit and non-credit courses.

OAKTON combines this community approach with a distinctly non-traditional philosophy of teaching. The way college officials see it, everyone learns differently and everyone is responsible for his own education. So the idea is to provide choices in the way students can learn, provide an atmosphere between students and teachers where learning is both fun and fulfilling, and provide guidance so students can reach their potentials.

The result is an emphasis on innovative and experimental teaching. For one thing, there are no failing grades at Oakton. A student receives an A, B, C, or D for passing a course, a W for withdrawing from the course or an X, which means he hasn't completed the course. He can do so by working with his counselor or teacher. If the course is then finished, the student gets one of the four passing grades. If not, the grade remains incomplete and no credit is given.

School officials say the grading system not only removes the "stigma" of failure and reduces competition among students for grades, it places the burden of completing a course on the student. An "X" can only be made into a passing grade on the student's initiative.

Also, there is no traditional academic departments at Oakton — no math department, English department, or vocational department. The college is organized into four "mini-colleges" or clusters, each with about 30 faculty members and 900 students. Almost all academic programs are taught in each of the clusters, which have teachers from all subject areas. The student body of each group is a representative slice of the school as a whole, with a proportionate amount of high and low achievers, male and female students, new and returning students of all ages. The purpose of the cluster system is to keep education individualized and retain a close relationship between student and teacher. As Oakton grows, more groups will be added and the college will continue to remain small.

OAKTON emphasizes an informal relationship between student and teacher. Most students and teachers are on a first-name basis and talk informally in faculty offices and the student lounge. The average age of Oakton's faculty is 32. Of Oakton's 73 full-time faculty members, 11 hold Ph.D. degrees.

When they pick a course, students also choose the manner in which they wish to learn. The director of courses and sections published each semester tells not only the content of the course, but how the subject matter will be taught — in large lecture classes, individualized study, or with extensive use of audio-visual equipment. The student chooses how he wants to learn and the teacher is obligated to stick to his original teaching plan.

The semester for self-directed study is another innovative program at Oakton. Students do not attend classes but pick a topic they want to explore, set a learning goal, with the guidance of a teacher, establish a procedure for reaching that goal and begin research.

Students in self-directed study are graded on their success in reaching their goals. They work on their own and are only required to meet three hours a week with group teachers.

AN EXAMPLE of Oakton's philosophy of a student operated school is the student newspaper "The Daily Planet." Oakton sees extra-curricular student activities as a part of education and, with limitations, adheres to a hands-off policy, allowing students to experiment with new ideas.

This is especially true of the "Daily Planet." Operated under guidelines set by the student publications board — a regulatory body composed of students, administrators and teachers — the "Daily Planet" is not subject to college censorship. The only standards set by the publications board are that the paper be accurate, published regularly, factual and non-libelous.

Dan Sullivan, editor of the "Daily Planet," denies that the paper is a school newspaper in the traditional sense of the word. Rather, he says, it's a format for student opinion. "I print anything that is submitted by a student," says Sullivan. Topics have included criticism of the college, and satires on communism, the Vietnam War, and democracy. In contrast to most newspapers, "The Daily Planet" doesn't solicit advertising and refuses to advertise stores that feature what the newspaper staff considers exorbitant prices.

College board president Lefty Wauck says the paper belongs to the students and both the board and the administration "bend over backwards" to keep it that way. Oakton journalism teacher Norman Hoffberg agrees that the newspaper is an educational project and believes its strongest point is that it is totally student-operated.

THE "PLANET" has been assailed by a few local newspapers as pornographic and radical. Last year, its printer broke a contract with Oakton and refused to print it. Like its student paper, the college has come in for criticism, too.

In his report last month, an evaluator from the North Central Association said classroom teaching at Oakton seemed to be regarded by the college as "perfunctory."

Norman Harris, member of the evaluation team, and professor of higher education at the University of Michigan, said there is "considerable room for improvement in classroom teaching" at Oakton.

Koehnline has responded by saying, "we think we are doing an unusually good job." He adds that a broader sampling of the classrooms by the evaluation team "would lead to a much more positive assessment."

Raymond Hartstein, Oakton trustee, said some of the criticism given by team members could be explained by their educational backgrounds. He said many of the team members are on the faculties of colleges that are traditional, and are unaccustomed to Oakton's innovative ap-

State Unit To Finalize School Plans

A task force from the Office of the Illinois Superintendent of Public Instruction will visit River Trails Dist. 26 Monday to finalize educational specifications for the new school facility to house students at Maryville Academy in Des Plaines.

Dist. 26 submitted its educational specifications to both the office of public instruction and the Illinois Office of the Capital Development Board last week. On Monday, members of the task force will review the specifications with Dist. 26.

"We will meet with them Monday afternoon and incorporate their recommendations. If we don't agree, we'll modify them," said Assistant Supt. James Retzlaff. The specifications are important because "the building we build is to some degree going to be based on the type of programs in that building," Retzlaff said.

ALTHOUGH A list of four possible sites for the new school building has already been submitted to the Capital Development Board, Dist. 26 has refused to reveal the location of the sites until decision is made. According to Ray Morris, project coordinator, however, the capital development board expects to come to "some conclusion as to site" sometime next week.

As of Thursday, Morris said he did not have the release from the governor yet authorizing allocation of funds for the new building, but "I expect it momentarily," he said. Dist. 26 has requested funds for the new building under a law passed by the legislature last year. The law provides that a school district can request state funds for school buildings when a nonpublic school closes resulting in an increased enrollment of five percent or more to a public school district.

Such an emergency occurred in Dist. 26 in 1968 when Catholic Charities announced it could no longer afford to educate the Maryville children, who are wards of the state.

Mrs. Evans In Council Bid

Former Constitutional Convention delegate Anne Evans announced her candidacy for 3rd Ward alderman yesterday.

Mrs. Evans, an organizer of the Des Plaines League of Women Voters, will challenge Ald. Charles Bolek (3rd) for a four-year city council term.

"I haven't got any big issues in mind," Mrs. Evans, of 986 Jeannette, said. "I've lived here for 22 years. I've always been interested in service in the city."

A mother of three, Mrs. Evans said, "I don't have any axe to grind. I don't intend to run my campaign on the basis of what's all wrong in the city and a promise that I'll make it right."

As a housewife, she says, "I'm available. I don't have another job. People in the ward will be able to find me."

Bolek is president of Jeco Industries in Des Plaines. He was elected alderman in 1963 and 1969 and said "in all probability I will run again."

$150 In Tires Stolen

Two tires valued at $150 were reported stolen Wednesday from an auto at a Des Plaines parking lot.

Frank Cantanzarile of 2400 Windsor Mall, Park Ridge, told police thieves removed the rear tires from his car Monday night at 1533 River Rd.

Chrysler Stolen

A 1967 Chrysler station wagon valued at $1,000 was stolen from the rear of a Des Plaines apartment building Saturday night.

Harold Melvin of 1617 Oakton St. told police the station wagon contained $1,400 worth of auto parts.

Lutheran General Bids For $50,000 OEO Grant

Lutheran General Hospital has applied for a $50,000 two-year grant from the Cook County Office of Economic Opportunity (OEO) to fund an out-patient center for low-income families in the Des Plaines area.

Harold Kurtz, hospital public relations director, told the Herald the out-patient center would offer a comprehensive family medical program for some 50 low-income families in the Des Plaines area.

Kurtz said a study by the Northwest Opportunity Center last October showed at least 50 families lived in the Des Plaines area who have incomes below the federal poverty level guidelines.

Kurtz explained that a family of four living on an annual income of $4,000 or less was considered below the federal poverty level.

KURTZ SAID the hospital is asking for $25,000 from the OEO during the first year of the center's operation and an additional $25,000 for operating costs the second year.

"The cost of the center will be in excess of $100,000 a year but if we get the OEO funding and enough volunteer help it should help to fund a full family medical program," Kurtz said.

He said medical services at the center would include prescriptions, dental care, psychiatric care and work with drug addicts.

"There is no question such a program is needed in the area," Kurtz said.

Applicants for the out-patient center service will be screened and referred to the hospital by the Northwest Opportunity Center in Rolling Meadows.

Kurtz said the hospital will also encourage other area organizations to help fund the center.

He said if the hospital doesn't get the OEO funds the program might be cut but added that was strictly conjecture.

A SPOKESMAN at the Northwest Opportunity Center said if the OEO approves the hospital's application the program might be able to start in March.

The hospital's family planning program for low-income families presently is the only other hospital service funded partially by the OEO according to Kurtz.

The family planning program was established 1½ years ago to help women who desire to plan the size of their family but are unable to afford to participate in family planning.

City Wins Latest Round In Kiwanis Land Feud

Des Plaines won another round in a long-standing feud over Kiwanis property water rights yesterday.

The Illinois Appellate Court in Chicago dismissed an appeal by owners of the former Kiwanis campground at Woodland and Grove Avenue that sought piping of city water to the unincorporated land.

The ruling upheld a circuit court decision in favor of the city.

The court ruled that an order to provide water to the non-city land would set a precedent requiring cities to supply neighboring property.

The case traces its history to 1950 when the city agreed to provide a one inch pipe and water to the Kiwanis Club camp site.

The property later was sold and the owners, hidden in an Exchange National Bank trust, announced plans for a 312-unit development under high density county zoning.

THE OWNERS claimed "third-party" rights to city water and filed suit when Des Plaines refused their request.

When Des Plaines annexed all neighboring land in 1965, the Kiwanis property owners asked to remain unincorporated because of more favorable county zoning. Des Plaines zoning would allow only 162 units on the 11 acres and Cook County zoning permit the 312 units.

Des Plaines won the circuit court ruling and the council placed an involuntary annexation proposal on first reading in February 1970.

The ordinance missed final consideration when property owners proposed an annexation agreement with a variation allowing 194 units. The council voted 13-to-3 against the annexation when Ald. Joseph Szabo (1st) and Ald. Thomas Koplos (1st) supporting resident opposition to the apartments. Koplos said, in November, 1970, that the nearest private water utility was east of the Tri-State Tollway.

The property is bounded by Woodland, Grove, the Des Plaines River and the Chicago and North Western Ry. outerbelt tracks.

In its ruling, the appeals court noted that water demands of the proposed apartments would be greater than use by the camp.

Oakton College Philosophy: Does It Work?

prach to teaching. HARRIS also said the need for expanding vocational programs at Oakton is critical because Oakton's district has an abundance of industry.

Koehnline's reply is that since Oakton is a community college, the desires of the community must be taken into account. He says that although there is plenty of industry in Oakton's district, most of the people who live there want their children eventually to enroll in four-year colleges.

In reviewing Oakton's program, the question, "Does it work?" is left unanswered. The educational quality of a college is largely determined by the success of its graduates, according to college officials, but Oakton has had only one graduating class. In summarizing Oakton's weakness, the accrediting team said the college did not have enough ways to measure the success of its programs, to find out what is happening to the student in the classroom.

Koehnline promises college officials will work on evaluation methods within the next few months and possibly conduct another community attitude survey.

WHEN OAKTON first began, says Stephen Loska, Oakton trustee, there "were so many self-evident needs, needs we all agreed on" that the college was forced to "sacrifice planning for expediency." Loska thinks those initial needs have been satisfied, the college is growing and more planning is needed.

A total of 632 students were enrolled at Oakton when classes began in September 1970. This fall, there are about 4,000 students and almost 7,000 are expected in 1980. Operating in temporary facilities, renovated factory buildings in Morton Grove, space is an increasing problem.

Although the evaluating team insists temporary facilities do not affect Oakton's educational quality, the college lists the lack of a permanent site and a master plan for developing a campus as one of its major weaknesses.

College officials have failed twice to secure a permanent campus site. A special citizen's committee was chosen this fall to work with the college board and the community in choosing a site. It's report is due in January.

Christmas Seals Cover World

by DAVE MAHSMAN
Question: What's brightly colored and a Christmas tradition all over the world? (Clue: It's not Santa Claus.) Answer: Christmas Seals.

It's true. America has no monopoly on Christmas Seals. We didn't even originate the idea.

Visitors to the lobby of the Arlington Park Towers Hotel this month will have an opportunity to see colorful Christmas Seals from more than 40 of the 94 foreign countries that belong to the International Union Against Tuberculosis. This special exhibit on loan from the Chicago Lung Association (CLA), and the local Christmas Seal agency, reflects the global efforts against TB and other respiratory diseases, says a CLA spokesman.

The first American Christmas Seals were used in 1907 when Emily Bissell, a Red Cross worker from Wilmington, Del., was asked to raise $700 to support a tiny TB treatment center for adults. Success: She raised $1,000.

MISS BISSSELL has designed a simple seal bearing the Red Cross emblem. The Red Cross continued to sponsor Christmas Seals until 1920 when the National Tuberculosis Association took over.

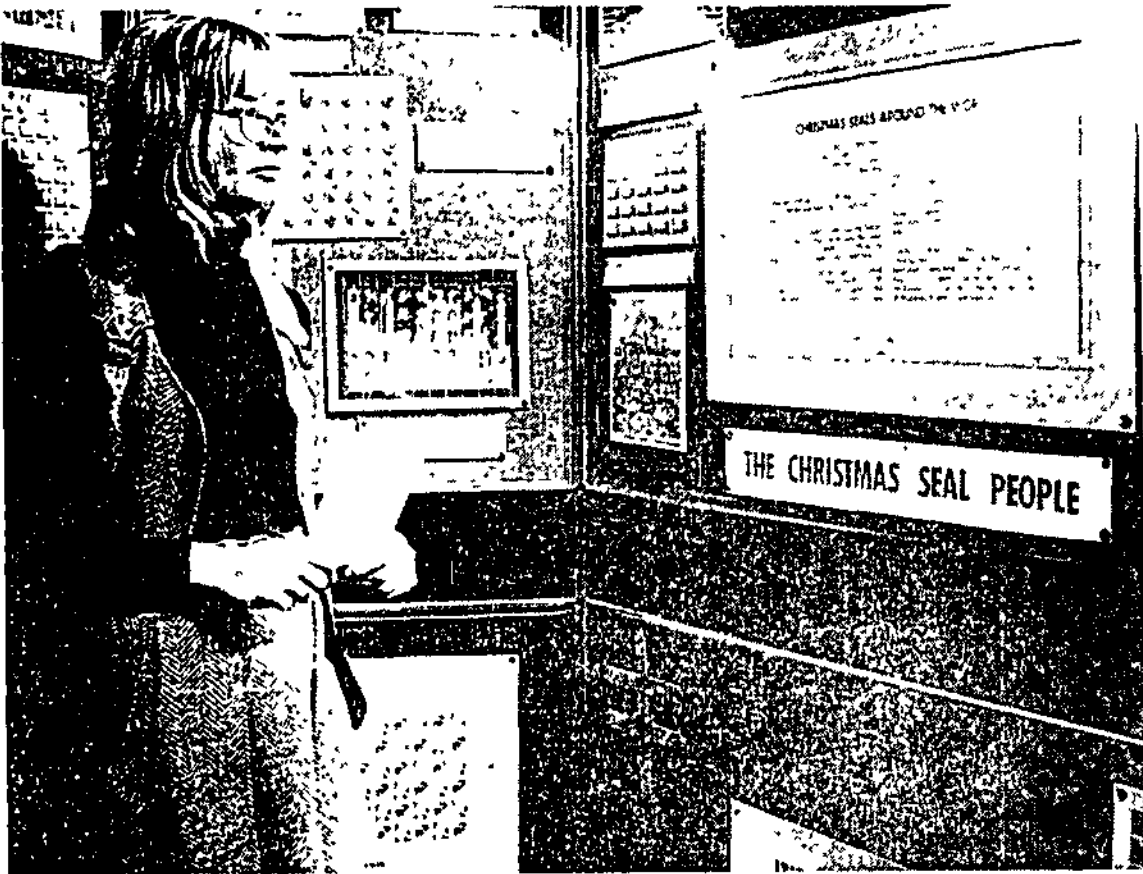

Even though the United States first issued seals 65 years ago, the honors for originating the idea goes to Denmark. Lomar Holboell, a Danish postal clerk, got the idea of issuing a stamp to raise funds to build a children's TB hospital. The king liked the idea, and the first Christmas Seal came out showing the head of Queen Louise. That was in 1904.

TB was as common as measles in 1904 and it carried a stigma second only to leprosy, says the CLA. There were no TB hospitals or sanitariums, and doctors didn't know what caused the disease or how to treat it. Hundreds of thousands died of TB annually.

But with the success of the first Christmas Seal, other nations quickly followed suit. Sweden, Norway, then other European nations started issuing seals of their own. In a generation, Christmas Seals were being issued around the world.

Each Christmas Seal reflects the art and culture of the country it represents. Seals from Moslem nations often depict a double-barred crescent instead of the familiar double-barred cross, the international anti-TB symbol. Some countries honor scientists and doctors on their Christmas Seals, while others pay tribute to their religions and life in their country.

IN THE UNITED STATES, of course, Christmas Seals are decorative. But in some countries, they can be used for postage. Switzerland issues special greeting cards which may be used throughout the year.

A direct result of the Christmas Seal success story was the formation of the International Union Against Tuberculosis in 1922. Hospitals and sanitariums have been built around the world since. And the union's seals have helped provide for TB detection programs and education for the public and professionals, says the CLA.

In spite of these services and new drugs, the CLA says the fight against TB continues in many countries. Death tolls and new cases have been cut, but the problem is not completely solved.

In recent years, however, Christmas Seal work in Chicago and Cook County has broadened the battle to fight all lung diseases — especially emphysema, chronic bronchitis and asthma. The CLA also directs its efforts to combat air pollution and cigarette smoking.

So the CLA is no longer simply the Tuberculosis Institute of Chicago and Cook County. But they are still the Christmas Seal people.

Table Tennis Tryouts Set For Wheeling

Kickin' It Around

by BOB FRISK
Sports Editor

IF THE CHICAGO Bears' visit to Philadelphia last Sunday did not result in the worst professional football game ever played, it wasn't because the two teams didn't try.

For the record, the Bears won, 21-12. It can be truthfully said, even without checking, that the National Football League Hall of Fame in Canton, Ohio did not send for the game films.

I felt obligated to watch because I thought John Huarte, the Bears' backup quarterback, might play. He was one of our guests Monday at the Pro Sports Club Luncheon, and I wanted to make sure I was watching if he did play in Philadelphia.

I should have known better. Huarte didn't play — again — and I wasted an afternoon in front of the television set. I was addressing Christmas cards as the flaseo developed, and this is the first time in memory when addressing cards actually was the highlight of any afternoon.

One thought persisted as I watched this poor excuse for a professional game. Wouldn't it have been fascinating to have Gibron: It was a team effort today. All 40 people wanting to play football. We didn't get any breaks again and the officials robbed us as usual but we won and ... and ... I thought I ordered sausage and pizza.

Douglass: I thought I was being interviewed.

Cosell: How true, Bobby Douglass. You are being interviewed. How very true, young man. It is you, my close and dear friend, who is giving me this exclusive interview, who has just walked off the field with a victory. You are seeing it through in your career, Bobby Douglass. You have been tossed into the National Football League cauldron. You've been thrown into the pressure cooker of professional football with all its cruel conning and its tension-gripped atmosphere.

Gibron: Bobby Douglass is my No. 1 quarterback and he will be my No. 1 quarterback because I say he is my No. 1 quarterback and what I say goes because this is a 40-man team and I am running the show and ...

Meredith (breaking into song) Fight on, Chicago Bears ...

Gifford: You are a beautiful human being, Abe Gibron, all of you. We have some replays to show you now and I would like some comments from our guests. Is the camera on me? Why not? I am speaking. I am a former star with the New York Giants ...

Meredith: I found your hair spray, Faultless.

Cosell: Oh, shut up, Dandy. I, Howard Cosell, will continue this exclusive interview which gives my viewers the perception that comes with someone who is constantly striving to bring an insight into sports through journalism that has long been absent from broadcasting. The wily insouciant Danderoo can not always convey those observations.

Gifford: We're rolling the tapes now and I would like Bobby and Abe to comment on this pass here that is thrown 30 yards behind Earl Thomas who is running a simple sideline maneuver.

Douglass: I am the No. 1 quarterback.

Gifford: Here we have this replay of a pass that takes six bounces before reaching George Farmer. My, that must have been difficult to throw, Bobby.

Gibron: Bobby Douglass is my No. 1 quarterback.

Meredith: Wow-see, what do you say to that, Howard?

Cosell: Danderoo, that was exciting banding between a coach and his quarterback, the type of dialogue that has long been a part of my tell-it-like-it-is broadcasting.

Gifford: Here's the taped replay now of your one pass completion, Bobby. What a thrill it must have been to complete a pass. Let's roll it again. Freeze it! There ... It is on tape ... It did happen! Howard, Don, I see it there before my very own baby blue eyes, before winsome Frank, the former star with the New York Giants. Bobby Douglass did complete a pass against the Eagles today. I told you it wasn't an old Johnny Unitas re-run.

Cosell: A thing of beauty, Faultless, and not even the most obdurate and pernicious critics that we have alluded to earlier could deny that we have here a quarterback whose tenacity and perspicacity are indubitably Herculean in nature ...

Meredith: Right on, Howard.

Gibron: Bobby Douglass is my No. 1 quarterback.

Douglass: I am the No. 1 quarterback.

Cosell: Speaking of quarterbacks ...

Meredith: Yes, Howard ...

Cosell: Speaking of quarterbacks, I wonder how Joe Willie from Denver Falls, my close and dear friend, is feeling today. I understand he threw 95 passes for 763 yards against the Oilers today and his arm fell off on the 35th pass. Joe Willie. If you are listening, my dear and close friend, I can only say that we wish you well because you are a beautiful human being. Why just the other day Joe Willie and I were having some popcorn together ...

Gifford: When I was playing with the Giants ...

Meredith: Golly, Frank, did you play for the Giants?

Cosell: Isn't it absolutely incredible what wondrous verbiage often flows from the mouths of Faultless and Dandy?

Gibron: As I was saying, it was a team effort out there against that fine Eagle team. All I ask for are 39 people who want to play football with my No. 1 quarterback, Bobby Douglass.

Cosell: My dear and close friend, Abe, who consented to give me, Howard Cosell, this exclusive interview, just how do you assess your total quarterback situation with one confrontation remaining? How do you assess the artistry, dexterity, deftness of one John Huarte?

Gibron: John? ... John who?

Douglass: I am No. 1.

Gibron: You are No. 1.

Gifford: I was No. 1 when I was playing with the Giants.

Cosell: I am No. 1, and I, Howard Cosell, will always be No. 1.

Meredith: Wow-see!

There's only one way for the top table tennis players in the United States to get to Yugoslavia for the world championships.

They'll have to stop off first at Wheeling High School.

The leading 24 players in the United States, 12 men and 12 women, will assemble in the Wheeling High School gymnasium Saturday and Sunday for challenging round-robin competition.

Five men and four women will qualify from the two days of action at Wheeling for the team that will represent the United States in Sarajevo, Yugoslavia at the World Table Tennis Championships in April.

Competition will be held over five sessions, starting at 2 p.m. and 7 p.m. Saturday. There will be three sessions Sunday at 10 a.m., 2 p.m. and the finals at 6:30 p.m. Doors will open approximately 30 minutes before the actual competition.

Tickets are $2.00 each for the first four sessions and $3.00 for the final round only. A ticket package for the five sessions costs $8.00.

Children under 12 will be admitted for half price.

Tickets are available at Ticketron outlets or by contacting Gordon Heisler at 392-8546. Tickets also will be available at the door. Each session will last about 2½ hours.

The United States team will be selected on a round-robin basis with each entry playing 11 games. The men and women with the top records will qualify.

Preliminary competition for some of the nation's best will be held tonight at the Chicago Table Tennis Club, 2047 N. Milwaukee, as they battle for the remaining positions in the weekend tryouts.

The Wheeling Naval ROTC will take part in the ceremonies at each session this weekend under the direction of Bill Marsh. In addition, several area dignitaries are expected to attend the tryouts which are sponsored by the Mount Prospect Jaycees.

Table tennis buffs will also get a chance to test their skills against some of the leading players in the United States. For a slight charge, a person will be able to play many of the nation's top performers in the fieldhouse adjoining the gymnasium.

"This is a unique opportunity for people to see the finest players in one competition," said Warren Hamilton, project chairman from the Jaycees for the tryouts.

"This is something different, something people in the Chicago area don't often get a chance to see. When people think of table tennis, they think of a green table and a couple paddles, maybe something to put the laundry on in the basement. They don't completely understand just what tremendous abilities these top players have, how much excitement they can bring to an event like this."

Among the top players in the competition at Wheeling will be 13-year-old Diana Myers of Omaha, Neb., who won the Midwest Regional at Grand Rapids, Mich.; Judy Bochenksi, 17, the national girls champion out of Eugene, Ore.; John Reed of Chicago, co-captain of the team that hosted China; Tim Lazarus of nearby Park Ridge; Tom Bogan, an English professor at Long Island University and the No. 1 ranked player over 40 in the United States; Del Sweris, the only U. S. player to beat the Chinese twice when the Communist nation toured the States; and Dal Joon Lee, long regarded as one of the finest competitors in the sport.

Many other nationally-ranked performers will also be in action tomorrow and Sunday at Wheeling High School. The contestants will stay at the Holiday Inn in Mount Prospect.

Challenging Weekend For West; Maine North Battles East Tonight

by MIKE KLEIN

Some observers will caution against wild boasts and high falutin' ideas after Maine West's two basketball wins last weekend.

They'll tell you Niles East and Libertyville really aren't much in the bouncy world of Illinois prep basketball. And they'll point to the 4-8 combined record of both teams for argumentative support.

Then they might question the Warriors' abilities after learning it took West one overtime period to defeat Central Suburban doormat Niles East, 59-54.

Let them talk. Beating Niles East left West 1-0 in the CSL South and a half game behind Maine South, 2-0.

And finally, the Warriors have two victories that no one can remove from the record books. Two conquests that they'll be more than happy to accept.

ANOTHER PAIR. Libertyville never really figured out what to do with Chris Bouchee last Saturday night. So as the Wildcats pondered their problem, Bouchee scored, 25 points in all. The All-Area griddler also added eight rebounds to his evening's work. Maine West won that decision, 60-46. The Warriors travel to Maine South on Friday and host Highland Park the following evening.

Like sub guard Freeman, Thimm was relegated backward with a bug of one sort or another. That removed an average 14.6 points and eight rebounds from West's effort.

But the Warriors succeeded because 6-2 Chris Bouchee came alive with 25 points against Libertyville. Andy Richardson plugged Thimm's hole and seldom used Jim Olsen subbed for 6-8 Doug Myers, plagued by foullits.

But a ballclub cannot live on past glories. There is always another challenge. For Maine West, it means a weekend of brawny Maine South plus Highland Park.

Ordinarily, facing either ballclub would be enough to boggle the brain. Maine South is its usual self and Highland Park leads the CSL North.

The defending league champion Maine South Hawks have bounced back from a second game loss at New Trier East to crush four opponents by an average 45.7 points.

"They'll always shoot for 100," Freeman said about the Hawks, an 8 p.m. Friday road opponent. Bernie Brady's club has hit the century mark just once, 116-99 over Maine North.

True, the witless Norsemen haven't frightened anyone off yet. But the Hawks proved their bulging win was no fluke with an 83-39 crunching of Hersey the following evening.

That's the same Hersey that won the Mid-Suburban League title last year. And the Huskies return a wonderboy All-State candidate in 7-0 junior center Dave Corzine.

But superb defense by Hawk Bob Westman (6-5) kept Corzine scoreless. And Hersey fans with their mouths slightly ajar.

"We played an exceptional ballgame against Hersey," said Brady. "It gave us the incentive and confidence that we've needed. I just hope that it continues."

Brady and Freeman have been nipping at each other's heels for years. The Hawks have proven stronger in the long run with five CSL titles but Freeman's ballclubs have been a pestly lot.

Two winters ago, South had to beat West, 72-63, in the season's final conference game to secure a CSL title tie with the Warriors.

Brady's current starting unit includes two of the Central Suburban's top four scorers. Six-foot-seven sophomore center Pete Boesen owns a 19.5 average thru two games, good for second in the scoring derby.

Two spots behind is guard Bill Harbeck with a 17.5 average. "He's probably as quick as anybody in the league," says Freeman.

Sound from top to bottom, the Hawks have exceptional strength in the front line. Westman, who humbled Hersey's Corzine, joins Jerry Jones, picked by the Chicago Daily News as one of the area's eight best ballplayers.

Westman's hitting at a 15.5 pace in CSL action, good for tenth. And Jones' 12.0 average is highly deceiving.

The 6-4 southpaw shooter sprained his right wrist in the loss at New Trier East. That necessitated a cumbersome tape and foam cast.

But the medical accessories are gone. Last weekend, he hit 15 points against Deerfield in a 90-56 win, then flung thru 33 as South clubbed Morton East by 23 points.

It's at this front line strength that Freeman will launch his attack behind Myers, Thimm and Bouchee.

"We're going to have to go inside and force the game to them," Freeman stated. "Instead of us always picking up the three or four fouls, who not let the opponents do it?"

"They're big inside and when you go in there, it's a 50-50 chance as to who will get the foul.

Cage Weekend

"But I honestly feel we're as good as they are inside," Freeman continued. "I've got a world of confidence in our kids. And we're going to get better."
Should the underdog Warriors contain high CSL scorers Boesen and Harbeck, they can contemplate defending the league's No. 1 pointmaker when Highland Park comes to town at 8 p.m. Saturday.

That's Chuck Bergen, the Little Giants' 6-8 center who carried lofty credentials along when Highland Park cast off from the Suburban League.

Bergen finished second in Suburban scoring and rebounding during the Little Giants' final travels thru that conference.

And he's off to a 23 point average in the Central Suburban, a 35 points per game bulge over Maine South's Boesen.

Bergen fashioned his average in Highland Park's league opener. The Little Giants capitalized on eight fourth quarter turnovers by Maine East for a 65-60 win.

In other Des Plaines action, Maine East and North get together on Friday night at the Norsemen's school. Then neither basketball plays again until competition in post-Christmas tourneys.

East will participate in the Niles Township Tourney at Notre Dame while North is scheduled into the Reavis Tournament. Both are Dec. 28-29.

The Blue Demons will face Niles East on Dec. 27. Maine North has not received its pairings as yet.

Very frankly, East's Paul McClelland says, "Yeah, we're disappointed," when asked about his club's 3-3 mark.

"But one interesting thing is that we were ahead of Palatine by points but blew it," McClelland said. "And Palatine beat Hersey the other night."

He's most upset, however, with the Blue Demons loss to Highland Park. "We had eight turnovers in the fourth quarter and missed 10 free throws," McClelland said. "You can't win games with 20 turnovers overall and that's what we had."

Without question, the key to East's success this year will be 6-5 center Bill Castanzo. He's off to a rough start, hitting only 29 of 82 field goal shots. That's 35 per cent, a big dip from last year's 48 completion average.

"He was five of 18 on Friday," McClelland said. "Our patterns work to him and he just hasn't put the ball in the hole yet."

"I really believe that over the years he's been a good shooter," McClelland said of Castanzo. "His current slump is probably due to football."

"You've got to remember that the muscles take a while to work out after being banged around for 10 weeks," Castanzo was a Herald and Chicago Today All-Area football selection.

McClelland has contemplated one lineup change for the 8 p.m. meeting with Maine North. He might start Greg Maloney over Rich Schumacher at one forward. It's a case of mobility over strength.

"Maloney is much better in a press," McClelland said. "If we need real strong rebounding, Schumacher will be in there."

"But we should rebound Maine North easily. If we don't we're in trouble."

If McClelland thinks his team shooting is down (38.4%), he should check Jerry Nelson's stats. Maine North is shooting just 28 per cent.

"That's really been bothering us," Nelson admitted. "We'd like to start ripping the nets in a few games."

"We've played against some good strong pressing defenses and that's done a lot to attribute to our poor shooting," he continued.

"Proviso East (105-38 over North) is just not going to give you the good percentage shot. No matter what offensive patterns you run," Nelson said, "they'll force you out a little farther than you'd like and make you rush your shots."

North, winless in five starts, has turned the ball over between 15 and 25 times per game. Inexperience and jitters have hampered the Norsemen.

"I'd like our ballplayers to develop more poise," Nelson said. "This is what we'll try to do through our remaining games — get the poise and self-confidence that we just haven't exhibited."

MSD Trustees Approve $300 Million Budget

The Metropolitan Sanitary District (MSD) Board of Trustees yesterday approved a 1973 budget of more than $300 million, an increase of slightly more than 36.5 per cent over last year's budget.

The budget approved yesterday totals $300,478,200, an increase of almost $79 million over the budget approved last year of $221,485,362.

The tax rate for the new budget was estimated yesterday at 33.5 cents per $100 assessed valuation.

Last year, when the 1972 budget was approved, the rate was estimated at 33.5 cents per $100 assessed valuation, but yesterday it was announced the actual rate to be applied to the 1972 tax bills will be 36.3 cents per $100 assessed valuation.

EVEN AS THE BUDGET was receiving formal approval yesterday, however, MSD Trustee Valentine Janicki said it will be amended Thursday.

After a brief meeting yesterday, the MSD board adjourned to executive session to meet with union representatives for a local of operating engineers. Following the closed session, the trustees were expected to consider other amendments to the budgets which would be finalized Dec. 21.

The budget, as of yesterday afternoon, was $5,462,252 lower than the budget proposed Nov. 9 by MSD General Supt. Ben Sosewitz.

The final form of the budget was increased $500,000 from the tentative budget presented by the MSD finance committee Nov. 29. The addition was the district's bond and interest fund to pay for retiring a portion of the $20 million in general obligations and bonds the district issued recently.

The 1973 rate may increase as general obligation bonds are issued during the year.

NEW MSD TRUSTEE Joanne Alter yesterday asked if the Chicago Underflow Plan (a solution to combined sanitary and storm sewer pollution and flooding) could be given higher priority in the budget.

Sosewitz told her he did not think so. He said the engineering for the underflow plan will take most of the year to complete. He said it would be a "long shot" to expect to award any substantial contracts for the underflow plan in 1973.

For example, he said, additional land will be needed for the O'Hare Water Reclamation Plan to be connected to the underflow tunnel system. That land must be acquired before work can begin on tunnels in the Northwest suburban area.

Sosewitz also said MSD officials will meet with William Huckelshaus, director of the federal Environmental Protection Agency, in January to seek federal support for the underflow plan.

Track Satisfied With Scott's Action

by DAVID MAHSMAN

See related story Section 2, Page 10
Arlington Park Race Track officials have expressed satisfaction at Illinois Atty. Gen. William Scott's move to seek a court decision on the validity of the 1973 racing dates awarded three weeks ago by the Illinois Racing Board.

"I think this is the best way to go," said Thomas Rivera, Arlington Park information officer, of Scott's quest for a final decision in the racing schedule controversy.

The racing board Thursday unanimously denied a petition from Arlington Park - Washington Park Race Tracks Corp. for a new racing schedule, but race track owners' hopes for a better schedule were kept alive by Scott's announcement that his office will take the matter to court Monday.

Scott made the announcement in a surprise appearance at Thursday's racing board hearing on Arlington-Washington's request for reconsideration of the 1973 racing schedule. Track officials said they had not expected the courts to become involved in the controversy at this point.

THE RACING board voted unanimously to support Scott in seeking an early court ruling on the racing schedule. Scott told the board and those present at the hearing that he is of the opinion that racing dates awarded to corporations headed by William S. Miller should be thrown out. Miller is a former racing board chairman under indictment — with former Gov. Otto Kerner — on charges of bribery and income tax evasion in connection with an alleged race track stock scandal.

The Illinois Racing Act provides that the racing board shall award racing dates based on maximizing state revenue and only to persons of good moral character. Scott said that Miller's indictment places him in the realm of "moral turpitude" and disqualifies him from receiving a racing license.

But Scott's opinions are not binding, so

he decided to take the issue to court.

"We've had to go to court in the past to support our opinions, and we will go to court in the future," Scott said, adding that the courts have backed his opinions in the past. He called his case against Miller "important to the people of the state and the integrity of the state."

ACTING RACING Board chairman Joseph Lamendella said he hopes the court will consider the opinions of all racing commissioners in ruling on the racing dates. He was referring to three separate reports that were filed by commissioners following a 4-3 board approval of the 1973 racing schedule. Besides the majority report upholding the decision, Lamendella filed a dissenting report, as did former board chairman Alexander MacArthur and Commissioner Gerald F. Fitzgerald, asking for a change in dates. MacArthur resigned in protest over the schedule that was awarded.

"I certainly welcome the opportunity to finally have this (racing schedule) matter cleared," said Commissioner Edward J. Long after voting for board support of Scott. Long was one of the commissioners who voted in favor of the 1973 schedule.

Prior to Scott's appearance before the racing board, the commissioners unanimously approved Lamendella's motion to deny the race track's petition for a new schedule. Long seconded that motion.

Frank Riley, attorney for Arlington-Washington, told the board he based the petition on the fact that Arlington Park was granted a single 77-day racing license for 1973, rather than two licenses — one each for the Arlington Park and Washington Park Jockey Club meets. Technically, Riley said he was not seeking a new schedule, but another racing license.

Riley argued that state law prohibits a single meet of more than 60 days, which he said he feels was the effect of the board's decision to grant only one license. But an assistant attorney-general assigned to the racing board said the single 77-day license is valid because Arlington-Washington owns two race tracks.

ARLINGTON-WASHINGTON Pres. John F. Loomer spoke only briefly in defense of a longer racing season for Arlington Park. He said his testimony during the Nov. 17 board hearing — that a longer season for Arlington Park is in the best interest of Illinois racing — still stands.

Arlington Park was awarded 77 days of continuous racing to run from April 25 to July 24, preceded by six days of racing for the Sun-Times/Daily News charity meet. The track had requested 120 days of racing, the maximum allowed by law.

After the racing board voted Thursday to deny Arlington-Washington's request for a new schedule, Lamendella explained that he had earlier conferred with Scott, who had raised some question as to whether or not the board could change the schedule at this time. Scott based his opinion that such a move would be improper on two points:

—Arlington-Washington's petition did not ask for a change in dates, but only for another racing license.

—The racing board does not have the authority to change racing dates at this time.

Bradley Retiring After 20 Years

Ronald Bradley, 70, of 1355 S. Arlington Heights Rd., near Arlington Heights, has announced plans to retire at the first of the year as Elk Grove Township highway commissioner.

Bradley has been highway commissioner for 20 years. He succeeded his father, Fred Bradley, who was highway commissioner for 11 years.

No replacement has been named for Bradley.

As highway commissioner, Bradley is responsible for the construction, maintenance, repair, snow removal and salting of over 22 miles of road in unincorporated Elk Grove Township.

Bradley has lived in the township since 1912. He attended Arlington High School.

He is past president of the Northern Illinois Steam Power Club and a member of the Will County Thrasher Association, two steam engine clubs.

Township officials recently honored Bradley at a retirement dinner. Auditor Bernard Lee presented a plaque to Bradley.

Truant, Expelled Pupils Need Help: Witnesses

by WANDALYN RICE

Two district viewpoints emerged this week at hearings conducted by Cook County School Supt. Richard Martwick into the problems of truant and expelled students in suburban schools.

On one hand witnesses, including a probation officer and attorneys, attacked "insensitivity" of school administrators to the problems causing students to skip school and misbehave.

On the other side, witnesses pointed to failures of parents to control their children and provide them with the proper attitudes toward school.

Witnesses on both sides in the two days of hearings, however, agreed that schools must try to provide alternatives for students who don't get along in school.

THE HEARINGS were called by Martwick to explore the problems of truancy and expulsion with an eye toward formulating a program that might result in new legislation. A report of findings will be issued later.

One witness, Marvin Roelofs, a probation supervisor for the Cook County Juvenile Court, brought up points that were often repeated by other witnesses. Roelofs charged that school administrators make schools into "prison systems" with rules and overuse suspension and expulsion in dealing with children.

"In far too many of the suburban school districts," Roelofs said, "there is a violation of the compulsory school attendance law by school officials." He added, "The juvenile court has begun to take steps to invite or subpoena school administrators to explain why students are not in school and what they are doing about it."

Roelofs was supported by attorneys William London and Patrick Keenan, who represent students in expulsion cases before school boards.

"Expulsion is a neat solution that appeals to many school boards, but it is also becoming more difficult and expensive because of lawyers like me," London said. "Schools are starting to use more underhanded methods of getting rid of students by telling the parents to voluntarily withdraw the child."

JOHN AURIAND, a representative of the Illinois Education Association (IEA), said he believed three steps could be taken toward improving truancy and expulsion rates. He said the law regarding due process and student rights must be explained to educators, alternative education programs must be established for truants and law enforcement must be improved.

Auriand explained that improved law enforcement is necessary because "as a teacher I continuously had problems with parental responsibility in regard to truancy, drug use and other things. I feel when the parents don't wish to cooperate or even show up we should use law enforcement."

Danatta Yates, attendance officer at Eisenhower High School in south suburban Worth, told the hearing officials she differs sharply with those who charged that school officials are insensitive to students.

"That's nutsey" Miss Yates said, adding, "It is of no more benefit to the schools to continue to beat administrators for their failures than it is to beat the recalcitrant child over the head. We may be misguided but we're not insensitive."

Miss Yates said that in the two years she has been at the high school the number of absences, and thus truancy, has been cut from 25 to 28 per cent each day to 7 to 8 per cent.

AT EISENHOWER, she said, "The emphasis is to get kids to come to school to get something for themselves, not to fulfill any requirement."

Several school administrators, in describing some programs they would like to implement to help students, explained that financial problems sometimes stand in their way.

Jack Newmiller, a principal in Coolidge Junior High School in Dist. 151 serving South Holland and Phoenix, said he wants to start a program of "in-school suspensions" where students could be assigned to one teacher for a certain length of time instead of being sent home for misbehavior.

Ford Hikes Prices; G. M. Asks 3% Boost

DETROIT, Dec. 8 (Special) —The Price Commission today allowed Ford Motor Co. to raise 1973 model car and truck prices an average of $82.55 a vehicle, or 1.5 per cent, effective Monday.

Hardly had the ink on the commission's stamp of approval dried when General Motors Corp., which last week was granted an average $34, or 1.2 per cent increase, asked for an added 3 per cent price boost.

The Ford increases range from $29 on the subcompact Pinto two-door to $190 on the Lincoln Continental Mark III.

cover general economic costs [1971] and safety equipment ($3) to cover the cost of side guard door beams which become standard equipment Jan. 1). Ford, as yet, hasn't asked for a price boost for economic considerations, but is expected to do so. On today's increase, Ford said it will honor prices on firm retail orders taken by dealers up to midnight Sunday at the old prices, regardless of delivery date.

Studying School Financing

Tax Reforms Get Attention Of Panel

by RAYMOND LAHR
WASHINGTON (UPI) — A commission representing federal, state and local governments has voted to advise President Nixon that the states should retain primary responsibility for property tax relief policy and for equalizing school finances within each state.

It was the first vote taken by the Advisory Commission on Intergovernmental Relations, which was asked by Nixon last January to study school finance reform, particularly a value added tax, as a substitute for property taxes. The recommendation was approved by voice vote after two hours of discussion.

A commission staff report said some owners generally were not overburdened by residential property taxes except in some states.

JOHN SHANNON, assistant director of the commission's staff in charge of school study, said New York, Wisconsin and Vermont were among states where the tax situation was tight.

He acknowledged that a survey taken for the commission showed property taxes were regarded as the least fair of all levies but said many protesting home owners were objecting to what was a tax on "unrealized capital gains" in the value of a house they had no intention of selling.

Commission disapproval of the value-added tax was expected at its meeting running through yesterday and possibly into today.

The administration already has indicated that it is no longer interested in such a levy, although Nixon still would like to see property taxes on homes and apartments cut in half. In an Oct. 5 news conference, he said any such goal could be reached only in steps and that property tax relief for the elderly should get first priority.

EARLIER REPORTS from the advisory commission have urged that state governments take over most of the cost of public schools. A similar recommendation came March 3 from the President's special commission on school financing.

RECENT COURT decisions may drive the states in that direction. These courts have held that school financing, relying mostly on property taxes, results in inequality between wealthy and low-income areas.

The National Governors' Conference opposed a value-added tax at its June meeting. Both it and the National Legislative Conference, representing all members of state legislatures, have asked for more federal aid without strings for schools.

The Home Line

By Dorothy Ritz

Dear Dorothy: Is there a particular technique involved in building a successful fire in the fireplace? — Jessie Mann

I should let that certain fellow write this answer. He is in "seventh heaven," when starting a fire in the fireplace, at home or in homes of friends.

Assuming that the draft is working well and the fireplace has always performed well, his method always works. He opens a door or a window slightly so there will be sufficient oxygen to feed the fire.

He then crumples up a few newspapers under the andirons and lays a few pieces of kindling over them. Then a large log is placed on the andirons as far back as possible, but not touching the fireplace wall. In front of this is placed another log and then one log over the two, like a pyramid, making sure there is air space between the logs. The fire starts with a bang and continues to burn, with an occasional log fed on top when the others burn low.

Dear Dorothy: I've been using a ceramic cookie jar for years and the cookies kept perfectly. Suddenly, the cookies are no longer soft or crisp — whichever way they were when put in. Do you know why something like this should happen? — Lisa Bank

Yes. It occurs every so often with ceramic cookie jars. They become porous and so are no longer airtight. An airtight metal canister does the ideal job of keeping cookies the way you want them. An airtight such as a potato chip or popcorn container is a good substitute.

Contrary to what most freezer books say, a recent government manual on foods says shelled nuts retain top quality in a tightly closed container in the refrigerator for six months or longer, or in the freezer at zero for two years.

(Mrs. Ritz welcomes questions and hints. If a personal reply is required, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Write to her in care of Suburban Living, Paddock Publications, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.)

PERSONABLE PUPPETS are fun for Bobby LeFevre and Julie Johnson, but they can't keep them. Bobby's mother, Mrs. Robert LeFevre of Palatine, will be taking 80 hand puppets made by Northwest Suburban Alpha Chi Omega Alumnae to children at the Easter Seal Center in Elgin in time for Christmas. Mrs. LeFevre is president of the alumnae, who make the puppets annually in connection with the sorority's national project, cerebral palsy.

Maine Township Real Estate Transfers Listed

Forty-six property sales in Des Plaines topped late autumn activity in the latest monthly Maine township real estate transfer report from County Recorder Sidney R. Olsen.

The report also contained 28 sales in Park Ridge, seven in Glenview, five in Niles, four in Morton Grove, and three in the rest of the township.

Olsen recorded the following property transfers for the township. The list shows the purchase price of equity and does not include the amount of a mortgage which the purchaser may have assumed. The price is indicated by the amount of state revenue stamps on the document ($1.00 in stamps for each $1,000.00 of market value).
